

New Ulm Review

Wednesday, January 20th, 1904.

In the matter of the candidates for governor the republicans do not seem to take into consideration a democratic candidate. In fact no person has been mentioned for that office on an opposing ticket. Now that John Lind is out of the way, it is apparent that a republican nomination is considered as good as an election and it is little wonder there is an early and vigorous scramble for the place.

The prosperity of the south is drawn from the resources of the north. Cotton, the staple product of that country has advanced in price beyond all precedent and the result is that cotton goods in this city are advanced in price beyond that of many years and the end is not in sight. Now if our wheat could be forced up to a like standard we would all handle more money but the question is, would we be better off?

War at all times and in any place is horrible, and the farther it is away from us the better we all feel about it, at the same time there is no other one thing that adds so much to the benefit of the people who deal in the necessities of life as the massing of large armies. The recent scare in the east, whether it comes to actual hostilities or not, has already had the effect of raising the price of many articles and particularly what the farmer has to sell, and should a protracted war ensue there is no doubt but that the coming year will see an era of good times for those who are not mixed up in the struggle.

It is not necessary to go into any elaborate discussion of the merits of Walker Whiteside as an entertainer for New Ulm audiences. He has always drawn large houses—in fact the largest of any actor who has appeared in the city. In his new play he exceeds anything previously undertaken and will be welcomed on next Monday night by a good house. Following the rare treat that Hanford gave in the "The Taming of the Shrew," the people will be given an opportunity to compare the merits of two of the best actors on the American stage. New Ulm is fortunate in being in a position to secure these best entertainments and the efforts of the management should be rewarded by a generous recognition on the part of the people.

The case of the Nelson boys, which has been up before the Board of Pardon during the past week, is a case wherein the fault seems to lie at the doors of the people who have violated the state laws in regard to selling minors intoxicating drinks. It has been plainly shown that the boys were sold drinks on the day the murder was committed, and that nothing has been done with the people who sold them the drinks. Now that a conviction has been secured and they have been sentenced to hang there is a cry from those who are interested in the boys to the effect that others are equally with them in violating the law. It is a case similar to the Iroquois fire suits that are springing up. As long as no person was injured by the violation of the law the transgressors were allowed to go unmolested. People seem to think that laws are made to punish instead of to prevent crime and protect the innocent. If there was more of the enforcement of law before crime is committed there would be less of prosecution as a result of the lax methods of those who are sworn to see that the statutes of the states are lived up to.

Christmas at Sea.

H. L. Beecher is in receipt of a letter from his brother, Lieut. James S. Beecher, of the United States navy, in which the officer gives an interesting account of his Christmas at sea. The letter was written from the port of St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, where his ship, the Monongahela, arrived on December 27th, and in it Lieut.

Beecher says that on Christmas eve all of the wardroom officers hung up their stockings. The junior officer, the baby of the mess, was a young ensign and in the morning his hoisery was found to contain a nursing bottle filled with condensed milk. Other jokes were perpetrated in the name of Kris Kringle, but the distinct feature of the Yuletide celebration was the cutting of an English plum pudding, sent to the officers of the Monongahela by the captain's wife.

HANFORD SATISFIES ALL

Eminent Actor Presents "Taming of the Shrew."

It is doubtful if Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew has ever had a better presentation anywhere, than that given in Turner Theatre by Chas. Hanford and his excellent company in this city Thursday evening. As Petruchio Mr. Hanford lacks nothing. From the moment he meets Katherine the rich comedy that Shakespeare has so aptly originated is manifest and the spirit of his witty lines kept the audience laughing most of the time. The genius of the man shows in his ready adaptation to all circumstances. This is appreciated better by those who have read the play and know that to rightly understand it one must see Hanford interpret it.

While Mr. Hanford was the star of the evening he did not far outshine Miss Marie Dronah, as Katherine, the Shrew. She left little room for criticism in the part she took and at all times the expression of disdainful contempt that makes her the character which gives the play its name, stood out in lifelike reality till one was almost compelled to believe that the woman was really possessed of the temper she assumed. The two leading actors in the "Taming of the Shrew" may be said to be the best that have appeared upon the stage in this city.

