A DISTILLERY EXPLOSION AND FIRE.

Aurora, Ind., Nov. 11.—A terrific explosion which shook the foundations of the town, occurred a little before midnight, was caused by the blowing up of a still in the distillery. The building took fire and one hundred feet of railroad end was destroyed. Billy Fowler, sleeping in the building, is known to have been killed. Loss $40,000 insured.

WOODSTOCK CONSIDERED.

St. Johns, N. B., Nov. 11.—It is feared that there have been lives lost at the conflagration in Woodstock, which is on St. Johns River and is the seat of Carleton county. It contained over one hundred stores, a large number of hotels, several foundries and factories and a population of four or five thousand. Nothing has been received from there since 3 a. m.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., Nov. 11.—A great gale of Woodstock for the third day in ashes. Incendiaries without the shadow of a doubt caused the disaster. About midnight the Mechanics Institute was found to be afire. A heavy north-west wind was blowing and in a few minutes the building was enveloped in flames. An engine was soon at work, but the fire seized W. F. Dibble's and Benjamin Smith's new residences and they burned to the ground. In the meantime the flames burst out in Mayor R. K. Jones' barn, a third of a mile to the westward. The wind now seemed to blow a hurricane and swept the flames onto Jones' residence, then across the street and the sides of Main Street were fiercely burning. The Free Baptist church, old and new Episcopal church and the Register office were wrapped in flames. Conflagration was now on every face. The work of destruction was of short duration, the engine company having stayed the flames. At the instant the section came across the bridge to battle with greater and newer danger, the men were driven down Main Street house by house, till at last, on the street passing the new hotel they finally stayed the flames. The fire swept Main Street from Hugh Hayston Hall for two rods on each side, running down to a point at the river, ending with the residence of J. G. Allen. Some eighty houses burned and their occupants are now sheltered by inhabitants whose houses escaped the flames. The loss is placed at $80,000; insurance, $32,000. No lives were lost but many persons were injured.

Oregon Railway and Navigation Company.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—President Villard of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, has just issued his annual report to the stockholders. It is shown in the report that the company has, during the past year, completed 250 miles of standard gauge road and before January, 1st next, Mr. Villard expects to have built 325 miles of road will be completed and in active operation. There has been constructed 1,464 feet of How truss and 11,208 of trestle. The large bridge over Snake river, two miles below Texas ferry, representing an aggregate length of 1,415 feet and is now in process of construction. All questions of right of way being settled at comparatively low cost to the company, and with most advantages to the public, the right way across the Omilla Indian reservation on the Baker city line was amicably settled at the council by an agreement on the part of the company to pay the Indians $2.50 per acre for all wild lands and $27.50 per acre for cultivated land necessary for railway and depot grounds located within the reservation. The whole cost will be about $45,000 when all deliveries shall have been made under existing contracts the equipment of the company will consist of 51 locomotives, eighteen passenger cars, four Pullman sleeping cars, two baggage cars, two combined baggage, mail and express cars, 600 covered freight cars, 500 flat cars, 100 stock cars and forty hand cars. New York Press on the Star Route Failure.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Tribune on the failure of the star route cases says, it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that Corkhill, for some reason, deliberately betrayed the government he had sworn faithfully to serve.

The Times in a more temperate article says the facts show that Corkhill lacked that positive interest and zeal which should impel him to ascertain whether the government had any use for the Grand Jury.

The Herald and Sun charges the responsibility for the blunder on the side of the government to MacVeagh.

Honest Seth Low.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Sun having praised Seth Low's canvass for the Brooklyn mayoralty as a model campaign alleges that Low had refused to contribute to its expenses. The latter in a personal card in the Sun to-day says so far as it relates to myself the statement is literally true. I have not expended one cent in my own behalf directly or indirectly, but toward the end of last week I did send $100 to the Republican campaign committee with such a far as it relates to myself the interest of the other candidates and not in mine.

Outraged Outlaw.

Omaha, Nov. 11.—Sheriff Killian of Grand Island, captured two Winchester rifles and two heavy revolvers with Ed. Williams, alias Maxwell, one rifle being the property of Alonzo Williams who is still at large, but being persuaded by a moneyed party which includes the brother of Sheriff Coleman of Pepin, Wisconsin. Ed. Maxwell had one hundred rounds of cartridges and a machine for reilling shells. Ed. will be taken to Wisconsin as soon as the proper papers can be made out.

Iowa Senatorial Question.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Inter Ocean recently addressed to each member of the Iowa legislature a letter asking their sentiments on the senatorial question. Of 14 Republicans 81 resented and 41 declare for Jas. T. Wilson. Fifty desire their letters confidential and 21 of those not heard from are instructed for Wilson, which will make his vote at 80 in 62 in caucus, being a majority of 4 and his friends claim he will receive 80 votes on the first ballot.

Hollins Declines.

New York, Nov. 11.—District Attorney Rollins, just elected surrogate, having been invited to be in the counsel for the Government in the Gurnea case writes to the Washington authorities that as the trial would probably outlast the calendar year he would be obliged to retire while it is still pending and he therefore declines becoming counsel.

Progress of the Mexican National.

Laredo, Nov. 11.—Work on the Mexican National Railway which was temporarily suspended by order of the United States authorities has been resumed. The first construction train will cross the Rio Grande in a few days and then two miles of track per day will be laid. The International roads track is within thirty miles of Laredo and coming at the rate of a mile and a half per day.

Slaughter of Convicts.

Harris Hung.

Greenboro, Georgia, Nov. 11.—Joe Harris, colored, convicted and sentenced to-day for the murder of young Langston, was executed in private. Harris denied to the last the killing of Langston.

