

HOME HEALTH CLUB

EDITED BY DAVID H. REEDER, LAPORTE, INDIANA

KIDNEY DISEASE:

Many gallons of useless dope have been sold and many men made rich by vigorously advertising kidney disease.

Many people whose kidneys are sound and active, have been scared into parting with good money and taking a lot of useless dope by a startling picture of a person falling to the ground while holding one hand to the small of the back and calling out "Oh, my back." As a matter of fact there is seldom any pain felt in the back when there is real kidney disease. The kidneys are not located in the small of the back, but are up out of harm's way behind the lower ribs.

The pains usually felt in the back are in the muscles, joints and nerves of the back and may properly be classed as exhaustion, rheumatism or rheumatic lumbago. The kidneys are on the inside of the abdominal cavity.

It is claimed that last year about 100,000 people died from Bright's Disease and other kidney diseases in this country. Really, a small percentage but at least 80 per cent too high. Nearly every case of kidney disease could be prevented and those that do get a start can now nearly all be cured by proper treatment.

Within the last year I have seen desperate cases of Bright's Disease and sugar diabetes cleared up and the sufferers restored to normal activity.

The kidneys are the hardest-working organs of the body and receive perhaps the least consideration and protection from the average individual.

They work day and night in an effort to protect the blood and the body from the ever-increasing quantity of poisonous substances which come to them, and they perform their function of filtration faithfully and persistently. They do this even after they have begun to degenerate from the exhaustion due to abuse and overwork.

In most cases the breaking down of the kidneys occurs slowly and painlessly, and without the knowledge of the individual for whom they are toiling. When they do announce their trouble the impairment is often beyond the hope of correction.

And yet, it is a well-known fact that the presence of Bright's Disease, even in its most incipient form, can be discovered by a very simple and inexpensive chemical analysis.

Bright's Disease—so called—is a disease of civilization; they advance together. It has been described as a disease of rich food, of strong drink, of close confinement and mental strain, and I may say, more important than all other causes, colonic constipation. In short it is caused, as a rule, by improper living habits, and this is why it is so easily checked when discovered in its early stages.

Club Notes.

Mr. J. F. of Ill. writes as follows: Dear Doctor Reeder: I have been a strong, healthy man for many years and therefore did not take much care to keep my health as I should. During the war I had to work extra hard on the farm as I could get no help. I got wet, when tired was chilled and had the flu. I now have a very aggravating cough. Not consumption but sometimes I can hardly get my breath. How can I cure this cough?

I will greatly appreciate your answer:

Answer: You are probably suffering with a chronic bronchitis, with a tendency to develop an asthmatic condition. I am going to suggest that you take the safe and sane Home Health Club Method that we use for the children in curing whooping cough.

Get about a pound of garlic, remove the husks and chop the balance finely. Make a poultice of this and bind it on the bottom of your feet. Put on a pair of large socks and go to bed. Repeat this for three or four nights and your cough will be gone. If you cannot get garlic try onions.

HIGH SCHOOL JUNIORS APPEAR BEFORE PUBLIC

Give Their Annual Spring Time Program To Raise Funds For The Big Social Event of the School Year, The Junior-Senior Banquet.

The Junior Class of the New Ulm High School have their Annual Entertainment in the Auditorium last Thursday evening. Usually the Juniors plan to raise funds by means of the annual entertainment to be used in giving their annual Junior-Senior banquet but plans for this later event are somewhat indefinite just now and the Junior class used most of their funds to provide the talent that entertained the audience. The auditorium was well filled with friends of the young people all of whom enjoyed seeing them in their various parts.

The first number on the evening's program was several selections rendered by the New Ulm High School orchestra, which were all well received by the audience.