The support throughout was excellent; the principal figure being Grunio, Petruchio's serving man and the clown of the play. The part was taken by Caryl Gillin and it would be difficult to find a better.

This is Mr. Hanford's first appearance in the city and his merits were unknown to New Ulm theatre goers so that the audience was not what it should have been. It is safe to say that another appearance of this artist will fill the entire house. There was not a person who expressed dissatisfaction or disappointment of any kind through some thought that as "Haversack" in the "Old Guard" Mr. Hanford did better acting. The types are so distinct, however, that it is only by contrast they can be measured and one can only say that he is excellent in both.

Early Settlers as Scientists.

Press dispatches from Berlin say that a prominent German scientist has discovered that fish may be frozen solid and still live. This fact, says Capt. S. A. George, was known to Brown county pioneers fully forty years ago. In the early days, he declares, the settlers conducted scientific investigations along the banks of the Cottonwood. They would catch a string of pickerel and in taking them to their homes the fish would freeze, but upon being thrown into a spring would soon revive and go to swimming about. However, the pioneers attached little importance to their discovery and had no idea that it would ever startle the associated press.

Pint Wants the Money.

Peter J. Pint, village marshal at Sanborn, has made application for horse thief bounty and asks that he be paid a reward of $200. Pint is the officer who arrested John Sullivan, the Duluth boy who pleaded guilty to stealing a horse near Springfield and who is now serving a term in the St. Cloud reformatory. The Sanborn marshal declares that he worked up the case without assistance and has intimated that he needs the money. Judge B. F. Webber will hear his application in chambers at 4 o'clock next Saturday afternoon.

WHITESIDE'S NEW COMEDY

Young Actor to Appear Here Next Monday.

Third Visit of this Distinguished Actor to This City.

His Vehicle a Charming Comedy by Lieut. Gordon Kean.

On next Monday evening, January 25th, the patrons of the Turner Theatre will have their third opportunity of witnessing that ever popular actor, Mr. Walker Whiteside. For the present season Mr. Whiteside has abandoned the field of Shakesperian tragedy and enter the lighter, but evidently more profitable, one of romantic comedy.

His new play comes from the pen of Lieut. Gordon Kean, an Englishman, and whilst it savors in some respects of the "Prisoner of Zenda" yet its motif is different and the manner of working the ending—a happy one in this case—is entirely different. Both are pleasing.

MR. WALKER WHITESIDE

IN WE ARE KING

When the piece was put on in Minneapolis a few weeks ago the dramatic critic of the Times reviewed it entertainingly as follows:

"In the first place we are warned by the man before the show that 'We Are King' is not to be taken seriously, but for once a courtesy must be refused. Speaking editorially, not royally, we much prefer to consider it seriously, as a most charming little comedy, rife with amusing, stirring situations, containing some witty lines, well staged and altogether entertaining.

"Mr. Whiteside, undoubtedly clever though he is, has not always been fortunate in his selection of plays. "In the present instance, however, he or someone for him, conceived the idea of satirizing such plays as have dealt with royal imaginary kingdoms—or romantic characters in real reigns—and managed to evolve a comedy in which one is continually reminded of 'If I Were King,' 'A Royal Family,' 'The Prisoner of Zenda' and others of that ilk, but while claiming little or nothing in originality the result has been that most happy accident—a really amusing little comedy. Its quick changes from grave to gay, its palpable absurdities, colored by the glamour of possibility which gilds the fairy tale, to our undoing, all contribute to its pleasing brightness, and incidentally, or primarily, which you please, serve to accentuate the fact that Walker Whiteside has found a congenial role in which the excellence and finish of his work are perfectly patent.

"In brief, the plot starts him at the Pegasus club, London, with an exploded literary career. Then he is sent by a London paper to the little Kingdom of Rahburg—somewhere, anywhere, possibly nowhere, to write amusing letters back for the edification of the London breakfast table.

