Arrested Wandering Willies.

Officer Jos. Tauer raided a gang of hoboes early Thursday morning and gathered in four of them, two making their escape. One of the tourists put up a stiff fight, pulling a large piece of cloth from the policeman's uniform, but the latter quickly reduced him to submission and the others came along peaceably. In Judge Henningsen's court Thursday Frank Ritter, the man who fought, was given ten days in the county jail for being drunk and Harry McKee and Maurice Fitzgerald were sentenced to five days confinement at hard labor. The fourth, Frank Moore, was also given five days for vagrancy, but as he had his small son with him the court suspended sentence on condition that he leave town. Later in the day McKee and Fitzgerald, who were put to work on the streets, threw up their jobs with Commissioner Klatz and took French leave of New Ulm.

HORSES KILLED BY TRAIN

Were Run Down Near Milford Monday Morning.

Caught in a Trestle They Are Slaughtered Outright.

Animals Were the Property of Wm. Hoffmann of Milford.

Four valuable horses and a suckling colt belonging to Wm. Hoffmann, the large farmer of Milford township, were killed by a Chicago & North-western train early Monday morning. They had wandered into the right of way and in attempting to escape from the train ran out upon a short trestle. There they were struck by the engine, three of them being killed outright and two having their legs broken.

The train which did the damage was an extra freight in charge of Conductor Gunn and Engineer Carroll. They were bound east and just before 5:30 passed the Milford switch, and when the train was running down the grade at a speed of about thirty miles an hour, they came upon the horses.

The animals, five in number, had in some manner entered the right of way and were lying down in a clump of tall weeds beside the track. Upon the approach of the locomotive they leaped to their feet and sped down the track ahead of it. Engineer Carroll saw the danger at once and set the air brakes, but the bridge was too close and before he could bring his train to a stop the horses had dashed out upon the framework, were caught in the ties, and he was upon them.

Three of them, a mare, a yearling gelding and the colt, were killed instantly, and the other two, one-year-old and three-year-old mares, had their legs broken and were otherwise injured; it being necessary to dispatch them later. They were all fine, large animals and Mr. Hoffmann's loss is estimated at between $650 and $700, which will doubtless be paid him in full by the railroad company. The engine did not leave the rails and there was no damage to rolling stock.

Will Exhibit Again.

Martin Penning, the prominent Home farmer and well known horticulturalist, was in New Ulm Thursday and dropped into the Review office for a pleasant chat. Mr. Penning informs us that this fall he will follow his custom of sending an exhibit of fruit to the state fair and hopes to make it the best that has yet represented his orchards. At the fair last year fifteen varieties of his plums were given first premiums and as a result his reputation as a fruit raiser has spread far beyond the confines of Brown county. He is recognized as an authority upon horticultural matters and the products of his orchards have no superiors in the state.

FELL FROM MOVING TRAIN

Young Man Was Badly Hurt Monday Afternoon.

Thrown From Passenger Train Underneath Bridge.

Benjamin Fredrickson Sustains Severe Injuries to Spine.

Benjamin Fredrickson of Hanska, was terribly injured in this city Monday afternoon. He was thrown from the northbound Minneapolis & St. Louis passenger train down a steep embankment and sustained injuries which may cause his death or else cripple him for the remainder of his natural life.

Fredrickson boarded the St. Louis train at Hanska to come to New Ulm on business. On the way to this city he fell asleep and was carried by the station. When he awoke, according to his version of the affair, he had no idea of where he was and walked out upon the platform to learn his whereabouts. He was, he says, only partially awake and a sudden jolt of the train caused him to lose his balance and fall from the steps. He has a dim recollection of catching at something in his descent but was unable to support himself and the next instant was dashed to the earth.

Passengers on the train were of the opinion that he had jumped but his story is borne out by the fact that there is a spot on the embankment which shows where his body came in contact with the gravel.

The accident occurred about two o'clock and a few minutes later Fredrickson was discovered by two boys, Fred Strunk and Arthur Dingler, who were fishing. He was lying beneath the approach to the Minnesota river bridge and was in a partially unconscious condition. They questioned him for some time and at length succeeded in securing a coherent account of the catastrophe from him, but in the meantime Conductor Deving had telegraphed from Klossner that a man had jumped from the train near the river bridge two miles north of the city.

Dr. O. C. Strickler was notified and taken to the scene on a handcar. He saw at once that the man could not be moved on the car and returned for a three-seated rig and a cot. On this the victim was placed face downward and conveyed to St. Alexander hospital, where it was found that his injury was to his spine. He has a bad swelling in the small of his back and although he can move his limbs, indicating that his back is not broken, it is known that he is very badly hurt. He can lie only in one position, on his face, but it will be several days before the exact extent of the concussion can be determined.

