

New Ulm Review

ERNST WICHERSKI, PROPRIETOR
F. W. JOHNSON, EDITOR

Wednesday December, 2 1896.

What's the matter with Capt. Gen. Weyler being the "sick man" of Europe.

When Fire Alarm Foraker and Iceberg Sherman meet in the senate next year, will there be a thaw?

Most anybody would rather be a cabinet maker than part of a cabinet. Therefore, Hanna's indifference relative to accepting a portfolio.

Garfield was accused of getting himself into office by booming John Sherman. Perhaps Merriam expects to get into the cabinet by booming Davis.

Let's demand that Mark Hanna be appointed as Bayard's successor at the English throne. The agent would then be in close touch with his principals.

Butcher Weyler was going to crush out the Cuban rebellion in thirty days. As a calculator Weyler is about as much of a failure as National Chairman Jones.

How does it come that nearly all the cabinet aspirants are reported to call on Hanna first and McKinley afterwards. We supposed that McKinley had been elected president, really we did.

Congress ought to be called in extra session to pass some more resolutions of sympathy for bleeding Cuba. Sympathy, you know, is such a wonderful weapon in winning battles against tyrants, that the Cubans are crying aloud for it.

The Cuban question is as much a matter of liberty and humanity as the Armenian, and until the United States considers it as such instead of treating it from the standpoint of international policy, it should cease to taunt the English nation for its negligence in dealing with the Turk.

Tom Platt of New York, it is said authoritatively, is to succeed David B. Hill in the senate of the United States. Inasmuch as both are master politicians the announcement does not bespeak any great loss, although it might require tedious investigation to discover any improvement.

What's the matter with making Carl Schurz minister to the court of Emperor William. It might afford the gifted soldier and scholar some satisfaction to show himself around the royal palace as a man of importance, and, besides, it would in part pay him for those wonderfully logical, eloquent and indisputable fallacies of his in defence of a gold standard.

Congressman Jim Tawney has renewed the fight in the United States Supreme Court between the Winona & St. Peter Land Co. and the settlers. Jim takes the side of the corporation of course, and the people say nothing. That is one of the objects they had in view when they elected him to congress at a salary of $5,000 and expected him to represent them.

If, through a streak of good public fortune, Mr. Merriam should fail to secure a position as one of McKinley's advisors, we beg the Minneapolis Journal to refrain from saying, as it did shortly after election in commenting on Clough's small vote: "The Journal is endorsed." It smacks of conceit, and as far as credit, for bringing about such a result, goes, the Journal knows that it isn't entitled to any.

Read this, ye maligners of Bryan,—ye who would impute to him narrowness of mind and ambition to ruin his native land—and then go forth and look your Bryan friends in the face, if you can. The words are those of the great commoner delivered at Denver a week ago: "I love my country so much, I love mankind so well, that I shall rejoice if the result of the late campaign proves that I was wrong and that my opponent was right. Because, if he can make the government better than I could have made it, then my children and your children will receive the benefits."

United States Senator Chandler, a Republican bimetalist, in a magazine article says: It may take as long to remonetize silver as it has taken to realize the paralyzing influence of demonetization. But the fact that six out of thirteen millions of American voters have given their ballots for the wild project of immediate free silver coinage by the United States alone, shows that the question must be compromised and adjusted in some way. The advocates of gold monometallism are crying out that the silver question is dead. They hope, but do not really believe that this is true. Never was it more important for bimetalists to exert themselves. McKinley is pledged by his own words to co-operate with us.

A number of office-holders who had the temerity to advocate Bryan's election are now paying the penalty by being made the targets of Cleveland's wrath. It is an inexorable law with the chief magistrate that partisanship must be dispensed with unless on the side of Cleveland. A great, good and just man is this Buffalo upstart; a Daniel come to judgment.

A policeman in Chicago claims to have discovered a process by which he can light a building with one bucket of water, without the use of fuel or a dynamo. Had he claimed that with a jug of whiskey he could give things a rosy hue, some faith might have been placed in his pretensions, but, as it is, his story savors too much of the millennium to be believed.

PRESS COMMENT.

When McKinley makes up his cabinet there is little danger of Minnesota getting a plum.—Anoka Union.

And now the Cobden club, the bug-bear of the Republicans in the campaigns of 1880 and 1884, declares that it is glad that McKinley was elected.—St. Paul Globe.

Hon. Mike De Young is just the man for secretary of agriculture. He knows nothing about agriculture, and could enter upon his duties with an open and unprejudiced mind.—New York Sun.

McKinley had a plurality of 18,000 in Indiana. Mount, the candidate for governor, had a plurality of 24,000, which, when compared with the result in Minnesota, shows that there is a difference in candidates for governor.—Minneapolis Journal.

"Didn't Hanna say he would not accept a place in McKinley's cabinet?"

"Yes."

"Well, now he says he will accept one."

"Then the place for him is on the Supreme Court bench beside the justice who changed his mind."—Twentieth Century.

Hero worship is at least explicable when it has for its object a man whose achievements have shed glory upon his country and lustre upon his name. But to put upon a pedestal a vulgar money-bags, who has rendered no conspicuous public service, who is neither a soldier, a statesman, a scholar nor an orator, and has not even the wit to conceal his folly in silence, is an affront to common sense. The Hanna humbug has had quite too long a run.—New York World.

The bankers want the government to go out of the banking business and permit them (the bankers) to regulate the finances of the country. Since when did any power in this country delegate to private parties any of the constitutional functions of government? Of what use is a government if it be not to protect its citizens from oppression at home or abroad. What form of oppression could be more dangerous than that arising from a selfish monopoly by individuals or corporations, of the power of issuing money?—Le Sueur Sentinel.

Two previous attempts to break up trusts have been credited to the Cleveland administration, but they were failures. This last movement of the attorney general smacks too much of death-bed repentance to be received in good faith. As between a Democratic administration which did nothing against the trusts and an incoming Republican administration which promises nothing against them, the great masses of the people may settle down to that dumb endurance which characterizes a one-horned cow spending the night on the leeward side of a wintry haystack.—Chicago Record.

The university president looked gloomily at the bare campus.

"We need money," he declared gloomily.

"I've got a scheme," said the professor of economics with a wink.

The professor of ethics cocked his ears.

"We'll start a series of lectures," pursued the professor of economics, "dealing with the danger of the unrestrained railroad power."

The professor of sociology winked the other eye.

"Next," continued the professor of economics, "we'll point out the social perils of industrial concentration as shown in the oil and sugar trusts."

The faculty was all attention.

"Then," the speaker proceeded, "we'll have some newspaper print a sensational editorial upon our revolutionary doctrines." "What of it?" queried the president.

"By that time," was the answer, "the Vanderbilts and the Rockefellers will be so alarmed that they'll give us a big endowment to keep us quiet."

The proposition was received with enthusiasm.

In 1892 Mr. A. L. Goldwater, who owns three retail drug stores in New York City, having learned of the great value of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds, croup and whooping cough, ordered a supply for his customers. It met with so much favor that he soon found it necessary to order more, and during the winter sold over two gross of the remedy. He says it gives the best satisfaction of any cough cure he has ever handled. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by O. M. Olsen.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhoea and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. For sale by O. M. Olsen."
