

'TIS AN UNLUCKY NUMBER.

THIRTEEN LIVES LOST IN A WRECK.

The Schooner Stranger Goes Down With Nearly All on Board—A Hurricane Which Proves Very Disastrous to Shipping.

Elemental Fury.
New Orleans, Oct. 17.—The Norwegian steamer Washington, Capt. Salven, from Boca Del Toro, arrived in port today. She reports on Oct. 10, latitude 14.46 north, longitude 82.26 west, encountering a hurricane from north northwest around to west southwest, lasting until 2 a. m. Oct. 11, accompanied by mountainous seas. The vessel shipped much water and had covers and movable on deck swept away and cargo slightly damaged. The captain and first officers were injured by being knocked about by the heavy seas and the rolling of the vessel.

The Norwegian steamer Agnes, Capt. F. Hanson, from Nicaragua, arrived this evening. She reports having, Oct. 10 at 8 p. m., encountered a hurricane from west varying to south and southwest (barometer 29.4) with tremendous seas flooding the steamer's decks fore and aft. The vessel was "hove to" until 4 a. m. Oct. 11, when the weather moderated. It also reported to be a boat in which were two men, the waves at the time being very high. Hauled the ship up, and, drifting down to them we found they were two sailors clinging to part of a boat. Passing them we succeeded in throwing them a line to which they clung and were drawn aboard the ship in safety. The men belonged to the Honduran schooner Stranger, which had capsized at 11 p. m. on Oct. 10. She had thirteen passengers, including seven women and three children, also a crew of five men, including captain, all of whom, with the exception of the two rescued by the Agnes, were drowned. The schooner was bound for Belize via Rutan for Bluefields; registered thirty-two tons, was built and owned in Rutan. The crew consisted of Thomas Connor and Charles Scott. Among the passengers lost by the capsizing of the schooner "Stranger" were Misses Bluefield, Mrs. Thompson of Rutan and Mrs. Fanny Stern of Rutan.

Made Things Lively.

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—About 8 o'clock this evening, an hour when Chestnut street is generally crowded with people, a small shaggy-coated dog came around the corner of Sixth street on a full run, snapping and snarling as he ran. The first shrieking cry of "Mad dog!" was quickly raised, and every one in the path of the animal started for shelter. A little Russian girl selling papers was not quick enough, and as the dog rushed past she fell on her face and head. Henry Griffith, Salvation Army member, stabbed in the thigh; Joseph Peoples, Salvation Army member, broken arm and cut head; Tillie Gracey, an onlooker, face badly cut.

For a long time there has been ill feeling between the tough element and the Salvation Army. As the dog was marching along with band playing and banners waving, some one threw a brick at Lieut. Lowe, Francis B. B. B. B. This was the signal for a general attack, and bricks, stones, clubs and knives were freely used on the Salvation Army. The latter made no attempt of defense, but scattered as fast as possible. No arrests have been made.

Warren a Murderer.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 17.—News has just reached here of the cold-blooded assassination of two men in the Big Horn country. J. S. Bedford and several other men had been arrested charged with horse stealing and acquitted. Some shooting took place in the court room at the close of the trial. Bedford and a man named Birch were tried for contempt of court. They were ordered confined in jail at Buffalo, and after being disarmed and tied to horses, started to that place in charge of officers. Five miles out of Bonanza a party of men from ambush covered the officers with their Winchester rifles. The horses dashed and the men fled. Bedford and Birch were killed. There is no clue to the identity of the men who committed the murders and little inquiry is likely to be made.

Relief to Mr. Gladstone.

London, Oct. 17.—Mr. Gladstone consulted Dr. Granger, the oculist, a few days ago on account of the condition of his eyesight, which has recently caused him much uneasiness. He will be remembered that he was injured in the eye at Chester by the effects of the injury seemed to have disappeared in a few days, it was believed that Mr. Gladstone was permanently damaged. Dr. Granger, after a careful examination, reported that he could detect only the slightest increase of opacity in the crystalline lens of the eye, and he assured Mr. Gladstone that he would retain good eyesight for many years to come. The doctor also declared that Mr. Gladstone was in excellent health.

