

Successful Plow Test.

On Thursday Messrs. John Reckel and A. H. Dobbins representing the new make of plows, called the Klondyke, gave a successful exhibition of its merits on the Filzen farm. The plow was set in the ground by a team of heavy draft horses and afterwards a team of Shetland ponies, but little larger than a good-sized dog did the plowing. The writer and Mr. Dobbins also pulled the plow about two rods turning a furrow sixteen inches wide and five inches deep. While the work was somewhat harder than writing a paper, it showed that the plow is of decidedly light draft and can be successfully drawn by two horses and operated by a boy. The exhibit was witnessed by about twenty-five people and all were convinced that the plow was what it is represented to be. The exhibit was made for J. Klossner Jr. & Co., which firm has contracted for the sale of the plow and have them on exhibition at their store in this city.

A GOLD MINE.

That is What a Good Potato Patch is This Year.

It is estimated that with the average yield of 200 bushels to the acre, 20,000 car loads of potatoes will be shipped out of the state this season. Estimating 800 bushels to the car and figuring at the prevailing price of $1 a bushel, the total amount realized from potatoes in Minnesota will be $16,000,000. This will be in addition to the amount consumed at home.

Minnesota vegetable farmers are this year the willing victims of circumstances. Favored by rains that have come at critical times, they have watched and tended a bountiful crop, for which the whole country waits with unclasped purses. This state has a corner on the market, not of its own making.

Yet Minnesota consumers share with the people of other states in the advance of prices. With commission men of other cities clamoring for shipments at advanced prices, the retailers of this city are forced into sharp competition on the market and at times they must make their selections from vegetables that would not bear shipment.

One farmer with a five acre "patch," two acres of which is planted in celery and two acres in cucumbers, boasts that his profits will equal that of any owner of a 100-acre field of grain.

Cabbage last year was shipped at a profit when the price was $4 a ton. This year the quotations are $40. The early crop was light, but late cabbage has developed splendidly and the yield will be up to the former standards.

Tomatoes at $1.50 a crate grow into money fast, even though the crop is only moderate.

In former years a gardner thought he was lucky if he could dispose of his cucumbers at 50 cents a bushel. He now asks 40 cents a dozen for them. Grocers get one cent an ear for green corn and they have to get down to the market early to get enough to supply their customers.

Commission men who are traveling through the state say that the farmers have deserted their fields of grain and are now devoting their entire attention to the care and harvest of their vegetable crop.—Pioneer Press.

Wild Turkeys.

John Verglund who lives in the neighborhood of Sleepy Eye, drove into town Tuesday with the dead carcasses of three big wild turkeys in his wagon. He secured a large box and throwing the dead turkeys into it, filled it with ice and said he would take them home for a harvest feast. Mr. Verglund's story of the capture of the birds was in effect, that he was approaching Cumming's ferry from the other side of the river when a flock of seven turkeys emerged from the woods into the road not ten rods ahead of him. It was a case of mutual surprise on all sides and for a moment he thought the fowls were of a domestic variety. A second glance convinced him of his error, and he seized his loaded shot gun which he usually takes along with him when driving along the river bottoms, and fired at the flock with both barrels just as they began to take to the woods. One of the turkeys was killed outright and the two others badly wounded. He gathered up his game and drove on to town. He says there are a good many of those birds along the bottoms this year.—Fairfax Standard.

It couldn't have been Sehell's or Hauensteins product this gentleman had. It must have been some foreign product. It is the opinion of hunters that a man would have to look more than twice to make a domestic turkey look like a wild one in these woods.

WHY NOT NEW ULM

Some Enterprising Philanthropist Wanted to Secure Public Baths for This City.

A Dr. OHAGE WANTED FOR NEW ULM

With Plenty of Good Water About the City There is Still no Suitable Place for Bathing.

The wonderful success of the public baths recently installed in St. Paul and secured only through the untiring efforts of one man, leads one to believe that a similar condition might prevail in this place if some man or the city council, for instance would take hold of it. There is a wonderful desire on the part of the people of this place to keep clean but there really is no good bathing place accessible, so that it is necessary to go some distance out of town to get a good swim.

Now it remains for the Council, the Business Men's Association or some other humanitarian organization to dredge out the Cottonwood river forming a basin of sufficient depth and size to accommodate bathers and construct an approach to it that will make the water accessible without having to walk through sand. Such an enterprise would cost but little and would be of inestimable benefit to the people of the city.

