

Asks $25,275 Damages

Phillip Wraneschts, of Sleepy Eye, has started suit for the recovery of $25,275 against the United Flour Mills Co. of the same place, through his attorneys, A. R. Pfau, Jr., and C. J. Laurisch of Mankato. Mr. Wraneschts alleges in his complaint that on January 28, 1913, while he was working in the mills of the defendants in this case, as a miller's helper, he was told to assist in putting on a belt over a pulley while the machinery was running.

The pulley, he said, was in a dangerous position and the machinery was not guarded by railings, and that the work which was required of Mr. Wraneschts called for his taking unnecessary risk. While holding the belt on the pulley with a stick, as he was directed, the stick was jerked from him and struck him in the body near his shoulder.

As a result of the accident, Mr. Wraneschts alleges in his complaint, he has permanently lost the partial use of his right arm; has had to undergo an operation on his back for the removal of pieces of his clothing which were driven in by the board; has been incapacitated for manual labor, and has suffered a great and permanent shock to his nervous system.

The United Flouring Mills company has employed the local law firm of Somsen, Dempsey and Mueller as its attorneys and the case will probably come to trial during the December term of the Brown County District Court, unless a settlement is reached between the litigants prior to that time.

Obituary.

The funeral of Mrs. Katherine Stolz who died Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, was held from her late home on North Franklin Street Thursday afternoon, Rev. Geo. Mayer officiating. Mrs. Stolz had been an invalid for years and death came to her as a relief.

The deceased whose maiden name was Katherine Sellner, was born July 14, 1837 in Bernstein, Germany and was consequently 76 years old when she passed away. She came to America in 1856 and two years later was married to August Stolz who preceded her in death in the year 1893. They moved onto a farm in the Town of Courtland where she resided until the death of her husband, with the exception of six years, from 1861-1867, when they lived at Carver, Minn. After her husband's death she moved to New Ulm to spend her declining years in peace and comfort. The deceased did not escape the privations and hardships of early pioneer life but she did not lose courage and her faith in better days was fully realized. Of the eight children that were born to her, the following survive her: Mrs. Geo. P. Dietz, Mrs. William Berger, Chas. A. Stolz and Miss Mary Stolz of New Ulm and Fred Stolz of Nicollet.

Death came suddenly and unheralded to John Goerres on his farm near Wanda in Redwood County Saturday evening at 9 o'clock. Up to the time of his demise he was in the best of health and had never been really ill since he came to this section of the state over forty years ago. Only last week he was here visiting relatives on his way home from a several weeks' trip to Red Lake Falls, Stillwater and other points. The deceased who was only 66 years old when he was stricken, was born in the Rhine Province, Germany and came to this country about the year 1868, locating at Stillwater. A few years later he moved to Redwood County where he has since resided and took up farming. In the year 1875 he was married at Redwood Falls to Miss Frances Evans who with the following six children survive him: Mrs. Margaret Knott, Red Lake Falls; Mrs. Gertrude Starke in Redwood County and Henry, Carl, Mathias and Annie who are still at home. He is also survived by the following sisters: Mrs. Margaretha Wiggins, Belgium; Mrs. Leo Altermatt, Wabasso; Mrs. Math. Eichten, Mrs. Mary Meile and Mrs. Geo. Ross of New Ulm. The funeral will be held this (Wednesday) morning at 10 o'clock from the Catholic Church at Wanda. Mrs. Mary Meile, Mr. and Mrs. Math. Eichten, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ross and Mrs. John Haas will attend the funeral from here.

Friedrich William Baarsch, for 32 years a resident of New Ulm, died at Bird Island Sunday evening shortly after 8 o'clock, aged 84 years. Death was due to old age and the ailments usually incident thereto. He had been in failing health for several months. The deceased was born in Scholzenhof, Kreis Ober Barnim, Brandenburg February 18, 1829 and emigrated to America when a young man. He first came to Wisconsin and lived at Beaver Dam on a farm for nearly 12 years. Here he was married to Miss Louise Kruschke who preceded him in death in the year 1866. Of the 5 children born to them only one, Mrs. Otto Meyer, survives him. From Wisconsin he came to Winona where he lived on a farm for a year and then he came to New Ulm with his grandparents and two of his children. He purchased the present Groebner corner and went into the saloon business which he followed until the year 1900 when he went into the milling business at Bird Island. He was married at Madelia April 11, 1869 to Miss Dora Kuehn, his surviving widow. Of the second union all of the nine children survive. They are Otto Baarsch, Clark, S. D.; Mrs. Edwin Richter, St. Paul; Mrs. Clinton Perry, Felton, Minn.; Mrs. Albert Young, Winthrop; Mrs. Archibald Stone and Wm. Baarsch, Jr., Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Alfred M. Johnson, Dawson, and Albert Baarsch and Mrs. Ralph Adams of Bird Island. He is also survived by his brother Julius who resides in New Ulm. At the time of his death he was a member of the Olivia lodge of Odd Fellows. They have charge of the funeral services which will be held at the house this (Wednesday) afternoon. The remains will then be brought to New Ulm to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Otto Meyer. Funeral services will be held at Turner Hall to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon at 2 p. m. and interment will be made in the city cemetery.