No Longer in It.

Berlin, Oct. 17.—Herr von Brandt, German ambassador to China, has resigned. The National Zeitung says the cause is the interference of the foreign office with his methods at the court at Peking. Herr von Brandt was a complainant recently in a suit for criminal libel against the Chinese government. He was accused of having tried to prevent his obtaining and receiving mining concessions in China, of having induced his private papers, of having imprisoned him and of having tried to send him to an insane asylum. These charges Paensch published in pamphlets. At the trial he produced a number of letters from Herr von Brandt imputed insanity to him when the commercial plans were antagonistic. Whether Herr Brandt's resignation cannot be ascertained.

For the Unemployed.

London, Oct. 17.—Delegates from radical clubs, trades unions, etc., held a meeting to-day and resolved as a further step toward the demonstration which it is proposed to hold in Trafalgar Square on behalf of the unemployed, a manifesto calling for a public meeting for Nov. 13, at which the condition of the poor would be discussed. Mr. Sandhu, M. P., read, amid cheers, a letter from Sir William Russell, secretary of the home secretary in 1884, expressing regret that any laws had been passed forbidding the free sale of public buildings in places where it has been customary to hold them, and promising that no more such legislation should be sanctioned.

Wants the Boundary Fixed.

New Orleans, Oct. 17.—President Diaz of Mexico received a petition from the legislature of the State of Yucatan, asking him to take the proper diplomatic measures to obtain from the British government a convention defining the boundaries of the state of Yucatan. The British government has been unwilling to sell arms and ammunition to the British traders to the Indians who are engaged in the war of races in Yucatan, which has lasted more or less since 1848.

Missionary Work.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 17.—The Christian Women's Board of Missions of the Christian Church missionary convention had only religious services to-day. An hour of prayer for the world was held, and a special meeting from 7:30 to 8. At 8 o'clock Mrs. N. E. Atkinson of Indiana delivered an address to a crowded house on "The Missionary Work of the Christian Women's Board of Missions continues through to-morrow, all the leading reports being set for to-morrow morning."

Seized a Large Fortune.

London, Oct. 17.—The Greek minister at Bucharest has been recalled in consequence of the Roumanian government's seizure of the enormous fortune which a Greek merchant named Seappas bequeathed for the promotion of husbandry and manufactures in the Roumanian provinces. The fortune is estimated at $1,000,000 and is being administered by the Roumanian government. The Greek minister at Bucharest is reported to have been recalled in consequence of the seizure of the fortune.

Alaska's Governor.

Winnipeg, Special. Oct. 17.—Lynn E. Knapp, Special Agent, is here en route to Chicago to attend the dedication of the new building of the world's fair buildings. He is accompanied by his aid-de-camp, Col. Kosmetrionoff, and goes south in the morning.

VIC WOODHULL IN LINE.

She Will Run for the Presidency.

New York, Oct. 17.—Mrs. Victoria Clafin Woodhull Martin, the candidate of the Women Suffragists for president of the United States, arrived here from her English home on the steamship Etruria, which reached her dock at 7:30 this morning. Her husband, John Biddulph Martin, a London banker, who is a world's fair commissioner from Great Britain, accompanied the American presidential candidate. They were driven to the residence of Mrs. Martin's sister, Mrs. Dennis O'Hallern, where she was seen by the reporters. The lady said her health was excellent and she was eager to step once more on the platform or stump, after sixteen years' retirement, silence and domestic happiness, and preach the gospel of humanitarianism to every creature. To-night she said Mr. Martin and she would leave for Chicago to attend the ceremonies on the world's fair grounds, where her husband would represent the British commissioners. Immediately after the ceremonies they will return to this city, when the arrangements will be completed for the campaign speeches which Mrs. Martin will deliver in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Chicago and some other large cities.

Going Too Far.

