Last Mountain Valley Lands

We own thousands of acres of Choice Selected Land in this district, which is right in the heart of the Great Wheat Plains of Saskatchewan. The richness of the soil in this district is shown in the reports to the Government which give an average of 12 1/2 bushels of wheat to the acre for 1906. The great development of this part of Western Canada has brought about the competition of railroads. Ample timber for fuel and fencing. Send 15c for beautiful new souvenir book, entitled "The Lake and the Land of the Last Mountain Valley." Also 20c Century Atlas of Canada sent with souvenir book. Write today. When your Watch Stops.
You cannot make it go by shaking it. When the bowels are constipated you can disturb them with cathartics but, like the watch, they will not be able to do their allotted work until they are put into proper condition to do it.

One cannot mend a delicate piece of mechanism by violent methods, and no machine made by man is as fine as the human body.

The use of pills, salts, castor-oil and strong cathartic medicines is the violent method. The use of the herb tonic laxative, Lane's Family Medicine is the method adopted by intelligent people.

Headache, backache, indigestion, constipation, skin diseases—all are benefited immediately by the use of this medicine.

Druggists sell it at 25c. and 50c.

This Will Please The Grocers.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1, 1907.—There has been filed with the Department of Agriculture here, one of the strongest documents we have ever seen. It guarantees that Jell-O and Jell-O Ice Cream Powder are strictly pure and comply with the requirements of the National Pure Food Law. The guarantee is filed under serial number 1534, and protects absolutely all wholesale and retail grocers who handle the products named. Jell-O and Jell-O Ice Cream Powder are well thought of in official circles and their purity and wholesomeness has never been questioned.

"We never repent of eating too little."

was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at a high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a Little Kodol For Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by Eugene A. Pfeifferle.

Endorsed By The County.

"The most popular remedy in Otsego County, and the best friend of my family," writes Wm. M. Dietz, editor and publisher of the Otsego Journal, Gilbertsville, N. Y. "is Dr. King's New Discovery. It has proved to be an infallible cure for coughs and colds, making short work of the worst of them. We always keep a bottle in the house. I believe it to be the most valuable prescription known for Lung and Throat diseases." Guaranteed to never disappoint the taker, by O. M. Olsen, Drug Store. Price, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Get What You Ask For.

When you see an article well-advertised in the newspapers, you may be sure it's a good article, for advertising only pays if the goods are honest and possess merit. The people who make a specialty of one advertised article, like Cascarets, Candy Cathartic for example, stake their whole business existence on it's doing what they say it will. They must "make good" as the saying is. Readers of this paper are urged to be sure that they get what they ask for when they ask for an advertised article, for it's the good thing that is imitated and counterfeited. Don't accept substitutes! Insist on getting the genuine!

Those who have stomach trouble, no matter how slight, should give every possible help to the digestive organs, so that the food may be digested with the least effort. This may be done by taking something that contains natural digestive properties—something like Kodol For Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Kodol is a preparation of vegetables acids and contains the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It digests what you eat. Sold by Eugene A. Pfeifferle.

LEMON FOR A MASHER.

How a Virginia Woman Squelched a Flirt on Shipboard.

Passengers on the Carmania, which recently arrived at New York from Liverpool, took great delight in telling about the impressive manner in which the "lemon" treatment had been administered to an English chappie who had made himself extremely obnoxious to most of the good looking women on board, says the New York World. The presentation took place on the main deck a few afternoons ago.

The fact that a woman happened to be with her husband made no difference to the British masher. He simply threw the persuasion power of his glances on to the last notch. It was no wonder that on the second day out several angry husbands assembled in the cafe and held a council of war. "Leave him to me," said Mrs. H. O. Jackson, the wife of a prominent inventor of Norfolk, Va., when she heard of the husbands' meeting. "I'll teach him a lesson he won't forget in a hurry."

Unaware of the manner in which sentiment against him was crystallizing, the self-satisfied tourist stuck valiantly to his task of winning smiles. Every time he appeared on deck he was draped in a sartorial sensation, his taste in hosiery running to pigeon blue and elephant's breath. "Be on the main deck this afternoon," whispered Mrs. Jackson to all the folks the other morning. They were all there, and presently they saw Mrs. Jackson and a woman friend doing a little road work. When the masher made his appearance Mrs. Jackson tossed him a shy little glance. That settled it. He fell in behind, and to his great satisfaction the women seemed to be greatly excited over his attentions.

Mrs. Jackson waited until they reached a point where the interested spectators could see them. Then she turned and held her hand toward him in a friendly manner. He reached for it and when he drew back his palm clutched an overgrown lemon! The laughter that followed rocked the boat. The men hooted and the men shouted, "Make mine a lemonade, Mr. Bartender!" The Englishman, in utter confusion, stumbled to his room and remained there until long after the other passengers disembarked.