Martin Windhorn and Miss Louise Schilling, young people of Courtland township, were quietly married in this city yesterday morning. The ceremony took place in the parlor at the Hotel Nicollet, and Judge Henry Moll pronounced the words that made the happy pair man and wife.—St. Peter Herald.

LOCAL NOTES

Alois Gulden, formerly employed as electrician at the municipal plant here, but more recently a fireman on the Northwestern road, has purchased the Firemen's Headquarters saloon, corner of Broadway and Second North streets, of Joseph F. Groebner, and will take possession of the business as soon as the city council grants the application for transfer of the liquor license.

Wm. Schaleben & Co. report the sale of three big transactions in Linden Twp. this week. They sold the 250 acre Lars Larson farm to Mr. A. F. Lodes of Madelia, the 100 acre farm of Louis Jacobson to Mr. A. E. Reid of Le Mars, Iowa and the V. and Wm. Schaleben 280 acre farm, known as the P. A. Olson place, to Heike Johnson of Le Mars, Iowa.

The hunting season opened Sunday and several hundred squads of New Ulm and vicinity went out to bag the toothsome prairie chicken and wild ducks. From reports received thus far, both species of wild fowl are plentiful and most of the hunters returned with long strings of game Sunday night. County Auditor Louis G. Vogel states that about 140 hunting licenses were issued by him up to Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fritz, of Tucson, Ariz., who have been visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Juni for a few weeks on their honeymoon, departed for their home Sunday afternoon, Mr. Fritz being called there on account of several large contracts on which he will be employed as construction engineer. They had intended spending about five weeks in New Ulm, but their visit had to be shortened on account of work that is awaiting Mr. Fritz's return.

It did not take very long to cool off the ardor and the spirit of adventure that seized two of our young men a week ago and started them off for the wild and woolly west. Carl Engelbert returned home last Tuesday afternoon, having been as far as Pierre, South Dakota. Otto Montgomery managed to slip into town a week after they had pulled out, hungry and travel-worn, fully satisfied that there is no place like home.

Vincent Brunner of St. George reports that someone attempted to poison his flock of poultry one night last week. Mr. Brunner says that when he went to feed his chickens the following morning, he found two of them dead in the yard, and upon examining some feed that had been strewn about, he noticed that paris green had been mixed with it. Mr. Brunner is at a loss to know who could be so mean as to revenge himself for some real or fancied wrong by poisoning his poultry.

Among those from New Ulm who attended the state fair last week were the following: Captain and Mrs. Baptiste Groebner, Prof. B. Gruenfelder and his two sons, Anton and Alphonse, Mrs. William Ruenke and daughter, Estella, D. C. Thilman, Henry Ahrens, Ewald Kuester, Fred Schaefer, Frank Schaefer and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Eckstein. Mr. Eckstein also attended the annual convention of the state association of district court reporters. Both the Northwestern and the M. & St. L. roads had an unusually heavy traffic practically all week.

A four-year-old girl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hoffmann, of the town of Milford, caused a fire at the home of her parents a week ago Sunday but fortunately the damage done was comparatively small. It seems that the child in some manner secured a quantity of matches and went upstairs where it is believed she lighted a lamp which then either was tipped over or exploded. The little girl had presence of mind enough to go down stairs and tell her parents of what she had done and Mr. and Mrs. Hoffmann with the assistance of their neighbor John Mack finally succeeded in quenching the blaze. In order to accomplish this, it was necessary to gain access to the room in which the fire originated from the outside of the house through a window.

One of the most elaborate and pleasing social gatherings of the summer season was held at the Lutheran school house, Friday evening, the occasion being the twentieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Reim of this city who were singularly honored by the members of the Lutheran Ladies' Aid and their husbands, who assembled to commemorate the anniversary in a fitting manner. August 31st was really the wedding date of this well-known and highly esteemed couple but the anniversary was not celebrated until Friday evening of last week, one of the principal reasons for the delay being that it was not desired to arouse the suspicions of the jubilarians, who, with their children, were escorted to the school house to spend the evening there.

