AMERICAN THEATRE

FRIDAY, JULY 11

The Squaw Man.

Cecil B. DeMille's Version of Edwin Milton Royles Famous Play.

Thrilling Battle with Lion Feature of the "Squaw Man." Big Cat Kills Man in Latest Cecil B. De Mille's Big Production.

One of the most thrilling scenes ever photographed in a motion picture is the battle fought by Henry, Earl of Kerhill, with a great lion in which the Englishman is slain, and which is graphically pictured in Cecil B. De Mille's superb picturization of Edwin Milton Royle's "The Squaw Man." This photoplay, which is said to be one of the best ever produced by this sterling director, will be shown at the American theatre next Friday, July 11. The battle scene is laid in an African jungle. The Earl of Kerhill is an embezzler whose crime has been shouldered by his cousin Jim Wynnegate, to spare Henry's wife Diana, whom Jim loves, disgrace and suffering. After her husband's death in the jungle Diana traces Jim to Wyoming where he is living on a ranch with his squaw, and after some exceptionally tragic scenes, they are reunited in their mutual love.

The lion used in the picture is perfectly harmless except in a film scene. Assistant director Sam Wood played hide and seek with the big cat at rehearsals, but Thurston Hall who plays the part of Sir Henry, who battles with the lion, entered into the contest with no little misgivings. The lion was lazy and preferred do zing to acting. But when the camera clicked, the animal was there with both feet as it were, and Hall was realistically mauled by the king of beasts.

The various roles are in the hands of stars including Elliott Dexter, Ann Little, Theodor Roberts, Jack Holt, Tully Marshall and others.
