TWO BRITISH WARSHIPS RUSHED TO EGYPT

SKELTON'S MEN DEFEATED BY NEWPORT TEAM

Legion-Co. I Takes Meas- ure of Burlington Quint- et By 11 to 12

Coach Maloney's American Legion-Company I five gave Joel Skelton's Burlington team a hard jolt to the tune of 11-12, at the armory Thursday evening. Skelton was about the whole show for the visitors. The others in his combination could not boast of great familiarity with the noisier sphere.

The local boys proved that they knew how to work together. Each game has shown a marked improvement in their team-play and it is going to take a good five to defeat them on the local court. "Steve" Keith is putting up a particularly good game at guard, while Maloney and Bigelow are both crack shots, and play a good floor game.

The first half gave Newport a decided lead over the visitors. Bigelow dropped the first one through the hoop. Kennison then dribbled down the floor for two more before Burlington was able to register. Skelton managed to get through for two goals. The only scoring done by the visitors in the initial half. Maloney's men scored almost at will, for the visitors' defense was woefully weak. The score at the close of the first half stood American Legion-Co. I, 23, Burlington, 4.

The final period showed more action. Skelton's men opened up a bit, their defense was better and they did more scoring. Kennison hit the first one in. Skelton furnished a thrill for the fans when he dropped a ring through from the center of the floor with a man on his back. Jimmy Jones forgot himself for an instant when he landed a hard right to his opponent's nose, retaliating for a push which had sent him sprawling.

No Matinee Races

There are to be no speedway races here Saturday afternoon. The driving club committee Thursday evening decided that the track could not be put in satisfactory condition.

A feature of this week's program would have been a three-horse race between Santa Claus and Charlie Kirk, but Santa Claus was too busy delivering toys to the children and could not possibly make the date, as one of his reindeer threw a shoe between him and Midland when he collided with Old Beren's airplane. That spoiled the show and was the cause of Friday's storm.

However, next week Saturday, Dec. 31, the race committee plan a big race program, with many new features and new horses. Plans to be on the sidewalk to see it, but keep back of the rope, for the racers will be going to win as they come down the track.

LEAVE FLORIDA WITH BODY OF LOUIS P. AUBIN

High Mass of Requiem Will Be Sung at St. Mary's Tuesday Morning

Mrs. L. P. Aubin and son, Philip, left St. Petersburg, Florida, Wednesday night to accompany home the body of L. P. Aubin, whose death took place Wednesday morning between 12 and one o'clock.

It is expected they will arrive in Newport, Sunday morning. Funeral services will be held at St. Mary's Catholic church, Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The service will be a high mass, of the requiem type by the pastor, Rev. Norbert LaChapelle, assisted by several out of town clergymen.

Mr. Aubin's end came very suddenly. He was in his usual health, but a coughing spell induced a hemorrhage from which he died within ten minutes.

Mr. Aubin and family went to Florida a few weeks ago leaving Vermont where he has been a man for nearly 50 years. Newport has been his home for 24 years. He built and equipped his first school and habitation here in 1897. He soon acquired a reputation of producing a very superior product, which found a ready market throughout the United States.

His business was twice totally destroyed by fire. But with his indomitable courage, financial struggle were overcome and he built a larger and a better plant, each time.

When his health failed a few years ago and he retired from active business he was the owner of one of the best plants in the country.

He acquired large real estate holdings in Newport. Since his health declined and he had given up active business he had spent the winters in Colorado and in Florida. His eyesight gradually failed, until he was totally blind.

Louis-Philippe Aubin was born in St. Valentine, P. Q., Jan. 12, 1859. He was the son of Leon and Lina Corbiere Aubin and was one of 16 children. He received his education in the schools of his native town and under the tutelage of his father, who was one of the ablest teachers of his day.

Boy Wanders Away From Passumpsic

Charles Surrago, the eight year old boy, who wandered away from his home in Passumpsic, was taken back by his father Thursday morning after spending the night at the Police Station. The boy walked to St. Johnsbury Wednesday and being cold and poorly clad, he camped in a store to warm himself.

