BIG SPECTACULAR PRODUCTION

Such is "The Prince of Tonight" Coming to the Turner Theatre Next Sunday Evening.

Gorgeous costumes, dazzling spectacular effects, high class music and stunning show girls form the background of that most popular of musical fantasies, "The Prince of Tonight," which has been especially secured as the attraction for the opening of the regular season at the Turner Theatre next Sunday evening, September 19th.

The play is a bright, sparkling concoction of the very best there is in magic, mirth and melody with a pretty sentimental story thrown in. There is an excellent cast, lots of pretty girls who are good singers and dancers and a gingery lot of chorus men that get their work over in many style. The scenery is correct of the location and the transformation scenes are bewildering. The costumes are a work of art. Among the musical numbers there are many that make the head nod and the foot tap.

Money has been spent lavishly to mount the show and there is no "made" sparkle in it. Every gleam is genuine. The popular musical comedy star, Tom Arnold, heads the cast and is supported by a company of forty.

How many millions of book lovers in the world have read the delightful story of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is problematical but all who have read the book will want to see the play which Eugene Walter has written around Mr. Foy's romantic girl, June. Mr. Walter's play transforms to the stage the atmosphere of the Virginia hills. The production is so artistically perfect that you are almost made to believe you are inhaling the fragrance of the mountainside. The play comes to the Turner Theatre on September 24th.

FALL MARRIAGES.

Schreiner-Brey

Last Tuesday morning the marriage of Ludwig Schreiner, son of Jos. Schreiner of New Ulm and Catherine Brey, daughter of Frank Brey, Sr., also of this city, was solemnized in the St. George Catholic church, Rev. F. Pozek officiating. Theresa Schreiner, a sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride and Wolfgang Brey, a brother of the bride, acted as best man. The wedding celebration was held at the home of the bride's brother, Frank Brey, Jr., in the town of Lafayette after the ceremony. The newly wedded couple will go to housekeeping on a farm in Lafayette township.

Breulick-Kral

Yesterday was an important day in the families of Lorenz Kral of Sigel and Mrs. Anna Breulick of Stark for a son and a daughter in each family took upon themselves the responsibilities of married life. The young people were Lorenz Kral who was married to Miss Martha Breulick and Miss Emma Kral who became the bride of Clements Breulick.

One ceremony was performed in the church at Sleepy Eye at 10 o'clock in the morning and the other in Holy Trinity Church in New Ulm at 8 o'clock with Rev. Father Wagner officiating. Both parties met at the Kral home in Sigel however for the wedding dinner and celebration which was largely attended by their relatives and friends.

The bride at the New Ulm ceremony was Miss Kral. She was gowned in a pretty white silk dress and carried white roses. Her sister, Mary Kral acted as bridesmaid and was dressed in light blue silk with carnations for her flowers. Tony Breulick was his brother's best man. The church was decorated with flowers and palms. The young people will live on the groom's farm in Sigel where both have many friends.

At the Sleepy Eye ceremony, the bride wore white silk and carried white roses. Her bridesmaid was Miss Frances Holmschild of Owatonna. The best man was a brother of the groom, Harry Kral.

The Kral home was prettily decorated in red, white and blue for the wedding celebration. Mr. Kral and his bride will go to his farm near Hanska to make their home.

Kloeckl-Hillesheim

Yesterday morning at nine o'clock a very pretty wedding took place at the Holy Trinity church in this city when Frank Kloeckl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kloeckl of New Ulm and Marie Hillesheim, daughter of Anton Hillesheim of Sigel township, took their marriage vows. Rev. Robt. Schlinkert officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Anna Hillesheim, and the groom by John Haubrich. Only the nearest relatives of the principals were invited to the church ceremony.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a dress of white crepe chiffon over satin, trimmed with lace and beads and carried a white prayer book with streamers to the altar. The bridesmaid wore a gown of pink crepe de chine with a lace bolero and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The church was appropriately decorated with flowers and palms.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's father immediately after the ceremony and a wedding dinner was served. The house was gayly decorated, the color scheme being one of pink and white. Both the bride and groom have lived in Sigel township all of their lives and are well known in the community. They will make their home on a farm in that township.

NOTICE TO NICOLLET CO. TAXPAYERS.

The Nicollet County Taxpayer's League is interesting itself in the coming County Option election in Nicollet Co. the 4th of October and are circulating literature to the farmers and other taxpayers showing them some of the results of killing off at one blow a business which has been established for years and which has meant employment to many and has furnished a market for farm products in agricultural sections.