The next number was a one-act play entitled, "The Kettle Sings". Those taking part all played their parts to perfection. The "Motor Maid" played by Frances Arndt was especially well done for such a role. She was one of the newest inventions for housekeepers as she ran by electricity. "Lucy Potts", played by Amy Mather, was an old fashioned bride having been reared for the dress reform movement, and cared more to make the home cheerful and pleasant than for society and clubs. One of her wedding presents was that of "A Singing Kettle", which her mother, Mrs. Mary Black, played by Caroline Guggisberg, gave her. It was sort of an ideal kettle and from it she was to get her inspiration to do what is right. Her many friends visit her and try to get her to join the various clubs and societies but Lucy declines. While these friends are there the kettle begins to sing every once in a while. The ladies think it queer that Lucy should have such a kettle and think she is insane and call for an expert. Just then Lucy's husband arrives, and her mother explains everything to him. The final end is that they are content to live as they have and keep the kettle as their guide. The cast:

The Motor Maid (she runs by electricity) Frances Arndt
Lucy Potts (A bride) Amy Mather
John Potts (her husband) Roy Pfeiffer
Mrs. Smythkin Elvera Kretsch
Mrs. Byson Lorna Schleuder
Miss Felicia Schoolcraft Minnie Gewert
Mrs. Martha Meanwell Elizabeth Hintz
Mrs. Foster Ade Viola Cordes
Mrs. Raphael Keats Mildred Epple
Mrs. Mary Black (Lucy's Mother) Caroline Guggisberg
Newspaper Reporter Clarence Roloff
Delivery Boys
Leander Schlumberger
Roy Gebhard

The Cantata put on next by the High School Glee Club was given by some fifty students, dressed as Indian women and men. The songs told of the lives of the first Mound Builders who came to live here. Their day's work including the washing, fishing, hunting, fighting, etc., were all described in the song. The Cantata was given under the direction of Miss Margorie McFarlane.

The last number on the program was another one act play, called the "Maker of Dreams". This was a musical fantasy. The music for this was very pretty and continued throughout the play. Miss Almetter was the pianist. Cecilia Hough, as "Pierrette" acted her part very gracefully. Lynn Current, as "Pierrot" made a very good dreamer. He sang every day in the market place. One day he saw a girl that he much desired and he decided to try to win her. Pierrette, who kept house for Pierrot felt very bad about this because she secretly loved Pierrot. Then a manufacturer, played by Wesley Gebhard happened along and listened to Pierrette's story and when Pierrot returns from the day's work he tells him that the girl for whom he is looking might be before his very door if he just stopped to think and look. In the end Pierrot sees the truth about this and he is content to have Pierrette only.

GOLDEN GATE BREEZES

There have been lots of fish caught along the Minnesota river the past week.

Robert Kuelbs is helping Louis Strate with work at the present time. He says he likes it in this neighborhood, especially when the High School girls come home from town.

John Merkel almost lost two of his fingers while operating a saw-mill. He is at a hospital at New Ulm for treatment.

Minnie Schmidt who has been sick with pneumonia for some time is reported worse again.

Ed. Kuelbs, who is helping at August Wagner's at a saw-mill nowadays, says it is quite a ways between Wagner's saw-mill and the Golden Gate mill-dam, especially Sunday evenings or early Monday morning.

Frank Strong, the old stand-by of Golden Gate, says that the Luce line is coming thru pretty soon, because the millionaires are making all kinds of money now while the common people are asleep.

About a hundred neighbors and friends of Louis Strate surprised him Sunday evening in honor of his birthday. 500 was played at twelve tables and at midnight a lunch was served. After that there was music and then the presents were opened. Some of them were useful and others were given as good jokes, a foot and a tail of a rabbit being thrown in for good luck. Mr. Strate says that he would not mind if his birthday came four times a year if he had such a good time always.

BIG ATTRACTION AT THE LYRIC.

The big attraction "Way Down East" which is now on at the Lyric Theatre is being well received by the people of New Ulm. Well it should be, for the farm-house scenes, sleighing parties, and real country dances, honest-to-goodness blizzards, all help to make this picture a great production. The picture brings home with telling force a lesson for men as to the need of a single standard for men and women; it assails the narrowness of smug people who overlook in their Scriptural readings that which has to deal with "Let him who is without sin, cast the first stone."

Anna Moore, a slip of a girl, played by Lillian Gish, is despatched by her mother from their humble home in rural New England to the Boston home of their wealthy relatives, the Tremonts, to lay before the latter the fact that they are in great need of help. The girl falters at telling the nature of her errand, and an eccentric aunt happens along, who takes a liking to Anna, and dresses her in fine clothes and introduces her into society. Her simple beauty attracts the youths of this new circle, and one especially, Lennox Sanderson, a son of wealth, who sees an opportunity for fresh conquest. He succeeds in tricking her into a mock marriage. After a brief honeymoon, which seemed the realization of her girlhood dreams, Sanderson sends Anna back to her New England home, with a promise to keep their marriage a secret as he pleads the news of his marriage would prevent him from securing funds from his wealthy father. She had never said anything about money which was needed at home, thinking that with her rich husband, there would be no more necessity for calling on the Tremonts for help.