After he had been given food, he was taken to the Police Station, where Chief John Finley made the boy as comfortable and warm as possible for the night. The father was notified of his son's whereabouts and came to St. Johnsbury Thursday morning to get him.

GRACE CHURCH JUNIOR WORK FOR BRIGHTLOOK

Little Convalescents Made Happy With Gifts of Books

Under the supervision of Mrs. George W. Hylton and Mrs. Charles Goodall, the Junior Congregation of Grace Methodist church has been working for work on gifts for the children at Brightlook hospital. Fourteen scrap books in attractive colors and filled with the pictures and hymns that children love were completed Saturday and were presented to the hospital Thursday. The Juniors have devoted their Saturday afternoons for a number of weeks to this work for the sick children and the gifts will be greatly appreciated by the convalescents. They were taken to the hospital by Dr. George W. Hylton and a committee of two from the Juniors, Miss Ella Hall and Miss Bertha Matthews.

URGES ACCEPTANCE OF IRISH TREATY

DUBLIN, Dec. 22.—Telegrams to members of the Daily Eirann which has taken a recess to January 2nd from consideration of the Anglo-Irish treaty, began to come in today from their respective constituencies. Most of them favored ratification of the document. Following the lead of the Clare county council which yesterday adopted a resolution urging Eamon de Valera, the county representative in the Dail, to work for ratification, the county council of Navin sent a telegram to its representative urging the same course.

MUSIC CHEERS P. O. EMPLOYEES DURING RUSH

Flood of Parcel Post and Mail Is Being Handled With Efficiency

The Christmas rush is on at the St. Johnsbury postoffice. But while the mail bags increase in number and the parcel post packages form a young mountain, and nimble fingers toil with innumerable letters and post cards, a phonographic "Ant We Got Run" is everywhere. From an obscure corner of the inner works float out the snappy tones from a jazz record, insulating pep and enthusiasm in the weary.

Youta! sturton Freeman, a schoolboy, who is employed during the rush to sort the letters from postcards, with the snatches of the lively tune and his fingers fly faster than ever. Harold Jenks, who presides over an aggregation of mail bags, arranged before him in the shape of a semi-circle feels the thrill of the music and plunges into his complicated task with renewed vigor.

At the suggestion of Postmaster General Will Rays, a phonograph has been installed at the local postoffice. H. A. Gleason, the postmaster and Walter Kellogg, his assistant, declare it a boon for fatigued nerves.

Thursday evening the outgoing mail reached its crest. The Maple Grove Candy Co. has been one of the biggest patrons of the parcel post service during the last few days. Load after load of the postoffice destined for points all over the country.

Today and Saturday the incoming mail will increase and will be at its height until Saturday evening. Then all the packages that have come in during the day shall have been delivered. Packages that come in Sunday will be delivered on Monday. Frank Bailey has three substitutes to aid him in his delivery of the excess parcel post these days. Each man has two boys who deliver the parcels at each house under his supervision.

JEWISH RABBI FIRST WITNESS FOR DEFENSE

Goldberg Denies Injuring Mrs. Goldstein When After Jewish Bible

A whole lot of light was thrown on Jewish history and customs and the administration of the tenets of the Jewish faith in the testimony of the witnesses in the Goldstein-Goldberg case in county court Friday.

The first witness for the defense was Reuben Band, of Berlin, N. H. Evidence tended to show that he is 29 years of age; is a Rabbi of the Jewish faith and holds authority from the chief rabbi in Russia where he was born and where he was educated in the faith. He came to this country in 1913. One of the ceremonies he has a right to perform is killing chickens to provide kosher meat according to the Jewish law for the use of the Jewish people. He can also perform the marriage ceremony, but he has to have a special diploma to kill the chickens. As chicken killer he is called the Shoard. He has a right given to him in Russia to kill chickens all over the world. He came to St. Johnsbury the 30th of last September to kill chickens for the Jewish people here and to read the Bible and conduct the New Year's services the next day. He stayed at H. Finestone's; he went to the Goldsteins to meet the people there and see if they had any chickens to be killed; they did not have any; this was early in the afternoon; at 5:30 he went with Mr. Goldberg for the Bible and cabinet to be taken to Mr. Goldberg's house for the service; there was no such disturbance as was testified to. When Mr. Goldberg took the cabinet Mr. Goldberg said: "Remember this is a Bible," she then left. Mr. Goldberg put the cabinet in his car and hurried away for according to Jewish law, it must not be moved after sundown and he testified that this was done between 5:30 and 5:45 and according to the Jewish calendar the sun set on that day was at 5:55. "When I was on the piazza," testified the Rabbi, "he is gone. I is left on the piazza. I came in the automobile, when I got away to Mr. Finestone, I take the walk."

