Our Dying President.

Washington, Aug. 27.—At noon Dr. Bliss said: I think the President no better than yesterday, and that is about the same as saying he is worse, because the longer he goes on this way the less are his chances. He has not failed a great deal since 7 o'clock. His greatest depression is in the morning. His pulse during the forenoon was 110 to 118. I think he realizes his condition to a certain extent. He has inquired about his pulse and gland several times to-day. I don't think he has given up the hope of recovery. He seemed more discouraged this morning than usual, which probably induced the physical depression. His mind seems to react unfavorably on his body. He asked how he was, and Mrs. Garfield and I gave him reassuring replies that seemed to brace him up, as he soon rallied. His mind is absolutely clear and much better than yesterday. He understands everything that is said and done about him. His parotid gland is not changed much. It continues to discharge through the ear rather more freely. No other glands are affected and there are no other suppurations except in the gland, and it is found that the pus indicates a trifle more depletion of the system. I think yesterday's slim chance has grown slimmer.

"You still hope for recovery?"
"Yes, I hope for it."

TRUTHFUL REPORT.

Chicago, August 27.—The Tribune's Washington special says: A lady who conversed with Mrs. Dr. Edson expressed warm sympathy for Mrs. Garfield, referring at the same time to the report that she soon expects to increase her maternal cares. "Mrs. Garfield is in her usual vigorous health," replied Mrs. Dr. Edson, "and there is not a word of truth in the statement to which you refer."

"THEN THAT MIRACLE WILL OCCUR."

It is reported that when Mrs. Garfield was notified by Dr. Boynton last night that only a miracle could save the President, her husband, she said, "Then that miracle will occur. My husband will recover. He must."

Washington, Aug. 27.—After resting easily through the night the President became worse about 4 o'clock a. m. and has been growing feebler since. At a time this morning his pulse was up to 148 though when the bulletin was issued at 8:30 it was but 120. Since then it has remained steady. Doctor Reburn said at 10 o'clock there had been no material change since the issuing of the bulletin, but the President was very feeble and hopes entertained yesterday of relief through the suppuration of the inflamed gland were less bright to-day. The fact is the President has been dying since 4 o'clock this morning. Dr. Power, pastor of the Christian church, has been at the White House all morning, and will not leave until the end. The members of the cabinet are all at the White House, and in consultation in the cabinet room. The subject of the conference is the advisability of sending for Vice President Arthur at once. It was understood last night that they agreed that this should not be done till in the opinion of the physicians the end was at hand. They discussed as to whether the time had not already arrived. Great excitement prevails on the streets, and reports of the President's death are circulated almost hourly. To add to the excitement, alarming rumors are in circulation regarding organized bodies of men in neighboring cities who are banded together to come here and lynch Guitau. It is said the guards at the jail are in sympathy with Guitau, and only await a favorable opportunity to themselves murder Guitau. Gen. Sherman, in conjunction with the Secretary of War and State, are, however, taking every precaution to preserve peace.

Executive Mansion, 12:30 p. m.—Members of the Cabinet are all still here, but no decisive change has taken place in the President's condition. Attorney-General MacVeagh authorizes the statement that Vice-President Arthur has not been telegraphed for, and there has been no decision to send for him as yet. Bliss said to a reporter of the Associated Press at noon that his belief is the President cannot recover. He thinks, however, death will not occur immediately, and he may linger several days.

LINGERING HOPE.

Executive Mansion, 2:30 p. m.—The President's condition remains substantially unchanged. Some of the President's intimate personal friends and attendants still cling to the hope of his recovery. Colonel Rockwell, in conversation this afternoon, said with much emphasis and feeling, "Notwithstanding the discouraging bulletins that has been said, and notwithstanding the dispatches which have been far and wide over the country, I tell the President is not dying and still no signs of dying. I do not speculate on the chances of the future. The patient is enough for me. He is not dead now. Not ten minutes since I heard Gen. Swain, who stood by his bedside, that he thought he felt better than he did yesterday. A long while ago, he was talking to me about him. Gen. G. said, 'With me it is ways the unexpected which happens. I believe the unexpected may happen here now in the President's case, and that he may surprise the country by getting well.'"

AWAITING THE GOING DOWN OF SUN.

Washington, August 27.—Every quiet about the White House at writing, and every one is waiting anxiously for the going down of the sun, which it is believed, will mark the beginning of the end. No bulletins have been issued since noon, and only Woodward and Edson are at the White House. None of the members of Cabinet put in an appearance since adjournment of the consultation noon.

RUMOR THAT CONGRESS WILL BE VENDED.

It is reported again that a proclamation calling congress in session is in the hands of Secretary Blaine to be issued this evening.

A LITTLE BETTER.

Executive Mansion, 3:30 p. m.—There has been no marked change in the President's condition this afternoon. Gen. Swain, who has just come from his room, thinks the President is a little better.

WHEN AGNEW WILL BE SENT FOR.

Dr. Bliss says: "We shall not send for Agnew unless there is some doubt about treatment. Please don't quote me as saying that the President's case is hopeless. I don't think it is. He has a chance, although perhaps a slim chance, and I still hope for his recovery."

OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

Executive Mansion, 6:30 p. m.—The President's symptoms show slight amelioration this afternoon. His pulse is somewhat less frequent and his temperature lower. Moreover, the mental disturbance described in yesterday morning's bulletin has disappeared. The parotid swelling has discharged a little pus by the opening spontaneously formed into the ear as well as by incision. The liquid food given by the mouth and enemata continue to be retained. Pulse 114, temperature 98.9, respirations 22.

