BEET SUGAR.

Ever since the establishment of the beet sugar plant at St. Louis Park, in 1896, the question of its being a paying venture has been doubtful, but it has finally so established itself and gained such a hold upon the interests of the state, that the railroads are now considering the question of assisting in the establishment of factories at various towns along their lines. The raising of beets for this purpose has been a minor consideration by most farmers, who consider the work too tedious, but there is no crop that yields as large returns per acre as the sugar beet, and the St. Louis Park factory has demonstrated that the manufacture of beet sugar from beets raised in this country is a paying industry. The most of Minnesota is in beet sugar belt, and especially the section surrounding this county where the land is most noticeably adapted to this vegetable, as if nature intended that at some time there should be a large factory established at this point. In Nebraska, where the highest per cent of sugar is found in the beet, they have factories in almost every town of any size, and are able to use up the entire product of the surrounding farms. This is big thing for the Nebraska farmer who so often is robbed of his profits from the usual farm products by the severe droughts that visit that country. Why wouldn't it be a good thing for the farmers of this vicinity if such an institution was established at this point? The usual price paid for beets is $5 a ton, and an acre of land will produce from six to ten tons of beets, depending on the way they are cultivated, and a man with an ordinary family of boys will find it but little additional work to care for a few acres. Farmers who are tired of raising only one kind of product on the farm might do worse than to look into the matter of raising sugar beets.

It is possible that President Roosevelt said that he expected to put the negro in the south on the same footing with the white man, but we doubt it very much. The time will never come in the south when the negro will be on the same footing with the white man.

The most dangerous foes of our free institutions are the men who are deriving the largest profits from the protection accorded them by our laws. From the anarchy of the poor, as a nation we have nothing to fear, though individuals have. It is the anarchy of the rich that strikes at the foundation of social order.—Broad Axe.

With farmers enquiring what they can do with their surplus money to make it bring the best returns, and the town people endeavoring to borrow money, it begins to look as though the farmer had a small monopoly on something. But the farmers of every county are not in such easy circumstances as those of this and any man who has stuck to the farm through all the various trials that have surrounded the farmers of this county is entitled to all the privileges and emoluments of the most aristocratic millionaire. Nobody is more worthy.

Tyranny and oppression never successfully accomplished any purpose, and those who would banish anarchists, persecute their families and destroy their property are making heroes of them. Ignorance lies at the base of anarchy as we see it and all people will never have a proper conception of what government is because all people are not capable of being so taught. With every follower of Emma Goldman banished there would in time raise up from the families of the most strict adherents of government a class that would trample under foot the teachings of their fathers. It is the same class that in the time of the ancient Hebrews cried, "Give us a king." They cannot appreciate the privileges they have. They will be with government as long as government lasts.

The passing of an ordinance making it a penalty for people to use the sidewalks for spitoon purposes, as recently advocated by the city attorney, will meet with the hearty approval of all decency-loving people. The ladies especially will hail such an ordinance with supreme delight. It is an advance move and the Review commends the council for their action in the matter. The matter of passing an ordinance to prevent people from leaving their horses on the streets almost indefinitely should also have been passed. There is some fear that it would have a tendency to drive away people from the city, but there is hardly anything in that. Most towns have such an ordinance and it works well. The city owes something to its dumb brutes as well as to the human part of its population.

MISGUIDED YOUTH.

Chester Jorgenson has entered the Herald office for the purpose of learning the printing business. Don't be a bit surprised that some day Chester will be one of Minnesota's successful newspaper men. They all began just where Chester has, and he is just beginning life.—Sleepy Eye Herald.

Poor boy! He has doubtless laid awake nights dreaming of those days to come when he will be the "we" that shall control the editorship of two or three columns of patent medicine ads, have people dictate to him the price of his labor, get kicked for doing the best he can and damned for not doing better. Hustle all week and on Saturday stand off the printer and the board bill and borrow money to get out the patents. Many there are who do this and the country would be better off without them, for all they see in the vocation they have is the iridescent gleam of the "comps" to shows and the passes the railroads give. False hopes! Van ambition!

But there are others, better blessed with that god-given power that makes their papers a factor for good, and though they never reach that high eminence to which the breezes of millions blow, they live to bless mankind, and when they die, with beautiful simplicity they wrap the drapery of their couch about them and lie down to pleasant dreams.

There are few such. They usually turn into post masters.

If a boy possesses the attributes of a detective with the eyes of an Angus; the nose of a sleuth hound, the tact of a woman, the endurance of a Sampson, the meekness of a Moses and the assurance of the devil he will succeed. It is always hustle, hustle, hustle to the end of a wasted life; bright, keen, brainy they trample under feet the roses of ambition, and grow bow-legged carrying out their self-made glory. Such is the thrall of this newspaper life that sucks heart and soul and life and brain for less pay than is given to any other business.

The young man who can walk out in the morning of life onto the highest peak of hope and look across these mountains of difficulty to where the sun shall set in splendor has assurance sufficient to make of himself an editor.

When one thinks of the terrible sacrifice of life that took place in the Philippines by the surprise of the United States troops he is led to say that the whole tribe of Filipinos should be swept from the earth. Then comes that other thought that they are human beings and fighting for what they are led to believe is their rights and to prevent oppression. War brings with it the most terrible consequences, and while we sympathize with the Boers we must have some charity for the people who in their ignorance cannot foresee the benefits that this government can give to them.