Windsor, Mich., Oct. 17.—In a free fight here early this evening between a Salvation Army detachment and a gang of ruffians, five persons were seriously injured, one of them fatally. The list of injured is as follows: Carrie Lowe, lieutenant, cut on head with brick and probably fatally hurt; Frank Hutchins, broken arm and face and head; Henry Griffith, Salvation Army member, stabbed in the thigh; Joseph Peoples, Salvation Army member, broken arm and cut head; Tillie Gracey, an onlooker, face badly cut.

No Laughing Matter.

San Francisco, Oct. 17.—News from Butaria, the principal city of the Gilbert Islands, says there is a gloomy outlook for American traders on the island: unless the United States does something to protect their rights. Since the British have been subject to many insults.

More Telegraphers Strike.

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 17.—The strike of telegraph operators and station agents of the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe systems is now in its eighth day. The strikers are every man from Purcell, Ind. T. to Galveston, Temple to San Angelo, Cleburne to Fort Worth, and the strike has affected the management of the road and this branch of the service. The cause of the strike is the demand for $60 monthly maximum pay instead of $50 as heretofore, and twelve hours a day, and some probably totally pay for over time. The grievance committee here is acting under the direction of the Grand Union and Grand Chancery of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and is supported by the order. The strikers will receive from the order half pay for the time they are out of work, and are determined and they feel confident of winning.

A Murderous Constable.

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 17.—Martin, alias "Reddy" Segler, a ward constable and ex-petty sheriff of Schuylkill county, shot and killed a woman. Although he was on night last night, killing thirty-six, at midnight he was on duty. He was on duty at the time he shot and killed the woman. He was on duty at the time he shot and killed the woman. He was on duty at the time he shot and killed the woman.

Tommy Warren a Murderer.

Waco, Tex., Oct. 17.—Tommy Warren, ex-welder-weight champion, shot and killed Charles Saloon, where Skeeter Root, a young gambler, and two women were drinking this afternoon and opened fire with a revolver, apparently trying to hit Root. This did not succeed in doing, but one of his bullets passed through the body of Clement Stovary, an attaché case, and he was killed. Warren disappeared and has not been captured.

Long Too Quick for Him.

Silver Lake, Kan., Oct. 17.—This village was the scene of a sensational cutting affray this afternoon. In which Ernest Lang was fatally cut by Ed Gills. The men had been drinking and being involved in a quarrel. Lang was running, when his clothes were stuck to his back, and he fell. Gills was running, when his clothes were stuck to his back, and he fell. Lang was running, when his clothes were stuck to his back, and he fell.

A Royal Sprig Goes Wrong.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 17.—Christian K. Jagdt, a member of a Danish family and a florist in this city, is missing. His partner charges him with swindling to the extent of $200. His wife, however, of Leocomote, being secretary of the treasury of Denmark. The missing man is a brother of Miss Ellen Jagdt, who is a member of the household and became infatuated on a shipboard with a stranger. The two were about to be married when Christian Jagdt found his sister in New York City. He showed her a letter from the missing man, and she refused to marry him. He has been in congress forty-two years, and his family is said to be one of the highest of the royal house of Denmark.

North Dakota Presbyterians.

Crystal, N. D., Oct. 17.—The Presbytery of Pembina has closed its session here at a popular meeting. W. H. Hunter of Park River (N. D.) was elected "Christian Endeavor Work." He also gave a full report of the home missionary work of the presbytery. It showed great progress on the part of the branch of the church, and an open door for the future.

Warm Weather in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Oct. 17.—Nels Nelson, a tanner, was overcome by heat and fell from his wagon on Canal street to-day, the weather being unusually warm for October. When he was taken to the Emergency hospital the doctors pronounced it mild case of sunstroke. He recovered after a few hours.

H. Norton of San Antonio, Tex.; vice chairman, S. M. Walker of New York; secretary, H. L. Walthers of Dunsmuir, Calif.

Milwaukee Light Horse Squadron.

Racine, Wis., Oct. 17.—The Milwaukee Light Horse Squadron, fifty strong, arrived here to-day. The squadron is under the command of Capt. Grant. They left Milwaukee at 9 o'clock this morning and were royally received here. They leave for Chicago, Ill., and thence to Chicago tomorrow morning to be present at the dedication of the world's fair.