WAITER'S ART KNOWLEDGE.

Anecdote Recalled by the Death of St. Gaudens, the Sculptor.

The recent death of Augustus St. Gaudens recalls a story which appeared in a German paper some years ago. A party of Americans, so went the story, were lingering over the last course of a long dinner at the Schweizerhof, in Lucerne, one evening, discussing the works of art which they had seen in Italy. The conversation drifted to art in America, the sculptors of note and their creations. The works of St. Gaudens were enumerated and one of the party said, "It seems to me you have missed one," and then everybody's thinking cap was adjusted, but, while several members of the company agreed that there was a St. Gaudens in America somewhere which had not been mentioned, no one could name it. After the Americans had called themselves "foolish" and "so stupid" the waiter, who had listened, as waiters do, at a respectful distance and with stony face, went a step nearer and in good English said:

"Beg pardon, gentlemen; I worked at a hotel near Madison square, in New York, several years. Possibly you are trying to think of the Farragut monument." He was right. "That waiter," the story teller said, "was the son of a large hotel owner, a college man, and probably knew as much about art as the men whom he served with food and information."

Child's Difficult Climb.

Ida Liechte, ten years old, has climbed the Jungfrau with three Alpinists and two guides, says a special cablegram from Interlaken, Switzerland, to the New York Times. The party started from Eismeer station at 3 p. m. the other afternoon and spent the night at Berglühite, from which point the remainder of the ascent was completed in five and one-half hours. The climb was exceedingly difficult, owing to the strong wind and severe cold. Ida Liechte is the daughter of the director of the Jungfrau railway and is the youngest Alpine climber of renown.

THE SHEIK RAISULI.

Snapping his thumbs at the throbs of the drum.
Of the armies that rally to scare him,
Raisuli sits calm 'neath a sheltering palm
And winks at a mix in his harem.
"They're so hot on my trail that I ought to turn pale."
He chuckles, untroubled and coolly,
"For I've kindled their ire and the vengeance
is dire
That they'll wreak on the Sheik Raisuli!"

Then he swings his gaunt knees with in-different ease
O'er the back of a fiery stallion,
Gallop merrily forth to the sea circled north
And comes back with a captured battalion.
He proclaims what he'll do to a colonel or two Unless they are paid for all duly.
And to get their release the pursuers must cease
To seek for the Sheik Raisuli.

The warships may roar, and a whole army corps
May plot for his swift extirpation,
And they can't understand it because one lone bandit
Can hand them the harsh cachinnation.
Though he's bold and he's bad, we could almost feel glad
If some of our warriors had truly
In the innermost parts of their battle scarred hearts
Just a streak of the Sheik Raisuli.
—James J. Montague in New York American.

EASY FOR MORPHY.

Story of the Great Chess Master and a Celebrated Painting.

Paul Morphy, on his visit to Philadelphia, was the guest of a clergyman, the Rev. Mr. H. On his arrival at the minister's home the chess master was first ushered into the library, and his attention was at once attracted by a painting over the mantel, which was a fine copy of a celebrated painting representing a game of chess between a young man and the devil, the stake being the young man's soul.

The artist had most graphically depicted the point in the game where it was apparently the young man's move, and he seemed just to realize the fact that he had lost the game, the agony of despair being shown in every line of his features and attitude, while the devil from the opposite side of the table gloated over him with fiendish delight. The position of the game appeared utterly hopeless for the young man, and Mr. H. said he had often set it up and studied it with his chess friends, and all agreed the young man's game was certainly lost.

Mr. Morphy walked up to the picture and studied it for several minutes, when finally, turning to Mr. H., he said:

"I can win the game for the young man."

Mr. H. was of course astonished and said, "Is it possible?"

Mr. Morphy replied, "Get out the men and board and let us look at it."

The position was set up, and in a few rapid moves he demonstrated a complete win for the young man, and the devil was checkmated.

Rice at Weddings.

At a wedding breakfast, according to What to Eat, a bridesmaid was heard to tell the true reason for rice being used at weddings. It was once believed that if on their wedding journey a newly wedded couple saw a flock of doves it would mean a long life of peace and happiness to them. A bridegroom in passing so frightened a flock of these timid birds that they flew away in great alarm, and to avert the evil omen that their flight signified for the newly married couple rice was thrown in great quantities to lure the birds back to the place from which they had flown. This plan was so successful that the wedded pair went on their way rejoicing and lived ever afterward a happy and prosperous life. Since then rice has been used as a symbol of good luck, peace and happiness at weddings.