"On his arrival his likeness to the king of Kahnburg pushes him headlong into a revolutionary plot and he awakes to find himself, first king of Kahnburg by trick and finally by right of birth. There it is in a nutshell—the kernel you may discover in the delightful interpretation given the role by Walker Whiteside.

"In the company are three pretty women, all of them fair actresses, all of them well gowned, two of them more than a little charming.

"The work of Miss Hardiman, a member of the company not with Mr. Whiteside last year, is particularly commendable.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Tells How He Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters by Using Pe-ru-na.

Mr. Brock's Age is 114 Years.

MR. ISAAC BROCK, BORN IN BUNCOMBE CO., N. C., MARCH 1, 1788. His age is 114 years, vouched for by authentic record. He says: "I attribute my extreme old age to the use of Pe-ru-na."

Born before the United States was formed. Saw 22 Presidents elected. Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes. Veteran of four wars. Shot a horse when 99 years old. Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na. Witness in a land suit at the age of 110 years. Believes Pe-ru-na the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal diseases.

A short time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture. In his hand he held a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson, which has been carried by him ever since. Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude. His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 114 years ago.

Surely a few words from this remarkable old gentleman, who has had 114 years of experience to draw from, would be interesting as well as profitable. A lengthy biographical sketch is given of this remarkable old man in the Waco Times-Herald, December 4, 1898. A still more pretentious biography of this, the oldest living man, illustrated with a double column portrait, was given the readers of the Dallas Morning News, dated December 11, 1898, and also the Chicago-Times Herald of same date.

This centenarian is an ardent friend of Peruna, having used it many years. In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so."

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 114 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States."

"I have always been a very healthy man, but of course subject to the little affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds and diarrhoea."

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy."

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it keeps me in good appetite; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine."

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease."

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing."

Yours truly,

Isaac Brock,

For a free book on catarrh, address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O. If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

MR. WALKER WHITESIDE

IN WE ARE KING

"Mr. Mitchell's Count Saxendorf is also good, but the action and acting culminate in the star. Incidentally what a charming voice has Mr. Whiteside!

"The play permits of excellent sets and the opportunity to present them attractively has been fully grasped. The first set in the prologue, the Pegasus Club, London, might be improved, but the king's hunting lodge, the royal gardens and the tapestry hung throne room are all harmonious and artistic.

"In short 'We Are King' sends one home in a decidedly pleasant frame of mind, the mood produced by cold oysters—and cold other things. 'Bubbles?'—Well, perhaps, but 'bubbles' without a headache."

Ice Cutting Finished.

W. Miller, known as the Winona ice king and the man who has filled the ice houses of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad for several seasons, completed his operations at this point last week. Mr. Miller had a crew of twenty or thirty men here for about ten days and in that time shipped out more than eighty carloads of the flinty. He cut the ice in the Minnesota river and supplied the houses at Sleepy Eye, Tracy, Mankato and Watertown, S. D. Friday afternoon he finished filling what a charming voice has Mr. Whiteside!

Voted to Consolidate.

Flandreau Camp, No. 1542, M. W. A., has ceased to exist. Last Wednesday evening at a meeting of the order, its members voted to consolidate with Harmony Camp, No. 2097, and to assume the name of the latter. Some slight opposition was encountered but the majority of those present were in favor of merging the lodges and reducing the expense. The officers recently elected by Harmony Camp will hold office during the coming year and the lodge will have a membership of more than two hundred.

CALUMET Baking Powder

Leaves the smallest and most healthful residue in the food. Food prepared with Calumet Baking Powder is pure and healthful, and is free from Rochelle salts, alum, lime and ammonia.

Trust Baking Powders sell for 45 or 50 cents per pound and may be identified by this exorbitant price. They are a menace to public health, as food prepared from them contains large quantities of Rochelle salts, a dangerous cathartic drug.