Signed.

D. W. BLISS,
J. K. BARNES,
J. J. WOODWARD,
ROBT. REYBURN,
FRANK HAMILTON.

BLISS GIVES UP.

Bliss has practically given the case up. In answer to a question of a Western Union Associated Press agent he said: "There may be hope, yet, but I see no prospect of recovery."

Dr. Boynton, on the contrary, who last night had given up all hope, says the President is better to-day than for two days past.

The Cabinet consultation broke at 12:30 p. m., and the result of the discussion is that Arthur will not be sent for at present. Secretary Kirkwood, James Blaine and Hunt were asked by a reporter as they passed out of the hall of the White House as to the condition. All said there had been no favorable change. Bliss is reported as having told members of the Cabinet that he would be able to inform them several hours in advance of the President's death, giving them ample time to send for the Vice-President. The doctor is also quoted as having told an intimate personal acquaintance that the President's mind was now clear, but that his faculties would desert him some time before death.

HIS PASTOR VISITS HIM.

New York, Aug. 27.—The Post's Washington special says: The President's pastor saw him a few moments yesterday morning and is now with him. He says he has spoken clearly, calmly and cheerfully. He understood his condition and expressed himself prepared to die. Last night Doctor Reburn, recognizing the great danger told Mrs. Garfield it would be better that the children should sleep in the house. For this reason Miss Mollie, who has been passing the nights at Col. Rockwell's came from there and passed the night at the Executive Mansion. Doctor Agnew is expected to arrive at noon. Doctor Power, his pastor, is now with him.

BUT SMALL DISCHARGE OF PUS.

New York, Aug. 27.—A Washington special says: Upon assembling this morning for the usual examination the physicians found the debility so far increased as to dwarf all other conditions. The doctors said the wound and gland showed but a small discharge of pus and this watery in appearance. The ends of the wounds were flabby and granulation of a lighter color. His lungs are evidently affected and should the patient live long enough he will probably pass through a period of suffering with them. The President's sons were informed at an early hour of the change for the worse. They had been sleeping on cots in the corridor neither having been undressed for the night. The children went into the sick room about 7:30 and spoke cheerfully to their father and his daughter kissed him. They remained but a few moments.

BLAINE TO LOWELL.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Minister Lowell, London: There has been no change for the better in the President's condition since this morning. His fever has risen and his pulse at this hour, 2 p. m., is 120. His physicians do not regard the case as hopeless, but very dangerous and critical.

Ottawa, Canada, August 27.—There is universal sadness at the news from Washington.

A CLEAR MIND.

Blaine cabled to Lowell at 10:30 p. m. and said: There is a somewhat more hopeful feeling to-night in regard to the President. The regular evening bulletin was more favorable, and good indications have continued. His pulse is lower, being now 114, and of better quality. Mind is very clear. He has shown a positive appetite, asking for milk toast, a small quantity of which he was permitted to eat. This is the first time for many days that he has swallowed anything but liquid food; the slight increase in his respiration is the only adverse symptom reported at this hour, 10:30 p. m.

Advance Rates.

Denver, Aug. 27.—A private meeting of Denver merchants was held last night to consider the matter of advanced freight rates on the Rio Grande. After an exhaustive discussion a Committee of five was appointed to write upon General Freight Agent Eccles. The committee to-day called on Eccles, and Wolfe Londoner, chairman of the committee, delivered an address assuring the Rio Grande Company of the friendly feeling of the merchants towards that road, and setting forth that by increasing rates, as heretofore announced, the Denver merchants would be deprived of from one-half to two-thirds of their entire trade. Eccles responded that no advance would be made for at least three months, and thought they might rely on the question being permanently settled.

Davis Disappears.

New York, Aug. 27.—The Tribune says: The apparently unaccountable disappearance which causes some talk among business men is John H. Davis, drug broker and head of the firm of John H. Davis & Co., Maiden Lane. He left his store July 21st, telling his clerks he was going to the Catskills for a week or ten days. Since then the clerks have heard nothing of him. Davis is a native of Missouri, and it is said a near relative of Jefferson Davis. He is well spoken of among drug dealers and was a major in the Confederate army upon General N. B. Forrest's staff.

Big Fire.

Chicago, August 27.—A great fire broke out about 8 o'clock this evening in the packing establishment of C. H. Huley, formerly known as Ricker's, at the Union stock yards, which had not been extinguished at midnight, at which time all the engines were working on it, being greatly impeded in their efforts by the scarcity of water. Few facts are learned as yet, but it is known 450,000 pounds of bacon and a large quantity of lard and provisions were stored in the warehouse and will be completely destroyed. A rumor comes over the telephone that several persons are killed. The loss will probably reach a million of dollars.

Desperadoes Demolish a Saloon.

Galveston, August 27.—A gang of desperadoes have for the past week been committing every kind of lawlessness about Dangerfield. At Carson yesterday they entered a bar room, drove the proprietor out, and having satisfied their appetites, demolished the establishment.

Three Men Killed.

New York, Aug. 27.—Three men were killed and two badly hurt by the falling of a heavy mass of iron which was being hoisted by the Brush Electric Light Company to illuminate the Union Square. Deceased were workmen.