There would be no expense connected with running it. The only outlay would be the cost of deepening the pool and constructing the approaches. There might be better places and better ways. This is only thrown out as a suggestion. We care for our horses and other animals, why not look out a little for the good of the boys and girls who find pleasure and health in swimming.

A New System Needed.

The new primary election law presents a conundrum to the politicians. What will become of county, congressional and judicial organization? There will be no congressional conventions and no judicial conventions. The only county conventions will be those called to select delegates to the state convention. The old system will have to be replaced by something new, framed to fit the primary law.

There are three possible ways of selecting a county committee. First, let the candidates pick the committee, after the primary election; second, let the county convention which elects delegates to the state convention also name the campaign committee; third, the Minneapolis plan, adopted to conform with the primary law. This last is a sort of pyramid system and is gaining in favor. It will have many advocates, especially in Minneapolis, where its workings have given much satisfaction.

The objection to the first plan is that a committee distasteful to the county candidates have only seven weeks for work, and would take the reins from the old committee right in the middle of the state campaign. To do effective work for the state ticket, the same committee should handle the campaign all the way through.

The second plan is open to another objection. It might result in the naming of a committee distasteful to the county candidates and even hostile to some of them. This same objection might be urged against the Minneapolis plan, but the pyramid scheme has this advantage. It results in a committee chosen by the rank and file of the party. It gets more effective work out of the precinct committees.

Under the Minneapolis plan, when the voters of the party caucus for the county convention, each precinct selects a campaign committee of five. This committee meets and elects a chairman and secretary. The chairman of the precinct committees constitute the ward committee. Each ward committee elects a member of the county campaign committee, and in Hennepin county the country towns elect four members of this committee, making seventeen in all. In a rural county, one step in this progress would be left out, and the county committee would be even nearer the voters than it is in Hennepin.—Minneapolis Journal.

He Accepts the Call.

The Sentinel takes great pleasure in announcing that Rev. Geo. M. Eyrich, of New Ulm, formerly for many years pastor of the German Lutheran church of this city, but for the past four years located at New Ulm, has accepted the almost unanimous call of that congregation, to return here as its pastor. In the many years of his pastorate here Rev. Eyrich, endeared himself to all who met him both in and out of his own congregation. Under his administration the church became wealthy and prosperous, built and paid for their handsome church edifice and enjoyed a remarkable degree of prosperity. The whole city will extend to him a joyful and hearty welcome upon his return here.

Rev. George M. Eyrich was born at Tuttlingen, Germany, Oct. 17th, 1850. He received his education at two different colleges in Germany, and in 1871 came to the United States, entering Concordia College at St. Louis, where he took his theological course, graduating from that institution, and being ordained to preach at St. Paul in 1875. His first pastorate was at St. Peter, lasting nine months, when he went to Viola, Olmsted county, where he remained for almost six years, coming to Le Sueur in 1879, and remaining here until the fall of 1896. He is President of the Southern Minnesota District of the German Evangelical church, and is regarded as one of the strongest preachers of that denomination in the state.—Le Sueur Sentinel.

Summer School Closes.

In speaking of the closing of the summer school the Sleepy Eye Herald says:

As an evidence of the successfulness of the school we announce that fifteen certificates have been issued to as many persons for perfect attendance throughout the term, besides this there being many more with almost a clear record. Again the fact may be registered that the closing week has shown a wonderful rally in the attendance of those who were forced to stay away somewhat during harvesting, showing with what satisfaction they viewed and took up the work.

Professor Van Dyke visited the school Wednesday and delivered a profitable speech on penmanship. His remarks concerning the school were most optimistic and were gratifying to the instructors. He stated that with the possible exception of one other school that this was the best organized in the state. It showed a larger male attendance than any other school he had visited. He remarked upon the excellent building and facilities here stating that few could boast of as good and none of better accommodations.

Salzbrun Burns Out.

Henry Salzbrun seems to be having his share of fires for his household goods at Omaha burned out on Friday night of last week. From the World-Herald of that city is the following:

"A fire at 46th and Capitol avenues burned down a dwelling about 3 o'clock Friday morning. One Omaha fire company, then the Dundee fire company, then another Omaha fire company ran to the fire, but little was left to save. The house had been rented by a cigarmaker, who had moved in some of his goods and gone to Chicago to wed. The lessee of the building, which was owned by the Belknap Savings Co., was H. H. Salzbrun. Insurance was $2,000 on building and $2,000 on contents. Two theories are held by the neighbors—one that the fire was due to cigarettes smoked by paper-hangers and the other that it was the result of a mysterious explosion, which some claim to have heard."
