THE LEGEND OF EVIL

This is the sorrowful story
Told when the twilight falls,
And the monkeys walk together
Holding each other's tails:

"Our fathers lived in the forest; Foolish people were they.

They went down to the cornland
To teach the farmers to play.

"Our fathers frisked in the millet, Our fathers skipped in the wheat Our fathers hung in the branches, Our fathers danced in the street.

"Then came the terrible farmers. Nothing of play they knew.
Only they caught our fathers
And set them to labor too!

"Set them to work in the cornland, With plows and sickles and fiails; Put them in mudwalled prisons And cut off their beautiful tails! "Now we can watch our fathers, Sullen and bowed and old,

Stooping over the millet, Stirring the silly mold. "Driving a foolish furrow, Mending a muddy yoke, Sleeping in mudwalled prisons, Steeping their food in smoke. "We may not speak to our fathers, For if the farmers knew

They would come up to the forest

And set us to labor too!" This is the horrible story Told as the twilight fails, As the monkeys walk together Holding each other's tails. -Rudyard Kipling.

Two Strange Brothers.

It had always been the habit in the Ward family if two relatives differed strongly to arrange not to be on speaking Dr. William G. Ward was once asked how much he had known of his father's first cousin, Sir Henry Ward. He replied quite gravely: "I only saw him twice-once as a boy, when he came to see my father, and then again I had an interview with him about a matter of business soon after I came into my property. We arranged at the end of it not to be on speaking terms," quite a superflous arrangement, as Sir Henry Ward lived at that time in Ceylon, of which he was governor, and in fact never came

Dr. Ward and his brother Henry had been estranged for a year or so, and one night they met at the Haymarket theater. Each of them had for the moment quite forgotten the quarrel, and friendly greetings passed, and they had a talk about the play. Next morning came a letter from Henry Ward:

again to England for a prolonged visit.

DEAR WILLIAM-In the hurry of the moment tonight I quite forgot that we had arranged to meet as strangers, and I write this, lest you should misunderstand me, to say that I think we had better adhere to our arra ment, and I remain, dear William, your affectionate brother,

HENRY WARD.

Dr. Ward replied: DEAR HENRY-I, too, had forgotten our arrangement. I agree with you that we had better keep to it, and I remain your affectionate brother, W. G. WARD.

The Epidemic of Liberty. The idea embodied in American institutions is the most radical that ever took may say, without being charged with a which the Democratic majority seems boastful spirit, that we have on the whole the best government on the planet. That is to say, the government which offers the largest opportunities and produces the greatest amount of contentment and prosperity.

It is a good thing for 100,000 of our citizens to visit Europe every summer in order to compare the condition of affairs abroad with that enjoyed at home. And it is safe to assert that no man can travel in England or Germany or Russia or Italy without reaching the proud conclusion that the American flag represents thing but follow the president's instrucmore popular rights and a more advanced political economy than any other strip of bunting that floats in the breeze. The tourist who reaches Sandy Hook after a three or six months' journey in foreign lands without having his pulse jump into the nineties ought to have been born in Nova Zembla or Timbuctoo.—New York Telegram.

Harmony and Erudition.

There is a popular fallacy among parents that harmony means erudition, and erudition of so abstruse a nature as to be quite beyond the reach of the every day child and to be reserved for the later years after he is grown up, if undertaken at all, and then chiefly when the youth or maiden has what is called "talent." Ah, the much abused word! How gladly would all artists banish it from the vocabulary and from the ears of the American child! Harmony is only grammar, and grammar of such an entertaining kind that if rightly presented it is fascinating, and of a nature so essential that the musical nonpossessor of it, young or old, is crippled.—Harper's Ba-

THERE CAMPAIGN EDUCATION.

Senator Stewart, the father of the free silver movement in the United States senate, when asked if the senate would adopt a rule like that of the house for the restriction of debate on the currency question, replied:

"Not at all, not at all. There is no haste in this matter. The people ought to be educated. They never have been educated. This is an opportunity to do so and we shall endeavor to educate them. It is a very great question, as to which there is wonderful ignorance. We hope to be able to dispel some of that ignorance. The senate will be in no haste. Since you ask my views uron the subject, I venture to predict that we shall be here a year from now and shall be here all of the time until then, and when the 12 months period shall have passed I think you will find us talking about silver. This is to be a campaign of education. The people must be instructed."