ENGLAND IS INUNDED.

AN ENORMOUS AMOUNT OF PROPERTY LOSS.

One of the Worst Storms Known for Years Occurs in Yorkshire, and Thousands of Acres are Submerged.

Fearful Floods.

London, Oct. 17.—Reports of damage by floods continue to come from many different parts of Great Britain and Ireland. The river Ayr, in Yorkshire, has overflowed its banks, inundating eighteen square miles in the district of Pontaract. Many families were compelled by the flood on Saturday to take refuge in the upper stories of their houses, from which they afterwards were rescued by boats. Dozens of houses undermined by the water have collapsed. Many of the mines in the district are flooded. The loss of stock is very great. At Castledorf, in Yorkshire, the sewers burst under the strain of the great volume of water rushing through them, and as a result, the streets were flooded and became impassable. Business was of course suspended and all public buildings were closed. The Manchester & Sheffield railroad to Rotheringham is covered with the feet of the water. The floods in Yorkshire are the most serious that have ever occurred in that county since the middle of the last century. Railway traffic has been completely diverted. The damage to property is enormous. A bridge at Selby on the York & Doncaster railway has been completely washed away. Thousands of acres of land are submerged in the Barnsley district, and many people are moving their effects from their homes. The flood at Leeds caused by the overflow of the River Ayr is subsiding. The floods in Derbyshire and Lancashire are also subsiding. Many horses and cattle have been drowned.

No Laughing Matter.

ELECTRICAL ETCHINGS.

British Tonnage.

McKinley's speeches have set the Republicans of Ohio on fire with enthusiasm. Charles F. Joy has been nominated for congress by the Republicans of the Eleventh Missouri district.

The Aaron Merer bank at Backeburg, Germany, founded 107 years ago, has failed, with liabilities of 1,500,000 marks.

Secretary Foster told a reporter that George Sloan of Oswego, N. Y., would probably be assistant secretary of the treasury.

D. W. Reeves, a Providence bandmaster, has been offered Gilmore's baton, and he is said to be competent to wield it satisfactorily.

J. T. Pepper, a Toledo political orator, said bitter things in his speech at Birmingham, Ala., and was killed in the row which followed.

The adjustment of the difficulties between Missouri Pacific and its telegraph will either be completed to-day or a strike will ensue.

At Dixon, Ky., Edward Heron waylaid and mortally wounded John Winston. Heron attempted to escape and was shot to death while resisting arrest.

Mr. Blaine has communicated through Secretary Foster to the president an expression of his sympathy with the account of Mrs. Harrison's dangerous illness.

Ex-Secretary Blaine is expected to return to his house in Washington this week. He will be accompanied by his family, and will take up a permanent abode for the winter.

The empress of Austria has been since the death of Prince Rudolph a complete mental wreck, subject to the most pathetic delusions about her son, and requiring the utmost care.

The old arsenal in which John Brown made his last fight at Harper's Ferry in 1859, has been transplanted to Chicago and was thrown open to visitors last night for the first time.

Steter Emma Durham, who nursed Lord Teignmouth during his illness, has handed over the fee of $1,000, which she received for her services, to the national pension fund for nurses.

James Francis Burke, president of the College Republican club, will soon start on a tour of American colleges to encourage the study of the republican organizations in the various colleges.

During a Republican parade in Pittsburg a cable car rushed down an incline and through the ranks of the marchers. Henry Apel was killed, Ward Ruffner fatally injured and several others badly hurt.

In the case of John Daly, the member of the Toledo, Ohio, city council charged with having performed a venial act of adultery, this is the first of the seven cases and means a conviction in all of them.

At Portsmouth, Ohio, yesterday two boilers in the rolling mill of the Burgess Steel and Iron works exploded. Richard Fleming and George Bressler were killed, twelve others were seriously and some probably fatally injured, and a score are more or less injured.

Mrs. Jack Garner and other people more or less conspicuous in Boston society are said to be easily recognizable in the characters of a somewhat sensational book, supposed to be a picture of Boston society, that has made its appearance at the Hub.