Grant's Influence on the Administration.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Tribune's Washington special this morning, says, about Grant's overshadowing influence in the new administration that it is generally regarded here as the first gun in the warfare which Blaine and the Anti-Stalwarts are opening on the President. Our correspondent has seen Gen. Grant with reference to these several allegations, and as a matter of public interest, not less than of justice to himself and the President, it might be said that he denounces them as false and malicious. He says he has not sought in any way to influence the President in any manner imputed to him; that as regards Chaffee, the latter was politically hostile to him at Chicago and never was considered a Grant man; as for his intimate relations with him, the fact is, said the General, I have never been interested with him in any transactions to the extent of a dollar. As to his wishing to have Blaine out of the cabinet, Grant says that is about the only truthful thing in the entire indictment. He wishes him out because he believes he is not a fit man to be there. He only craves ordinary military service that he is aware of is an expressed desire that the eastern missions should be filled with special reference to the promotion of our commercial interest in that quarter, a thorough knowledge of the peculiar requirements of which the General obtained in his journey around the world. If young was urged as minister to Japan, it was wholly in the interests of the public, and the main motive operated in regard to Kramer. The statement that the General has insisted that the Garfield men must be put out he denounces unqualifiedly and with unmistakable emphasis as an untrue, entirely false and malicious. He spoke with considerable feeling and gave again the correspondent to understand that he was not ignorant either of the motives of his accusers, nor of the source of their inspiration back of the accusations. He says he has not intimated that it might get he duty to himself and to the President to publicly expose both.

Dublin, Nov. 11.—The United Ireland denies that Sexton has become its editor and states that he never had any connection with it. CARVER WINS ANOTHER VICTORY.

Dr. Carver was again successful in a pigeon shooting match, killing thirty-six out of fifty, the stipulated number.

Captain Kennedy, of the steamship Germania, was fined £10 for bringing Liverpool dock three boxes of cartridges shipped at New York in spite of positive proof that they were not indicated in bill of lading.

THE LAND COMMISSIONER'S DECISIONS.

Dublin, Nov. 11.—The Land Commissioner in decisions in sixteen cases on Marlin and Cornwall estates, made material reductions in rent. In two cases the rent was reduced to 10 shillings and 13 shillings 6-pence respectively.

Kidd's Cussedness.

Jefferson City, Nov. 11.—Captain J. K. Kidd, ex-member of the Republican State central committee and Post master at Kittridge, Osage county, was arrested and brought before the United States Commissioner here to-day charged with collecting illegal fees for issuing pensions. He was arrested and committed to jail in default of $5,000 bail.

A Gentleman sent a copy of Browning's first acknowledged work, "Paracelsus," to Tom Hood, who was then confined to his bed by illness, thinking that it might "amuse the patient." The story is told that Hood took up the volume, and, having perused it for a few minutes, handed it to his wife. "Read, my dear, read," he exclaimed, with a wild look in his eyes. Mrs. Hood soon appeared to be absorbed in "Paracelsus." "Well," asked Hood, anxiously, after a pause, "well?" "Why," replied, in doleful tones, Mrs. H., "I can't make out a word of it." A sigh of relief burst from her husband. "Thank God!" he cried, "then I have not lost my reason."

David Davis was not born great; but by reason of a good appetite he has had greatness thrust upon him.

Brian Korn.

The favorite hero of Celtic bard and historian fell fighting, as everybody knows, or ought to know, on the field of Clontarf; or rather he was slain toward the end of the battle by some fugitive Dane, who found him praying in his tent—like Moses—for the success of his people. He was at that time 88 years of age. Many of his kith and kin perished in the same battle. His eldest son, Murrough, was also used upon the battle-ax with great effect upon the Danes until his right hand and arm became so swollen that his blows were unable to deal death through the armor of his enemies. In this condition he was set upon by the Danish chief Arnulf. Seizing his enemy with his left hand, Murrough first shook him out of his armor and then killed him with his ax, but it is said that the Dane, in his last moments, snatched his opponent's knife from his belt and plunged it into his side. Tordlebeck, or Turloghach, also died hard that day. He was only a boy of 18, but, despite his youth, the "Annals of Clonmacheoise" tell us that his body was found after the battle floating in the tideway of the Tolka river, with both his hands twisted in the hair of a Dane that he had followed into the sea. Fortunately for the MacMahons, some of Brian's children survived this famous day at Clontarf. Tordlebeck, the second son of another son—left a child, Murrough, who afterwards became King of Ireland in 1100. He left a son Mahon O'Brian, the first MacMahon of Co. Wick. That the family came of good fighting stock, we think the above will sufficiently attest. By what process this Mahon O'Brian became chief of Co. Wick, namely, all of the shore line, hills, river, vale and meadow we have looked at from the height of land on this summer evening, lately described, is now a record; but war to get possession could not have proven a matter of grave difficulty to the kin of Murrough, the armor-shaker, or Tordlebeck, the hair-twister.—Contemporary Review.

We do not know exactly, but suppose that long men lived in the early ages, with their parents until they grew up. Then probably they started a ranch of their own, or married some girl with money who wanted a husband that she could look up to.—Texas Sittings.

A certain spruce young man of our lively city dressed himself up in most elegant style night before last and, notwithstanding the snow was almost chin deep, started out about nine o'clock to pay a visit to his girl. The snow was falling fast and grew deeper and deeper, as he stumbled on through back lots and lumber yards and across acquias, until within a short distance of his destination, when he suddenly struck an extraordinary drift of snow, through which he shot some fifteen or twenty feet. It was an old well, with considerable water in it, and he enjoyed (?) the pleasure of staying there for about three hours in the dead of night. Finally some one came along, answered his cries for help and pulled him out, almost frozen.