Ives Tells Indian Story

Luther C. Ives, who will be remembered by our older residents as one of our brave defenders during the Indian Massacre and who was afterward a member of Co. G, 2nd Minn. Cavalry, and was stationed in 1864 at Fort Rice below the present site of Mandan, N. D., is rendering valuable services in locating historic grounds for the South Dakota Historical Society. Mr. Ives' description of the battle, which was fought July 28, 1864, at the present site of the Diamond C Ranch, was recently published in the Dickinson Press and is reproduced here because without doubt it will prove interesting to Review readers:

"After a two and a half days' march from near the T. S. Underhill place south of Antelope, in a north and westerly direction, the 2,200 U. S. volunteers of mounted infantry and cavalry reached the Kildeer country late the morning of July 28th. The Indians, numbering about 10,000, were formed, in their war paint and feathers, in a semicircle, just back of the oak thicket south of the present Diamond C buildings. The cavalrymen formed in line back of Crosby butte, advancing from the north and northeast. Fire was opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continued until dark. The army had eight cannon. Brackett's battalion and the 6th and 7th Iowa and Dakota cavalry took the brunt of the battle.

"The Indians were finally driven up through the gap in a northwesterly direction from the Diamond C ranch. The soldiers did some heavy charging along Dead Man's gulch, but only two of their number fell in battle. It was estimated that 300 Indians fell.

"On the night of the 28th the 2nd brigade rested on the flat south of the Diamond C buildings, the present site of a large corn field. The 1st brigade rested on the flat below, just northeast, and where Mr. Ives definitely located the graves of Geo. W. Northrop, orderly sergeant, and Private Austin.

"For the night of July 29th, 1864, the U. S. army camped at the Craig springs 6 miles east of the battlefield. Here two privates of Co. D, 2nd Minn. cavalry, were killed by Indians while on picket duty. As near as Mr. Ives can calculate, the bodies of these men are resting on the flat a miles west of the springs. It will be impossible to mark the exact spot. It was estimated that 500 Indians were crowding the picketmen that night, probably with a view of causing a stampede and getting horses. But in this they failed.

"During the morning of the 29th, our cavalrymen advanced some six miles in a westerly course from their first camping spot, in an attempt to again engage the Indians who had retreated in that direction, but the redskins could not be located. Returning to the battlefield the soldiers set fire to the 1,500 or 1,600 teepees. This was about 10 o'clock the morning of the 29th. Strange to say, on the trip Wednesday, Messrs. Ives and Fish found many of the ends of teepee poles that were not burned. The year in a fairly good state of preservation. It is believed that white cedar from the Black Hills country was the timber used by Indians in those days for teepee poles."

"The Kildeer battle was fought just 49 years ago July 28th. The Indians had a few guns and more bows and arrows. They had the advantage of knowing the country.

"Mr. Ives visited the battle ground three years ago but he was alone and did not have an opportunity of locating things accurately as on the trip this week. On Thursday, July 31st, 1913, he rested by the side of and drank at the Craig springs, the same as he and his comrades did 49 years ago.

"The soldiers were out six days from their base of supplies south of Antelope, the distance being recorded in the government records as 80 miles each way.

"This was Sully's expedition, guarding 80 emigrant wagons enroute to Idaho. The march was continued westerly up Heart river and on the 5th of August, 1864, the caravan saw for the first time the Bad Lands. The night of the 6th they camped on the east bank of the Little Missouri river, some distance south of the present site of Medora. The Indians were continually harassing the troops and stampeding the horses.

"At Sentinel Butte (some authorities say Flat Top Butte) occurred a sharp encounter with the Indians, on August 8th. A Black Foot Sioux was acting as guide for the army and was wounded in the morning but he would not give up and continued to give advice during the day. It was here that Private L. C. Ives was wounded in the left leg toward night. His assailant Indian with many of his tribesmen fell on the hillside. Mr. Ives has the steel pointed arrow which was taken from the fleshy part of his leg. He also has a pencil drawing of the battle of Mauve Terre, showing the soldiers and redskins in action.

"The army reached the Yellowstone river, 9 miles below the present site of Glendive, in a 3 days' march from Sentinel Butte.

Miss Ida Quade of Janesville spent Sunday visiting with Miss Frieda Wiegand, second grade teacher at the Union Building. Miss Quade was camping at Lake Madison with a party and all motored to New Ulm and spent the day picnicking at the Heights. Miss Quade formerly was a student at D. M. L. C. She was in Denver during the Turnfest and was one of the New Ulm party that ascended the mountains together.