Gen. F. T. Dent has for several weeks past been very ill at the hospital at Fort Logan. He has, however, so far improved that Saturday he was removed to his residence in Denver. Gen. Dent is a veteran of the Mexican war, and brother-in-law of Gen. Grant.

Permanent Quarantine System.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Speaking of possibility of establishing a permanent national quarantine system, Secretary Foster said that the government would not do it. "We have not used up all of the appropriation which the last congress made for the erection of a permanent quarantine system. The amount was cut down considerably. The appropriation was only $100,000, but there was an unexpended balance from the last year of $20,000. A national quarantine, of course, would have to be in the hands of the marine hospital, but it would cost very much more than the marine hospital now costs."

The Scottish Rite.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Delegates from the Scottish Rite bodies of the Southern Jurisdiction held a meeting in this city under a special call, in anticipation of a meeting of the supreme council, which takes place to-morrow. The delegates met to discuss proposed reforms in the existing statutes with the idea of presenting their views to the supreme council in the form of a petition. The petition was to be to abolish life tenure of officers, provide for a representative form of government and a reduction of the present excessive taxation. The supreme council will be asked to make these changes.

May Have a Hit.

London, Oct. 17.—The Chronicle's Paris correspondence says that the French government suppressed a portion of a recent dispatch from Col. Dods, the French commander in Dahomey, in which the colonel accused Germany of supplying King Behanz with ammunition and helping the Dahomeyans to raise earthworks of a European style. The alleged interference of Germans in Dahomey, it is said, forms the subject of a serious diplomatic controversy.

Bill Wouldn't Have It.

Vienna, Oct. 17.—While the kaiser was at Schenbrunn the duke of Cumberland tried to arrange a meeting in order that they might discuss the Brunnick succession. The court officials informed the duke, however, that the emperor was traveling entirely in his private capacity and could not concern himself with political affairs.

Breckinridge Declines.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Mr. Breckinridge has declined John Boyd Thatcher's courteous invitation to make a speech at the dedication of New York's club house next Saturday. He will make no speeches in Chicago during the week. Friends of Mr. Thatcher deny that the invitation was sent to Congressmen Breckinridge and Sherman in Chicago of Chicago's cool treatment of the Kentuckian.

Died at Lake City.

Lake City, Minn., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Lydia Hall, who has lived in this city since 1855, died to-day at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. L. Walters, aged seventy-five years.

THAT MAN WOLCOTT.

ONE OF HIS EARLY MICHIGAN EXPERIENCES.

Thomas Hanrahan Tells an Episode in His Career—How He Used the Pioneers of Larimore North Dakota.

The career of C. C. Wolcott, the man responsible for issuing the "Gigantic Conspiracy" pamphlet, is one of the most remarkable that has been brought to the notice of the American public. A careful and painstaking search into his past record demonstrates that he is one of the most dangerous men in the country. Avarice seems to be the ruling passion of the man and his entire career is an exemplification of the dangers into which the inordinate passion for the accumulation of money will lead a man.

The early years of his life were spent in the state of Michigan, where he had several business ventures, keeping a hotel, running a hardware store, and agricultural implement depot, etc., in all of which he appears to have "failed."

WOLCOTT AND FRANK HOWARD.

One notable incident in his career is told by Frank Howard, former manager of the Ann Arbor Agricultural Works. Wolcott was residing and doing business, after his particular fashion, at Jackson, Michigan, and having a large quantity of money in his possession, thought it a good time to fall in business and turn over what trash he had no further use for to his creditors. The concern closed its doors.

Howard soon heard of the failure and proceeded to Jackson to learn what he could say out of the wreck. The claim held by the Ann Arbor Agricultural works was between four and five thousand dollars. Wolcott was at the hotel but sent word from his room that he was sick and could not be seen. Howard went up to his room and knocked at his door. There was no answer. Then Howard called out, "Wolcott, you may as well save expense by opening this door. If you don't I will kick it off the hinges!"

"The door was opened and there stood Mr. Wolcott, smiling and smoking a good cigar. "I want our account settled in full!" said Howard.