QUARTER OF A CENTURY.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lauterbach, assisted by the members of their family, and a number of relatives and friends, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage last Saturday, the celebration commencing with special services at St. Catharine's church at 8:15 in the morning, and followed by the arrival and reception of guests, commencing with the Northwestern morning train, and continuing up to the last train of the day. The guests present from abroad were John Henle and wife, Athanas Henle and Anton Henle, the three gentlemen being brothers of Mrs. Lauterbach, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Schlumberger, sister of Mrs. Lauterbach, Mrs. Elizabeth Henle, mother, Mrs. Theresa Henle, an aunt, and Mrs. Faith Henle, a cousin of Mrs. Lauterbach, all coming from New Ulm, and Jacob Sandmeyer of Bird Island. They all returned to their homes on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lauterbach were married 25 years ago last Saturday at New Ulm. They have resided at that place, and in and around Redwood Falls ever since. They are the parents of sixteen children thirteen of whom are living.—Redwood Gazette.

The Mermaid sat on the silvery sand combing her hair with a golden comb. If she had been wise, she would have used Dr. White's Electric Comb; it would have prevented her hair falling out and cured her dandruff. Unbreakable, always clean and ready for use Sent upon receipt of price, 50c [stamps taken]. D. N. Rose, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Aug. Seiter is visiting in Tracy with his son.

Mrs. Andrew Olin was the guest of her mother, Mrs. S. D. Peterson, all last week and on Saturday Mr. Olin came down from Franklin to stay over Sunday.

Dr. Floyd L. Muckey, throat and nose specialist, of Minneapolis, will be at the Dakota House in this city to treat all such patients, on Thursday, Oct. 10th, until 2 o'clock.

Miss Marie Bogen is in Grand Forks, N.D., where she is exhibiting specimens of needle work and lace of her own production. She has a very fine line some of which would be hard to beat anywhere.

Users of the Irish potato will note with pleasure that the price is moving steadily downward. The late potatoes are turning out much better than was anticipated and there is a good healthy crop coming in from the west. Potatoes will still be served as a side dish and not as a desert as some of the hearty eaters were expecting.

Our bargain days have just started. We will pay you 15 CENTS for your eggs until further notice. The Red Front Grocery. GEO. HAUENSTEIN.

The Lyman Twins at the Turner Hall did not attract as large a crowd as was anticipated and there was some complaint about their having left out many of the specialties. They were first class in the work they did and the show was well worth the price of admission. As a clean comedy-producing aggregation the Lyman Twins are all right and deserving of generous patronage wherever they go.

I have some good Northern Minnesota and North Dakota farm lands to trade for Town property, D. G. D'Evelyn, Madelia, Minn.

Jos. Haas, the genial base ball pitcher of New Ulm, is dead. He has been in New Mexico for some time fighting consumption, but without hope or effect, and on Monday last his friends at home received the news that he had passed away that day. Haas pitched several games for the Madelia team and had a number of friends here who will regret to hear of his death.—Madelia Times.

Dr. Kohler of Minneapolis will be in New Ulm, Sunday, Oct. 13th, after 1 p. m., at Dr. Strickler's office, to do eye, ear, nose and throat work.

The funeral of the late Joseph Haas was held from the Catholic church on Thursday and seldom has one so young in life been so sincerely mourned at death as has this young man. It was a sad impressive ceremony. It is hard when manhood reaches the portals of life and the door of success is turning on its hinges, to have the cruel winds of fate thus ruthlessly close it and bear the pilgrim into the great unknown. Life to us all is a riddle that none have solved.

The Misses Katie Schneider and Catherine Sunday announce that they have opened dressmaking parlors in the rooms upstairs next door to Mrs. Follmann's. 40-1f

The New Ulm high school foot ball team will play the Sleepy Eye team at the fair grounds on Saturday of this week. The expenses of the visiting team have to be paid and to do this the local team is going to charge a minimum price of admission. The patronage of this game should be generous as the boys have demonstrated that they can put up a good game. Both the teams are fresh from fields of victory and will exert themselves to the utmost so that it will be a game for blood. Let the field be full of New Ulm rooters.

Dr. Muckey, the throat specialist who comes here every week has an interesting lecture which he is giving to organizations that desire it, on the voice. He has made a complete study of that part of the human organization and has given the lecture to some of the best societies in the state. This week he gives it before the Watonwan Co. Medical association and but recently he gave it before an assembly of the teachers of Minneapolis. He says he is surprised at the few teachers who when asked to define the voice are able to give an intelligent answer. An outline of the lecture as given to the writer would seem to be the very thing for the high school of this city.

The carpenters on the new elevator are gradually getting up in the world and the bare walls of the elevator are rising skyward at a good rate. The ridge boards on the cupola of the elevator will be 127 feet from the ground when it is in place and from the top of this building it will be possible to get a bird's eye view of the vicinity for miles around. The new building is being constructed of the best material, in a modern manner and will be first class from footing stones to flag staff and be as convenient as it is large and commodious. The Milling Company will break ground for their new 2,400 barrel mill early in the spring and will have it ready for business as soon as possible.—Sleepy Eye Dispatch.

LOWERY ESCAPES.

Wm. Lowery who was arrested in this city and has been confined in the Mankato jail, took French leave on Wednesday last and has not been heard of since. The Review of that city gives the following account of him:

Lowery was arrested last spring in New Ulm on the charge of passing counterfeit silver dollars. He is suspected of having got rid of some of the bad money in Mankato prior of his going to New Ulm. At the hearing before Court Commissioner Eberhardt he was held to the United States grand jury, which will meet here in November. Owing to his failure to secure bondsmen he was committed to the Blue Earth county jail. The prisoner had always been on his good behavior and Sheriff Gerlich several times of late allowed him to go into the basement to wash clothing and to perform other labor, but he was watched carefully. This morning he was in the basement for a while but an eye was kept on him while there. Just before he entered the office Deputy Sheriff Gerlich was called away and Sheriff Gerlich was out of the city, being in Medo. The other attendants at the jail were busy and Lowery disappeared.
