There have been rumors afloat during the week that certain men who have no connection with the REVIEW assumed editorship last week. While we do not wish to detract from the ability of those gentlemen as writers, still as long as we are able to wield the pen the REVIEW will contain nothing that does not have its source, style and backing in the name that stands at the head of its columns.

The theatre players who went to Winthrop a week ago had a tough time of it. When about seven miles out of the village the horses balked and refused to be either coaxed or driven. The result was that, although they started from here in the morning, they did not reach Winthrop until it was time to go upon the stage and proceed with the play. The ladies had to get off the rig and walk up every hill on account of the bad roads, and in coming back the drive was equally enjoyable (if) and lengthy.

If anyone differs with the sentiments expressed by the REVIEW its columns are open to free discussion from anyone who chooses to use them. We court honest expression of differences, but despise the man who shuns openness and seeks to "get even" by trying to induce people to stop the paper that he doesn't like to read.

Everybody is apt to make mistakes sometime. Last week Frank Behnke saw a farmer with a set of teeth that caused admiration for their evenness and white appearance, and he happened to make the statement that he would give $250 if he could have teeth like them. The farmer overheard this and quietly turned to him, took out his ivorys, and said he would gladly take the $250. The teeth, he added, with a smile, had only cost him twenty.

The following composed the party that attended the Turnfest at Duluth: H. Engel, Fred Seiter, Hugo Fischer, Robert Brandt, Richard Fischer, Lorenz Merkle, Emil Wicherski, Albert Pfander, F. Arrangements have been made for the appearance of the Anna L. Pomeroy company at Turner Hall, to produce their great comedy of "The Burglar," on Friday, July 29th. The company are meeting with big success in this play and our play-goers can look forward to a rich treat. Miss Pomeroy is a singer of rare ability, and will introduce several of her latest German songs during the play. Master Leslie, only five years of age, will be seen in his great character of the burglar's child. Following is from the St. Paul Pioneer Press: Miss Pomeroy sang in exquisite manner the "Staccato Polka" which was originally composed for Miss Emma Thursby. Miss Pomeroy has a fine soprano voice of considerable power and expression, and she sings with much intensity of feeling, betraying the marks of the cultivated and thoroughly trained artist.

THE BURGALAR

In Wednesday's Storm it Pays to Have in Many Sections.

Near Springfield Fifty-three Cattle are Killed by one Stroke.

Early last Wednesday morning, Brown County was visited by an electrical storm of a peculiar character. The sky was lighted with an almost continual blaze and the crack of thunder was enough to cause constant fear.

Near Springfield a herd of four hundred cattle was corralled in a pasture along the Cottonwood river. A bolt struck the wire fence near which the cattle were standing and running along this splintered several posts and killed fifty-three head. It was a shocking sight the next morning, says the Advance, and many people went out to see it. From the same herd thirty-eight head were lost this spring in a blizzard.

John Frank's barn in Stark was also struck and together with machinery and five cattle was destroyed without insurance. M. Fohl's house in Home was struck and a farm house in Sigel was completely demolished. In New Ulm the only damage done was to Karl Knosp's barn.

Hail fell in some sections but it has not been learned that the crops were injured to any extent.

New Ulm Boys Get There.

At the Duluth Turnfest the New Ulm boys came to the front in fine shape and captured the cream of the prizes, Minneapolis secured the first class prize but New Ulm came in second and left all the others far to the rear.

Of the first class Turners, Wm. E. Koch won the first prize, Henry Engel won the second, and Fred Seiter the fifth, and in the second grade classes Robert Brandt won the first, Fred Heers the sixth and Emil Wicherski the tenth. All of these are New Ulm athletes.

Wm. E. Koch also won the first prizes for rope climbing and broad and high jumping. The laurels are such as to be proud of.

Lutheran Teachers in Session.

About thirty Lutheran teachers from all parts of the state are the guests of the city at present and until to-morrow night they will be in session at the Lutheran schools. The exercises which will occupy their attention will be confined almost entirely to school room work and among the topics to be discussed are reductions in fractions, United States history, the teaching of German geography, German reading classes, the discovery of America and its importance, practical lessons in organ playing, and the relation of religion to their private schools. A very interesting point to come up will be the Faribault and Stillwater systems, which is now bothering the educators of the state. A protest will be entered by the conference against this system of dividing the public monies, and the Lutheran teachers in session here will make plain their objection to the using of public monies for diverging religious doctrine.

Mr. Roediger, of Hollywood, is president of the conference, and Mr. G. W. Kunkel, of Winona, is secretary. The following teachers are present: Mr. Arndt, of Hay Creek; T. Grossman, Bank Centre; J. W. Schultz, of Gaylord; J. Rowe and W. Kunkel, of Winona; J. Eisenberger, Chas. Zeiger, J. Osterich, J. Pipkorn, A. Hohnstein and Mr. Fischer, of St. Paul; Mr. Beinke, of Fairfield; H. Ehlen, of Waconia; Mr. Ries, of Cologne; T. Bengel, of Young America; P. Trupke, of Willow Creek; F. Hackbarth and H. Fiene, of Nicollet; W. E. Gieske, of Lewiston; P. Grossweiler, of Mankato; E. Harnes, of Sauk Rapids; Mr. Kirsch, of Faribault; Mr. Becker, of Courtland; J. H. Brase, of Hay Creek; J. Leworeuz, of New Prague; Mr. Schreiber, of Blue Earth City; and P. Ehlen, of Hamburg.

In addition to these Prof. Schaller, Hoyer and Reim, Rev. Albrecht and Messrs. Blauert and Messing are in active attendance and are endeavoring to make it pleasant for the guests.
