

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.
How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or setting, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Weak Kidneys

Give more trouble than any other organ of the body. The function of the kidneys is to separate inorganic salt and water in the process of circulation, and to remove them and the attendant poisons from the body through the bladder. Therefore when the kidneys are diseased and weak they are naturally unable to perform their work properly, and waste in the back, inflammation of the bladder and urinary disorders are the result. It is impossible unless you remove the cause.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills promptly eliminate poisons from the system and at the same time make the kidneys well and strong.

For Weak Kidneys, Backache, Inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are unsurpassed.

Minnesota's Capitols

Various Structures Which Have Been In Use Since the Territory Was Organized

It will be sixty years next winter since St. Paul became the seat of Minnesota's state government, although in the meantime there have been several spirited attempts to secure the coveted honor for various other places. During that period several buildings have been used as executive headquarters.

In 1848 St. Paul was a mission station and showed no signs whatever of becoming the capital of a great northwestern commonwealth. Stillwater was a settlement of even greater promise, owing to its lumber trade, and there were a few groups of adventurous traders at the head of Lake Superior and in the Red river valley. These sparse settlements had been a part of Wisconsin when it was a territory, but when it became a state they were not included. Nothing daunted, the pioneers sent a delegate to congress, H. H. Sibley, who in time secured the organization of a new territory.

Stephen A. Douglas was then chairman of the senate committee on territories, and he undertook to name it Itasca. Somebody else preferred Jackson, and he offered an amendment to that effect. Both Washington and Chippewa were proposed, but finally it was christened Minnesota, the land of lakes and waters that reflect the sky. Mr. Douglas had made a trip to the new country, and he made up his mind that Mendota was the proper site for the capital. Mr. Sibley, the delegate, lived at Mendota, but he was in favor of St. Paul. He prevailed, and St. Paul was named in the bill. Six weeks later the first governor of the new territory arrived on the ground. He was Alexander Ramsey of Pennsylvania, and he came May 27 on the first steamer that made its way through the ice. He opened an executive office in St. Paul and proceeded to do business.

The capitol "boarded around" for a few years. The sessions of the first legislature were held at the Central House, a two story log building. Here for awhile the business of the government and hotel keeping were conducted on the same premises. The first session took no steps to establish a capitol. The rival claimants to the honor of becoming the capital were busy laying plans. The second session of the legislature was held in a brick building on St. Anthony street. After the usual bitter controversy St. Paul won the capitol. In 1851 a site was secured and the first capitol was begun. It was of brick, with a rudimentary dome, egg shaped, and it stood until 1881. It cost $40,000. While it was building the legislature met in various makeshift localities. At the second session of the fourth legislature the new capitol was ready and the lawmakers moved into it. Almost immediately it was found inadequate and reconstruction began. In 1881, while both houses were in session, fire started in the cupola, and the building was burned to the ground.

There was an immediate reopening of the capital fight. The St. Paul folks offered their newly built Market hall for temporary use. During the night the citizens fitted up the hall and in the morning the legislature resumed business. This promptness and enterprise on the part of the citizens of St. Paul won the fight. Market hall was used as a capitol until 1883, when the decidedly imposing structure occupied as a capitol until the present magnificent building was ready for use was finished.

Most picturesque of all the fights to remove the capitol from St. Paul to various other places was the theft of the bill which would have given the prize to St. Peter by the Hon. Joe Rolette. The bill passed the council by a vote of eight to seven and went through the house after a hot battle. Governor Gorman was ready to sign it. Rolette was chairman of the committee on enrolled bills, and the document was in his hands to compare with the original. When the bill came up for consideration it could not be found. It had disappeared, and so had Rolette. Search was made for him, but he could not be found. He did not reappear until the session had adjourned sine die, and the capitol remained at St. Paul.

The State Seal of Minnesota

The first official record of a state seal is in the message of Governor Ramsey to the first territorial legislature, Sept. 9, 1849, in which he says, "A temporary great seal of the territory of Minnesota has been adopted, an impression of which will be submitted." But for some reason the seal was never used, another being authorized.

This was used as the great seal of Minnesota until 1858. It bears the date at the bottom, "1849." The device is much the same as the present state seal. A farmer is plowing in the foreground, but facing to the west. His rifle, powder horn, etc., are leaning on a stump near him. In the distance, to the left, is the falls of St. Anthony, and an Indian on horseback riding rapidly eastward, toward what appears to be a rising sun. Over the device is the motto, "Quo sursum volo videre," the third word a misprint for volo, the whole meaning "I wish to see what lies beyond."

This seal was ridiculed more or less by journalists, who said it represented "a man plowing one way and looking another," or "an astonished Indian and a scared white man" etc.

At the first session of the state legislature the question of a state seal was taken up. Several months elapsed before the present seal was engraved and put into use, and when it was found that the elaborate design proposed in Mr. Folsom's report had not been adopted, but that the device of the old territorial seal had been used, with a little change. The motto was "L'Etoile du Nord" (the North Star).

The State Flag of Minnesota

The state legislature of 1893 provided for the adoption of a state flag. Mrs. Franklyn L. Greenleaf, Mrs. A. A. White, Mrs. Edward Durant, Mrs. F. B. Clarke, Mrs. H. F. Brower and Mrs. A. T. Stebbins were by this act commissioned to select and adopt an appropriate design, and on Feb. 28, 1893, met, selected and adopted the design presented by Mrs. Edward H. Center of Minneapolis.

Following is a description of the flag: "The ground is of white silk and the reverse side of blue silk, bordered with bullion fringe. In the center is the state seal, wreathed with white mosses in flowers on a blue ground. The red ribbon of the seal bearing the motto is continued through the wreath, intwining the blossoms and floating carelessly over the lower portion of the flag. It bears in gold the dates 1858, the time of the settlement of Minnesota, and 1893. Above, also in gold, is the date 1858, the time of the admission of Minnesota to the Union. Below the design in gold letters is wrought 'Minnesota.' Grouped around the seal are nineteen stars in the design of star points, with the North Star, significant of the North Star State, in a group of three at the top." The choice of the number nineteen is a peculiarly happy one, as Minnesota was the nineteenth state, after the original thirteen, to be admitted to the Union. The standard to the flag was surmounted by a golden gopher.