"You will have to wait, Mr. Howard, and take your chance with the rest of our creditors," said Wolcott. Howard stepped inside, closed the door and locked it, putting the key in his pocket. He then notified his customer that he would never leave the room till he had his money. Wolcott pleaded with him and assured him that he did not have a dollar.

Howard was firm. He told him that he would about as soon be sent to jail for assault as to lose that amount of money. He was alone with him, and it was his deliberate intention to break every bone in his body—one at a time—unless his money was forth coming. Wolcott opened his trunk and paid the claim in full in money, and Howard went on his way rejoicing.

Some of Wolcott's Jackson creditors who did not fare as well as Frank Howard will read here for the first time how the Ann Arbor man collected his claim against the bankrupt outfit.

Tracing the early career of this man, incidents of the above general character multiply. Wherever his business career touches there follows disaster, lawsuits, litigation, quarrels, poverty and ruin for his victims and associates.

After several failures in Michigan, about the year 1880 or '81 he determined to change the scene of his operations, and removed to North Dakota—the field of his operations being from Grand Forks, West to Devils Lake. Here, with a capital of from $6,000 to $8,000, he opened a private bank, which was some time afterward merged into the First National Bank of Larimore.

Here he commenced a financial career which for utter heartlessness and recklessness has never yet been equalled in the history of even the wild and woolly financing of the North-western frontier.

Wolcott had no regular method of fleecing the customers of his banking institution. All modes were alike to him provided only that they were of a character to transfer the hard-earned dollars of the pioneer settlers to his capacious pockets. One of his favorite schemes was to loan a few hundreds of dollars to an ignorant customer, on a verbal agreement for one year, draw the note payable in three months, and when that brief period had expired to compel the victim to add one, two, or three hundred dollars to the original sum, and take a mortgage for the entire sum on all the worldly possessions of his victim. Let one of his victims tell this story in his own language:

WOLCOTT AND HANRAHAN.
Thomas Hanrahan is an Irishman by birth, and an early settler in the western portion of Grand Forks county. He has the confidence, respect and esteem of every one who knows him in the vicinity of his home, and the common voice of his fellow citizens proclaims him an honest man. Merchants and business men in Larimore stated to the writer that they would willingly trust him on his bare word, albeit he is comparatively poor. Mr. Hanrahan failed to have the advantages of an early education, but is a man of strong good sense, and being genuinely honest himself, is not suspicious of others.

Some time about 1892 he borrowed the sum of $400 from C. C. Wolcott, the latter agreeing to let him have it for 12 per cent per annum. Mr. Hanrahan's story of the transaction as taken from his own lips, is as follows:

"I paid Wolcott a premium besides the interest when the loan was first made, and I have just forgotten how much that was. The loan was for four hundred dollars, and was to be paid after I had taken the harvest off my claim next year. The season was a good one and my grain promised a first rate yield until sometime along in June or July, the terrible hail storm came along and pounded the last spear of wheat and oats into the ground. Of course there was no such thing as staying the note when it came due. If I could keep bread in the mouth of the wife and children I would be mighty lucky. I went to Mr. Wolcott and told him the story. He first said he must have his money, but afterward told me to come to the bank and he would take a new note to be paid after the next harvest. When I went to the bank he was very kind, asked me how we were getting along, and whether I would be able to get through the winter all right. We had saved a few potatoes and some garden stuff, and I was working for some of the neighbors, who were very kind, and I told him that we would get along through the winter some how, if God willed it. Then he said to me, "Thomas, you had better take some more money. Here is twenty-five dollars, and we will add this to the note to be paid after the next harvest." I was glad enough to get the money and thanked him, and then signed the note and mortgage on all the stock, the machinery and the land.

"The next year I was prospered. The crop was good and I saved it all. I had the money for my wheat and went to the bank to pay the note. I could not read, but I knew that I had only got from him four hundred and twenty-five dollars, then the interest for the year would be under fifty dollars, that would be less than four hundred and seventy-five dollars. Then the interest on all that would be less than sixty dollars, so I expected to have to pay some where about five hundred and thirty-five dollars or a little less, maybe, I