The injured man is about 22 years of age and a son of Hans Fredrickson, residing ten miles south of Hanska. His relatives were notified Monday afternoon and reached here in the evening. Yesterday Fredrickson's condition was slightly improved but he is still in a precarious state. His recovery will necessarily be slow and it will be some time before physicians can state with accuracy what the result of his injury will be. Appearances now seem to indicate that the spinal cord is not affected and he may in time make a complete recovery.

Naval Officer on Furlough.

Lieut. A. M. Beecher, of the United States navy, will arrive today for a short visit at the home at the home of his brother, H. L. Beecher. Lieut. Beecher is now acting as ordinance officer of the new battleship Maine, reputed to be the most powerful vessel in the American navy. She is now in dock at the League Island navy yard, Philadelphia, having recently returned from a cruise in southern waters. The cruise was made for the purpose of testing her ordinance and it was found that there were several flaws in her big guns. While these are being remedied Lieut. Beecher has been granted a short leave of absence, a few days of which he will spend with his mother in this city. He expects to return to Philadelphia Saturday.

Give Social Friday.

Friday afternoon and evening the ladies of the Congregational church will give an ice cream social. Should the weather be favorable the social will be held on the church lawn but if it is cold the church parlors will be brought into requisition. Proceeds from the social are to go toward the fund for the improvement of the parsonage and for that reason a large attendance is desired.

MANY FINGERS SCORCHED

Youth of New Ulm Celebrated in Royal Style.

Several Touched Business End of the Explosives.

Doctors Kept Busy Dressing Their Smarting Burns.

Some of the younger patriots came to grief through their energy Saturday. New Ulm had almost enough Fourth of July casualties to stock a metropolitan celebration and there are a number of youngsters who are now wearing their limbs and features in honorable bandages. Singed fingers and burns of every description were the order of the day and a few serious cases have been reported. The first accident was in the morning to a 7-year-old son of Emil Kachel. The little fellow was vying with his companions in shooting fire crackers and was furnishing no end of enthusiasm until one of them exploded in his hand; a piece of burning paper setting fire to his trousers. He scurried home but it might have fared badly with him had not Albert Kiesling caught the screaming child and extinguished the blazing garments. Dr. J. H. Vogel dressed burns on his right hand and leg.

Little George Lohmeyer was injured in a peculiar manner. He withstood the bombardment of the day like a veteran and came out unscathed, but in the evening he was hurt. It came about through his carrying a bunch of fire crackers in his blouse, for as he was discharging a Roman candle his reserve ammunition was ignited and he sustained a painful burn across the abdomen.

A lead-pipe cannon proved the undoing of a 17-year-old son of Arnold Gulden. He was priming the artillery for an unusually telling shot when suddenly it exploded, scorching all of the exposed parts of his body. His hair and eyebrows were singed, his face and neck scorched and his right hand and arm severely burned. Dr. G. B. Weiser attended.

Louis Roth, the 13-year-old son of John Roth, the Klossner merchant, kept his powder in a tin can and himself in too close proximity when the crash came. In some manner a spark dropped into the improvised cussion and the result nearly cost him his right eye. When the smoke cleared away he was found to have been very badly burned about the face. Dr. Weiser was summoned and removed several grains of powder from the eyeball. The effects, however, will not be serious and he will not lose the use of the organ.

Louis Hoffmann, aged 18 years, knows how it seems to face belching cannon. His piece was of the toy variety but when it exploded prematurely it did considerable execution. He received the charge of powder full in his face and for a time was completely blinded. Sunday a physician removed several particles of the explosive from his eyeballs and also from the skin about his nose and cheeks. His experience will not cost him his sight but it was painful in the extreme.

In addition to the above there were any number of minor accidents. Almost every boy could sport a burn more or less painful and by evening they were a very smart set. In the state at large an amazing number of casualties are reported, there being a percentage of injuries which would relegate the ordinary battle to the rear. There are upwards of 1,200 cases where serious injury was sustained and in a few of these the hurts will prove fatal.

Young People Marry.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning in Holy Trinity Catholic church Rev. Father H. B. Sandmeyer pronounced the words which made man and wife of Miss Rose M. Forster and Dr. Edward W. Gag. The bride is an accomplished and popular young lady, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Forster, Sr., while her husband is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gag of Cottonwood township. This spring he graduated from the medical department of the University of Illinois and has opened an office for the practice of his profession at Wabasso. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Washington street home of the bride's parents and last evening a reception was given in honor of the newly married couple. This morning they will leave for their future home at Wabasso. The Review joins with the many friends of both in extending congratulations.

A Lutheran mission feast will be held Sunday afternoon on College Heights.