One of the arguments is presented herewith by those who are interested in the problem and should be carefully studied by all voters in Nicollet County before going to the polling place to cast a vote either for or against County Option.

The following facts are given to PROVE that the operation of county option is opposed to the interests of the farmer; that the measure is unjust to the farmer; that it is destructive because it causes depreciation in the value of farm lands, and that in other ways it is harmful to agriculture generally.

County option means county prohibition. It prohibits the sale of beer or liquor, and seeks to destroy long established industries which now use large quantities of farm products.

Now follow this to its logical conclusion.

County option is admitted by its advocates as a step toward general prohibition, and to show that the farmer is hurting himself by voting dry, it is only necessary to say that, according to the farmers raising corn, barley, rye, wheat, fruit, hops, rice and other products that go into the production of beer, liquor, wines and cordials, and that for these crops the farmers receive annually $200,000,000. The brewers and distillers of Peoria alone consume the entire surplus corn crop of Iowa and Illinois after feeding and seeding.

In Minnesota last year the farmers raised:

91,000,000 bushels of corn,
42,975,000 bushels of wheat,
31,694,000 bushels of barley,
5,245,000 bushels of rye.

Large quantities of all these crops are used in the production of liquor, and practically all the barley crop in Minnesota is used for malting purposes because of its high grade.

County option, if it became general in Minnesota, would destroy this market and GIVE NOTHING IN RETURN.

That county option is unjust to the farmer is shown in the fact that his vote is used only if the vote is cast for county option. In other words, the farmer's vote is used if it is a dry vote, and abused if it is a wet vote. He is permitted to say that the sale of liquor shall be prohibited, but he cannot say that the sale of liquor shall not be prohibited.

To make this clear, a county goes dry if the majority vote is dry, but it does not go wet if the majority vote is wet. The wet or dry issue then must be decided by the different municipalities in the county, and the farmer, living outside the municipalities, has no vote in deciding the question. If it is fair for the farmer to help vote a county dry, it should be fair for the farmer to help vote the county wet, but he cannot do this for the reason that if the majority vote is wet, the farmer has no further voice in the matter because the license issue then is for the municipalities and not the county to decide.

Prohibition in any form is destructive to farm interests, and this is proved by the United States Census statistics. Comparing Minnesota, a license state, with Kansas, heralded everywhere as the model prohibition state, the following results are shown:

Increased value of farm buildings, 1900 to 1910—Kansas, 79.1 per cent; Minnesota, 120.8 per cent.
Increased value of live stock, 1900 to 1910—Kansas, 32.8 per cent; Minnesota, 81.5 per cent.

Increased value of farm machinery, 1900 to 1910—Kansas, 63.8 per cent; Minnesota, 73.9 per cent.

Every farmer will agree that land adjacent to a good market is the most desirable and worth more than land distant from those centers. Good markets increase farm land values, and the best markets are found in the progressive towns and villages that favor license and conduct their affairs with due regard to the wishes of the majority.

Proof of this may be found by comparing conditions in Grant county, with one wet town, and Brown county, with six wet towns. Farm lands in Grant county is valued at $50 to $60 an acre, while land in Brown county is valued at from $75 to $125 an acre.

The reason for this is that Brown county has at least six live towns which offer good markets to the farmer, while Grant county has but one, and now that county option carried there, it soon will lose that one license town.

County option, or prohibition, never yet has done anything to help the farmer. It does not create a new market for the one it destroys; neither does it offer to pay the increased taxation the farmer must pay to meet the deficit in revenue which results when a county goes dry.

Farmers are asked to vote for county option merely to close the saloons within the county. The fair-minded farmer will hesitate a long time before he will follow the advice of extremists who desire to override the wishes of the majority. The average farmer is not interested in saloons. What he wants is a good market, and experience shows that the best markets are found in the towns and villages that favor license and regulation. It is not a saloon question with the farmer, but a question of good markets and increasing the value of his land.

The entire issue, therefore, resolves itself into a business proposition: Does the farmer want county option and prohibition which, it is shown, is destructive to his interests, or does he want the municipalities in his county to rule themselves, provide good markets, and by so doing increase the value of his land?

A careful consideration of this issue should convince every farmer that his best interests are entirely with license and regulation, as against prohibition which destroys his market, increases his taxes and fosters blind pigs, bootleggers and hypocrisy.

The farmer's vote can carry or defeat county option. An earnest appeal, therefore, is made to every farmer, in this county to vote against a measure which gives him nothing in return for all it takes away.
