F. W. JOHNSON, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.
NEW ULM, MINNESOTA.

FRANCIS J. KELLY of Pittsburg has the reputation of being the tallest newspaper man in America, being nearly seven feet high.

An ice yacht has traveled a mile in 1 minute, 10 seconds; a running horse in 1 minute, 35 1/2 seconds; a torpedo boat in 1 minute, 50 seconds; a steam-yacht in 2 minutes, 12 seconds.

RUSSELL SAGE gives a broker in his office $10 regularly each year when his birthday comes around. In this simple way he makes sure that one man at least will be sincere in wishing him many happy returns.

Mrs. BELVA LOCKWOOD delivered an address last week at the Bloomington, Ill., Chautauqua on the subject "Is Marriage a Failure?" she answered the question in the negative. Does Belva speak for Mr. Lockwood too?

Who will say that Russia is not keeping abreast of the times when they consider that she has recently ordered that every soldier shall be provided with a cotton handkerchief at the expense of the government?

ALBERT GRANT, of the Massachusetts P. C. A., has killed three thousand cats during his 12 years' connection with the society. This is a cataclysm, so to speak, he brought about with cyanide of potassium.

Two Chinamen lately tried the holding-up process on a bank messenger near Hong Kong, and robbed him of 200 taels—about $300—but they were caught and decapitated within 48 hours. Tael you win, heads you lose, as the messenger remarked.

SEARLES, the man who became a millionaire by marrying Mrs. Hopkins, appraises her relatives to be worth about $2,000 each. At least, this is what he has given them as their share of his dead wife's vast wealth.

The London correspondent of the New York Sun sorrowfully notes the fact that Gladstone "no longer has that robust vigor which made him the wonder of the age." Well, how much "robust vigor" is a man expected to exhibit in his 84th year?

WHEN Fay Templeton's mother, Mrs. Van Ness, took unto herself a third husband recently, she gave her age as 38. As the frolicsome Fay will never have the pleasure of celebrating her own 30th birthday again, there may be an interesting physiological fact concealed in Mrs. Van Ness' statement.

At Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, the Herald has been run by Alexander Lawson for the past 59 years. And the old man clings to the editorial tripod as vigorously as ever and gets quite mad when visitors wonder how anybody could consent to live for half as many months in the country when the opportunities for drowning one's self is so handy.

The extent to which civilization has been carried into Africa is indicated by the fact that the Zulu singers who are now interesting London have seventy-seven English songs in their repertoire, and are particularly fond of rendering "Bid Me Discourse" and "Annie Laurie." It may be, however, that, like the wild men from Borneo and Circassian girls of the dime museums, these dark-skinned artists are native products of Great Britain or Ireland.

MARK TWAIN'S name so frequently appears on the list of arrivals at Geneva that it might almost be supposed the Hartford author had expatriated himself and taken up his residence among the Swiss. His liking for Europe has grown with great strides during recent years, and he seizes every possible occasion to cross the water. "It's the Alps that draw me there," he said to a friend not long ago. "They follow me everywhere and I cannot get away from them."

The opinion of Daniel Webster on the question of taking congressional cold tea in a cup would be most interesting if it could be secured. The flowing bowl of Webster's time was a different article from the China cup subterfuge of latter-day statesmen. The titans of former days had no need of screening their toddy from public view, for their constituents regarded drinking as one of the qualifications of statesmanship, and Mr. Weber in particular appreciated that fact.