From the action of the Democratic majority in the senate it is apparent that they are bent on anything except prompt action. Senator Gorman, who is head of the Democratic steering committee, has apparently entered upon a well developed policy of filibustering. Senator Voorhees. chairman of the finance committee. when asked if the cloture rule would be adopted limiting the endless jargon of de'ate, replied: "It is not probable nor possible, and, for my part, I shall oppose such a proposition." When Senators Hoar and Lodge offered resolutions to hasten action on the Sherman act in harmony with the president's instructions, they were severely criticised by Senators Gorman, Voorhees and Vest, of the Democratic wing, who signified that the senate should take all the time for debate, resolutions, committee work and the introduction of bills, to which it

That the Democratic majority in the senate is benton a prolonged congression al campaign of education, is apparent both from the miscellaneous and random program of debate on which it has entered, the light attendance, the failure to enter upon the mission for which it was called, and from the flood of heterogeneous bills which it is introducing. On Monday, the seventh day of the session, the bills introduced reached the total of 314. Most of these were introduced by Democratic members. On Monday alone, the concrete shape of legislation. We as an example of the tactics of delay to committed, Butler of South Carolina, introduced 21 bills; Coke, of Louisiana, introduced 8; Pasco, of Florida introduced 9; and Faulkner, of West Virginia, introduced 46; while altogether 154 bills were introduced on that one day. Between introducing bills and resolutions, looking up patronage and visiting the sea shore, and indulging in the endless jargon of debate, the senate is doing anytions regarding prompt action on the

> The Democratic steering committee appears to look upon its campaign of education and its program of delay with a great deal of complacency. But the practical market editor of the New York Sun, in commenting on congress and the cause of the dullness of the stock market, takes the following caustic view:

"Probably the dawdling action of congress has more to do with it than anything else. The precious time wasted in speeches by cowboys and fanatics on a subject whose reasonableness is so clear to the rest of the civilized world, is a source of irritation, constant and acute, to the whole community. Heroics and threats will not settle the silver question. The pathway is clear enough and is easy of access. The bankers and business men of the country who are suffering in every way under the fearful strain, find themselves helpless, and are daily giving up A bit of pure and harmless mischief at the fight, while some new boy orator achieves a reputation. This is the state of things in the house, while the historiises of a threshing of old straw which may be still going on when the snow flies."

Congress may not know it, but the past year of campaign of education is all the country now needs. We have had a year of calamity howls from Wall street, and calamity howls from Colorado, Oregon and Kansas, and what we now want is a little prompt legislation and a rest. If the truth were known, this everlasting talk, talk, talk is the chief cause of the present popular distrust and unrest. Give us three days of legislation and then give us a rest.

This is the main chance of the Demo cratic party to relieve the country and win the applicate of the people. Has Democracy the wisdom to see and do it? Will the majority in power earn at the present time the approbation of the peo-ple for prompt statesmanthip, or the ag-ecrations of the people for prolonging and intensifying the reign of distress?— Minneapolis Tribune.

A STATEMENT OF THE CASE. CROOK CITY, S. D., Jan. 29, 1883.

The Owen Electric Belt and Appliance Co., Chicago, III.:

GENTLEMEN—I have been for some time considering the propriety of writing to you a few lines, relative to my experience with the Owen Electric Belt and Appliance obtained from you about eighteen (18) months ago. Justice to your company, and a desire on my part to make known to others who may be suffering from a similar affliction the relief I obtained from your institution, prompt me to send to you a voluntary desire on my part to make known to others who may be suffering from a similar affliction the relief I obtained from your institution, prompt me to send to you a voluntary statement of my case.

I am a gold miner by occupation, and have been for many years. I crossed the plains to California in 1853, and since then have been in most of the prominent mining camps in the then territories of Oregon, Washington, British Columbia, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, and at present in Dakota. Leading the rough and exposed life incidental to my occupation, caused me to fall a victim to rheumatism which finally utterly prostrated me in Helena, Mont., in "65." I was under the best medical treatment obtainable in Montana for one year, with but slight improvement, and was finally advised to live among the Indians, and subject myself to their "sweat" treatment. This I did and remained with them about a year, obtaining only temporary relief.

Since that time I have been a chronic sufferer—suffering pain and torture indescribable almost continually. It would be useless to attempt to describe my sufferings. It must be sufficient to state that I suffered from rheumatism in its worst form. I had spent large sums of money, changed climate, visited Hot Springs, lived alternately in high and low altitudes, and employed the best medical advice obtainable, hoping to alleviate, if not cure my complaint. It was all to no purpose, and I had about despaired of ever recovering fully my shattered health, when my attention was called to the Owen Electric Belt by a fellow miner, Mr. J. C. Johnson, of Creek City, who was also suffering from rheumatism, and who claimed to have derived great benefit from a belt obtained from you. I had tried so many remedies that I was fairly discouraged and skeptical about obtaining relief from any source, but finally determined it was my duty to give your appliance a trial. I will also state right bere that, since coming to the town, I have also suffered greatly from kidney disease.

At last I sent for one of your belts, a
