It has been reported to us by the post office authorities in this city, that many school boys and even girls, are in the habit of tearing up letters and envelopes and scatter them upon the floor, although waste baskets are in plain sight as receptacles for such waste. We would recommend to the superintendents and teachers of the various schools in this city, that they give each class a five minute talk about proper behavior in the post office. We have also been advised that penholders and pens are frequently broken apparently by such youngsters. If a short lesson from teachers and parents will not suffice, the post office authorities have determined to post an inspector in the lobby and land a few of the culprits behind the bars where they belong, if they can not or do not learn manners while they are young.

Contend in Vain.
Against stupidity the very gods themselves contend in vain.—Schiller.

Washington--born in Virginia Feb. 22d, 1732. Died Dec. 14th, 1799.

Washington had to write to London for his clothes, as no fine stuff was made in this country, but if he were living to-day he'd be the first man to realize that American made clothing is the best in the world.

This store can show you some of this country's triumphs in suits for men and boys.

Suits and overcoats from $10 to $25 for men.

For boys from $4 to $18.

To-day our special is all-wool, all-American suits at $18.

Annual Concert of 2nd Reg't Band.

The 12th Annual Concert of this well known organization was held at the Opera House last Sunday evening. A splendid program of 12 numbers, two extras and several encores, was rendered before a large and appreciative audience. The overture "Hungarian Comedy," the cornet solo by John Wartha; the clarinet duet "The Swiss Boy" by Henry Kitaberger and Anton Weis were star numbers and deserve special mention. After the concert Joe. A. Eckstein, speaking for the band delivered an address in which he thanked the public for the kind appreciation and esteem in which the boys were held in this community. Our city, he stated, can be proud of this military band which can be compared favorably with any in the land. We understand the boys netted a neat little sum from the proceeds of this concert.