After Anna has waited for some time at home, she sends for him to tell him the tender sweet information of a coming event, the most sacred in the life of a woman, and that their marriage can be a secret no longer. He blurs out that they never were married and walks out in a rage, leaving her. Later on, when her mother dies, she flees to a nearby village, Belden, to hide her shame, and her baby is born. With the death of her child, Anna is told at the inn by Maria Poole, her landlady that she is no longer desired there. She sets out to find work, and comes to the home of Squire Bartlett and becomes a beloved member of the household, helping with the housework. A true and noble love springs up between David, the son of the Bartletts and Anna. In the meantime, Sanderson, who brought suffering and disgrace upon the girl, finds his way to the Bartletts, and is trying his evil tactics on Kate Brewster, niece of Squire Bartlett.

An old-maid gossip, Martha Perkins learns the news of Anna's past, and tells this to the squire. Greatly enraged, he orders the girl from his house, into a terrific snow storm, but before going Anna denounces the man who betrayed her, and who was at the time an honored guest of the squire. David pursues the girl through the snow-storm. She wanders to the frozen river's end and is caught in the crash of an ice-break up, and drifts towards a menacing fall. This great mass of ice over the falls is the climax of a thrilling scene such as is seldom seen in screen productions. In the nick of time, Anna is saved from death by David, and carried back to shelter of a sugar camp, and to those who love and believe in her.

This picture will run once more this evening. It is even greater than the play. The film is exactly like that played at the Metropolitan theatres in Minneapolis and St. Paul at $2.20.

Many Stirring Situations in Ince Picture.

"I am Judas—for I have betrayed those who loved me best." This agonized confession is made to his Puritan congregation by the newly ordained minister, ready to depart as a missionary to far-off lands. The scene is one of the many enthralling situations in "Hail the Woman", Thomas H. Ince's unrivaled dramatic achievement coming to the Turner Theatre next Sunday afternoon and evening.

The story is an overpowering reflex of American life by C. Gardner Sullivan, foremost motion picture dramatist. It represents a veritable human epic, and is, as such, interpreted by one of the most complete and brilliant casts ever assembled.

The scenes, constituting a tense succession of emotional situations, shift from the harsh and rugged New England hills to the rush and turmoil of the world's greatest metropolis; from the peace and plenty of the country to the misery and the want of tenement life. Interwoven in the theme is a beautiful Christmas story of "peace on earth and good will to men," in a picturesque yet realistic setting. This great play recalls Charles Dickens in his most exalted, tenderest and most human moods!

ESSIG AND VICINITY.

Several of our younger set attended the masquerade at the New Ulm Armory last Tuesday night, which closed the dancing season until Easter.

Miss Sylvia Geske spent several days in New Ulm last week.

A very contagious but harmless disease has spread among the masculine population around here lately. They all seem to get it regardless of age. It's the fishing-fever! It lasts as long as fish are in sight.

Herman Schroeder transacted business in New Ulm one day last week.

Miss Esther Spelbrink started Monday this week doing her practice teaching in district No. 50 and will continue for two weeks.

Louis Spelbrink left Monday for the Twin Cities where he has business to attend to for a few days. From there he will go to Milona to visit with his son, E. E. Spelbrink and family.

Frank Pymantgen has returned to his home near New Effington, S. D. after several weeks' stay with his uncle, Nicolas Pymantgen, here.

G. A. Solberg as chairman of the local Red Cross unit, was notified to investigate conditions of a certain family, living on John Fritsche's farm, known as the old Pingel place. He found them in a sorry plight and calling a special meeting of the officers of this Red Cross unit they decided to buy some food and clothes, which was done. Clothes were also donated from different families.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Frank and daughters visited with the Wm. Geske family, Sunday.

Mrs. And. Wagner and children were over Sunday guests at the John Gareis home.

Misses Alma and Mayme Mecklenburg and Hertha Albrecht went to New Ulm Sunday afternoon.

"Let Ford do it," seems to be the sentiment of the public as to Muscle Shoals. When it comes to that sort of thing the people have more faith in Henry Ford than they have in the government or in any other man living.