Philip Goldberg, the defendant, was the last witness before noon Friday. He told how he went to the Goldstein house and took away the Bible cabinet, but denied any disturbance over it or that Mrs. Goldstein was injured in any way by him on that night. He said the cabinet and Bible weighed 73 pounds.

The last witness for the prosecution was Mrs. Harry Dolgin. She said she was at the Goldsteins home the night of the disturbance. She dressed her wounds and assisted her in the household the following week. Mrs. Dolgin would not admit that Mrs. Goldstein was mad, but saw she was angry.

The testimony introduced Thursday afternoon included Gerry Coburn and Thomas Wallace, police officer, Dr. C. A. Prevost and Barney Goldstein, the husband of the plaintiff.

Officer Coburn was called to the Goldstein home the night of the alleged disturbance; found everything excited and the roots in disorder; Mrs. Goldstein was complaining of injuries; did not report the case to the state's attorney; later he was given a writ for the Bible back; when I went to Goldberg's for it Goldberg told me that a religious service was in progress and refused to give it up or allow me to enter the house; I left without it.

Officer Wallace was summoned to the scene of the trouble on Sept. 30 by Mr. Goldstein and Harry Dolgin; found house in disorder and family excited; saw marks of injury on Mrs. Goldstein's arm and leg; was there only a short time.

Dr. Prevost was summoned to attend Mrs. Goldstein; she needed treatment, but there was no chronic or organic trouble. Mr. Goldstein said that the Jewish Bible was kept at his house; that it was kept in a room specially provided to comply with the Jewish law; that the arrangement with him was made by A. Nurenberg, Harry Dolgin, J. Aron and Mr. Goldberg; he was to have $1 a week; he had kept it a year, but nothing had been paid; when I got home the night of Sept. 30 "it looked like robbery"; everything tipped over; Bible "one" sister told me what had happened; never gave Goldberg permission to go there.

Other Units of Mediterranean Fleet Get Orders To Leave On Shortest Notice

TWO MILLION DOLLARS SPENT ON VERMONT ROADS

Have Patrolled 1,800 Miles and Built Many Bridges

About $2,000,000 has been expended by the Vermont state highway department during the season just closing. This amount includes the federal aid fund of $500,000, the state money to match it of $500,000, the automobile money which amounted to about $620,000, the five per cent tax on all towns which amounted to approximately $150,000, the state aid fund of $260,000 and a few special appropriations of small amounts. There remains on hand only a comparatively small amount in money.

The highway department this year has patrolled about 1,800 miles of highway at an average cost of about $250 per mile. The state paid about $308,000 and the remainder by the towns for this work. There are over 300 patrolmen employed and they are obliged to furnish their own teams and small tools. As a general rule the town road machines are used.

The federal aid and state money to match it has gone into construction and the jobs have been distributed over the state. The construction work accomplished this year has been as follows: Nine-tenths miles of concrete road between Bennington and Hoosac Falls, estimated cost $564,311; 432 miles of gravel road in Sherburne between Rutland and Woodstock, estimated cost $28,700; seven miles water mound macadam between St. Albans and Enosburg, estimated cost $23,580; 12.57 miles gravel road between Rutland and Manchester, estimated cost $278,250; 4.07 miles bituminous macadam, estimated cost $118,900; 4.3 miles bituminous macadam between Burlington and Newport and Barton, estimated cost $42,500; 1.2 miles concrete south of Rutland, estimated cost $42,000; two miles of bituminous macadam in Guilford, estimated cost $48,000; and 5.6 miles gravel road in Dummerston, estimated cost, $136,400.

