WEST NEWTON JUBILIARIANS.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Schlumpberger who celebrated their Golden Wedding Sunday.

Fifty years ago a happy romance, which had its beginning as a result of the Indian massacre and the attack of the red men upon Fort Ridgely, culminated in the marriage of Christian Schlumpberger and Miss Crescentia Matsch, who now look back upon half a century of wedded bliss. The fact that their married life is closely intertwined with many principal historic events of this locality makes the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary one of special interest for the entire community.

Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Schlumpberger entertained a large number of relatives and friends at their home in West Newton, two miles distant from St. George, in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Rev. F. Pozek, pastor of the St. George Catholic church, delivered an eloquent address at the Schlumpberger home in honor of the jubilarians and in the course of his remarks referred to the hardships endured by the sturdy pioneer settlers of this section of the state. A sumptuous feast was served and the venerable couple entertained their many guests right royally. In turn they were presented with numerous suitable gifts commemorating the festive occasion. The St. George Orchestra furnished music during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Schlumpberger are both natives of Wuertemberg, Germany, where the former was born in 1834 and his worthy helpmate first saw the light of day there ten years later. Although they both came to America during the same year (1854) they were not acquainted with one another at that time. Mr. Schlumpberger spent the first four years of his residence in this country in New York, where he obtained employment as a carpenter. In 1858 he heard the call of the west and proceeded to the frontier in his search for a permanent home. He located on a homestead in the river bottoms, three miles above Fort Ridgely, which later became the site of the old Pless mill, where he tilled the soil, and in time succeeded in gaining for himself a snug competence through hard work and thrift.

Mrs. Schlumpberger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Matsch, settled at Chicago shortly after their arrival in America and spent two years there, coming to New Ulm in 1856 when there were only a few scattered houses to be seen on the present townsite. They cast their humble lot with the few other settlers who lived here at that time and during the Indian massacre sought refuge from the merciless cruelties of the red men by fleeing to Fort Ridgely. She was eighteen years old at the time but rendered valuable assistance by ministering to the needs of the sick and wounded at the Fort. Her kindly ministrations could not fail to be noticed by her future husband who was serving as citizen-soldier at the Fort during the massacre. He took great interest in the kindly young lady and learned to love her.

In the year following the terrible massacre, on Aug. 16, 1863, the young couple proceeded to Mankato where they were joined in the holy bonds of marriage by Father Sommerlesen of St. Peter and Paul's Catholic Church, who at that time served the local Catholic congregation which was, however, only a mission parish. After the marriage they located at St. Peter for a year and a half where Mr. Schlumpberger engaged in teaming and then they returned to New Ulm, spending about the same length of time in this city. In 1866 they took a homestead in West Newton, upon which they have since resided continuously. In spite of their ripe old age, Mr. and Mrs. Schlumpberger still enjoy comparatively good health and they delight in relating their experiences during the early days in this locality.

The union was blessed with seven children, of whom the oldest, a son, died twenty-three years ago at the age of twenty-five. The surviving children are Mrs. John Hermes, of San Bernardino, Cal.; George Schlumpberger and Mrs. Joseph Mueller of Swanville, near Little Falls, Minn.; Mrs. Ralph Winkenwerder of Minneapolis; Chas. Schlumpberger and Mrs. Anna Metzger, who live with their parents. Only the three last-named were able to be present at the anniversary festivities Sunday, the other children having visited their folks recently.
