Miss Henrietta Hauenstein who is a stenographer in the offices of the Red Cross Civilian Relief of Minnesota came home for a few days visit with her parents. Miss Hauenstein says she is glad to say that in their relief work no bad cases have ever been reported from New Ulm.

Since the war has ceased Base Ball is coming back again. Organizations have been formed in almost every city and it is thought that the coming season will be a live one for base ball enthusiasts. The Brainerd News writes that a Central Minnesota baseball league is about to be organized. Six towns are expected to be represented. They are Brainerd, St. Cloud Little Falls, Staples, Ironton and Crosby.

From a recent interview with one of New Ulm's rural carriers we have come to the conclusion that those living out on the rural routes who are not receiving their mail regularly these days should just give one moment of thought to the prospect that faces the respective carriers each morning as they set out on their runs, before charging them with any neglect or carelessness. In the condition of the roads at the present time one faces uncertainties so great as often to make the trip useless; and in some instances to start out is only the signal for a prompt return to the city. The carriers cover half of the route one day on some of the routes and the other half the next the conditions being such that the entire trip is out of the question and a physical impossibility for both horses and men.

Leander Schneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schneider, who has been a U. S. sailor laddie for several months, is stationed at the Great Lakes. In a late letter to his parents he stated that he is going to Chicago and Milwaukee to take part in the monster Victory Loan parades which are to be held there. He is attending the signal school and says he feels right at home, having made many friends, all of whom are from the East, however. He also writes that if any of the boys get the feeling that they want to join Uncle Sam's naval forces they shouldn't hesitate but go right to it for then they will get a chance to see the world thru a port hole. He speaks of going to church every Sunday and says if the boys skip church they get such punishments as make them prefer going to church any day.

Louis Wandersee of Springfield was a New Ulm visitor Monday.

Mrs. George Kluegel and little son from Lamberton visited at the Fred Bigot home during the week. They returned home Monday.