In a few places special appropriations were made for work in town. In these cases the towns contributed to the fund. Federal aid money was not used in these jobs. The sum of $7,500 was expended in fixing the road over Lincoln Mountain. $2,000 was spent on Harlow hill at the foot of Mt. Mansfield. $5,000 was spent on the Stratton tangle in Sunderland. $11,000 was spent on the Smugglers Notch road, $12,000 on Sanbar bridge and $2,000 on the east shore of Willoughby Lake.

The state highway department contracted about 110 bridges most of them of concrete, but a few of them of steel. About $100,000 was expended in this work.

While the federal aid money and the state money to match it goes into road construction, the automobile money goes into maintenance. Of the $640,000 about $150,000 goes into the bark roads. The regular state aid money of $260,000 goes into permanent work. The five per cent tax money is distributed among the 247 towns. It is distributed on the basis of mileage so that a town with a big mileage stands a better chance than does the rich town with a small mileage.

Vermont is allotted $775,000 of federal aid road money by the treasury department in connection of the bill for federal aid in improving highways. State Highway Commissioner T. W. Dix says the state department of highways may be able to avail of part of this money next year.

Under the provisions of the bill the state can get as much money as it draws from the government. Arrangements under this new law made and filed at Washington by July 1, 1922, will be allowed.

Reports of Unrest Have Come From Egypt But Was Not Considered Serious Up To This Time

(By the Associated Press.)

MALTA, Dec. 23—Two British warships have received orders to proceed to Egypt immediately. Other units of the British Mediterranean fleet are under orders to leave at the shortest notice.

For which reports of unrest in Egypt have filtered through to the outside world in brief news dispatches. There has been considerable unrest over the form of government and leading Egyptians have been advocating a government similar to that of Canada. The success of the British negotiations may have stimulated a new uprising. Reports have also been received of activities of Mohammedans and the present trouble may be due to their activities. No information has yet been received in British circles as to the trouble in Egypt.

SLAYER OF AUTO SALESMAN GUILTY

CHICAGO, Dec. 23—Harvey Church, charged with the murder of two automobile salesmen, was found guilty this morning and sentenced to death. He killed Carl Asmus and Bernard Daughtery when they delivered a car which he arranged to buy.

State Has 800,000 Acres of Timber

The area of merchantable timber on Vermont farms in 1920 reported from 13,247 farms, was 473,717 acres, according to a United States department of agriculture report received by W. G. Hastings, state forester. As this is about half of the farms in the state, the correct area would be probably above 900,000 acres, Mr. Hastings calculated.

The value of forest products used on the farm, including cordwood, fence posts, and lumber from logs produced on the farm is reported for 1919 at $2,685,451 on a basis of reports from 69.3 percent of the farms in the state. The value of lumber and pulp wood produced here and actually sold during 1919 was $32,934,050, according to figures prepared by the state forester.

If the value of the forest products used on all the farms in the state for 1919 is estimated at $3,300,000, the total for lumber and pulp wood sold and used on the farm is over $36,000,000.

According to the state forester's figures, the value of all the dairy products produced in the state during that year was $2,720,813. On this basis, the lumber industry exceeds the sale of dairy products in importance, and lumber becomes a more important item than dairy products, potatoes and orchard fruits put together.

The value of Vermont's lumber could be increased many times over in a decade or two if the lumber were completely finished before shipping, instead of being shipped raw, in Mr. Hastings's opinion. This increase could be secured in the time given by the expenditure of the sum of $10,000 on a forest department, Mr. Hastings stated.

The officials of the road declare that there were no injuries resulting from the accident.

MUST RESTORE PENSION FUND IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—Mayor Hylan and other members of the board of estimates of this city faced in jail sentences for contempt of court unless they restore to the city budget not later than Dec. 25 some $3,000,000 alleged to have been illegally deducted from the pension fund for the police and other civilian employees. The Appellate division of the supreme court yesterday upheld the writ of mandamus issued by supreme court justice Mullin three days after the deduction of the money. The budget has been in their hands since it was returned several days ago by the board of aldermen.
