Congressman Belford, of Colorado, Goes for President Arthur.

At the Capital.

Washington, December 7.—The general comment on the President's message among Senators and Congressmen of all sections of political belief appear to be that it is a very able document. Opinions as to the correctness of its conclusions vary of course, according to party affiliation and individual sentiment, but there is a general agreement that in clearness of style, dignity of tone, and force of argument it is far above the average level of the annual President's messages for a number of years, and that it indicates the possession, by its author, of a much higher grade of ability than has heretofore been attributed to him. There is some disappointment among the Pacific coast representatives at the absence of any hearty recommendation for legislative action to restrict Chinese immigration especially as the President takes pains to suggest that Congress should carefully regard the interests and susceptibilities of the Chinese government in legislating on that subject. On the other hand, it is noted with gratification that the message does say that legislation is necessary to carry the treaties into effect and also that the President significantly, though not so open as might be desired, refers to the evils of the Chinese immigration when he says that our government views with concern the efforts to seek replenishment of the diminished population of the Sandwich Islands from outward sources.

President Arthur's vigorous utterances upon the Mormon question give unalloyed satisfaction to the Pacific coast people and all other opponents of polygamy, and will probably have a decided influence on the result of the pending contest in regard to the admission of Campbell as an anti-Mormon delegate. It is considered highly probable that the Republican members of the House will solidly sustain Speaker Keifer in the position taken by him to-day in favor of Campbell, and these combined influences will also, it is believed, be reinforced by many Democratic members whose abhorrence of Mormonism will lead them to forgo the possible advantage of embarrassing the Republican speaker by supporting the purpose of the opposition, led by ex-Speaker Randall, so that on the whole Campbell's admission seems to be pretty well assured.

The announcement made by Senator Davis, of Illinois, of his position on the question of changing the officers of the Senate has definitely removed both of these questions from the field of controversy during the present Congress, the status of the Senate being changed by the death of more of its members from doubtful States.

The candidacy of Gorham and Riddler for the offices of Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate is accordingly relegated to the domain of dead issues. Senator Miller to-day introduced three bills, by request; one directs the officers of the Treasury to examine all unpaid accounts heretofore filed in the departments for services rendered and supplies furnished under the direction of the Indian Department and its agents and in cases where said services and supplies are found to have actually been applied to the benefit of the Indians to report to Congress the balance equitably due on said account, notwithstanding no sufficient appropriation existed to pay them. The second bill provides that fees allowed to registers and receivers for reducing testimony to writing shall not be taken into account in determining the maximum of compensation and that such fees deposited in the Treasury since July 1st, 1878, must be reimbursed to them. The third bill provides that the President may re-appoint Captain Alfred Hedbert in the United States Army by nominating and the confirmation with his former date of commission, and assign him the first vacancy in the infantry.

Senator Teller reintroduced the following well known bill for the payment of some five hundred thousand dollars to Ben. Holliday for losses sustained by Indian depredations and while performing overland mail service. Senator Grover reintroduced his bill to report to Congress the balance equitably due on said account, notwithstanding no sufficient appropriation existed to pay them. The second bill provides that fees allowed to registers and receivers for reducing testimony to writing shall not be taken into account in determining the maximum of compensation and that such fees deposited in the Treasury since July 1st, 1878, must be reimbursed to them. The third bill provides that the President may re-appoint Captain Alfred Hedbert in the United States Army by nominating and the confirmation with his former date of commission, and assign him the first vacancy in the infantry.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The criminal court was densely crowded this morning. Among the audience was Gen. Sherman and Rev. Dewitt Talmage. The prosecution commenced in rebuttal demolishing the theory of insanity. They will retrace the ground gone over by the defense and from the stand point of the prosecution and thoroughly ventilate Guitau's past life and habits beginning with his early life in Freeport and concluding with the vast amount of the best expert testimony obtainable in the country. As soon as the court formally opened Guitau addressed the court thus: "May it please your honor, the American people do not desire this case to be tried over," and I do not desire it. I say with the utmost respect to this court and jury, and my counsel, Scoville, that I am satisfied with the political situation as developed here in this case. That's the gist of this alleged offense. I say I have a right as a matter of law of appearing as my own counsel. I ask your honor that Gen. Grant, Senators Conkling and Platt and President Arthur and other of that kind of men who were so down on Garfield, they would not speak to him on the street and would not go to the White House, to be put on the stand. I have a right to show my personal relations to these men. That I was cordially received by them and that I was well dressed and fed at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Grant it to show my personal relations to those men. I don't want to except to your honor's ruling, but I shall be obliged to do so, and I have no doubt the court will give me a new trial."

Judge Cox—Your exception has been noted. Scoville then called up the subject of President Arthur's testimony and said he had not received any response to his interrogation that the President's evidence was absolutely essential to the defense. Guitau interrupted him excitedly with, "I don't think it at all necessary for Gen. Arthur to be here."

Scoville—I don't care what you want, I am doing this myself. Guitau—I ask as a personal favor that he shall not be dragged into court. I think a good deal of Gen. Arthur. He is President of the United States and I don't think he should be bothered with this matter. Striking that violently. He is President of the United States and I made him so and I think I should have something to say in this matter.

The witness simply recited the orders he had issued for the disposition of troops at the time of the assignment. He identified the letter written by Guitau, and said he suspected all the time there might be a conspiracy, but afterwards concluded the shooting was the act and intent of Guitau.

As he left the stand Guitau said, "I thank you for having ordered out troops that day. If it had not been for you I should not be here to-day. I owe my life to the protection which you and General Hooker gave me during that period when mob spirit was rife."

At this the General smiled grimly. Afterward H. Barton, a lawyer, A. T. Green and G. W. Gandir, all of Freeport, Illinois, testified that they knew Guitau's family and considered all sane. Adjourned.

The Flipper Case. Washington, Dec. 7.—At the opening of court this morning Flipper made the following statement of the first charge and its specifications in his case. I declare to you in the most solemn and positive manner possible that I am perfectly innocent in every way, shape and form; that I have never by myself, or by another appropriated, converted or applied to my own use a single dollar or any of the Government money, or permitted it to be done, or authorized any person to meddle with the same. The funds for which I was responsible I kept in my quarters in my trunk because I felt more secure to have them in my own custody. On May 2nd I received a telegram from General Small not to return until the amount intended being absent from San Antonio. This I contrived to apply to every thing pertaining to funds. As I was not informed, some one left to attend to the routine of business then during my absence, submitted my funds regularly to the commanding officer for inspection and did not make a statement in consequence of the telegram of May 2nd. I thought it unnecessary and discontinued the use of the accumulated funds, after verification, I put in my trunk and they were not examined until July 8th. I then discovered a discrepancy of $1,254. I did not know what to do but chose to put in my own check for the amount intended to deposit personally in the Bank before required to remit. I relied on getting money from the publisher of my book who had promised it. I was disappointed again. I had no theory nor the shortage occurred and I do not suspect the servant had made up the deficiency.

Comments on the Message. New York, Dec. 7.—The Journal is crowded to-day with the President's message and documents incident to the opening of the new Congress. The message itself is universally well spoken of, particularly by the Republican and Independent sheets.

The World says the message is full of views and the views are not pretended to be the views of the country, or even of the party, but only the personal opinions of President Arthur. No careful reader of the message can fail to note this peculiarity and few reflective readers will be at a loss to assign it to its true cause which made the letter of acceptance of the Republican candidate for Vice-President last year so much more outspoken and positive than the letter of the Republican candidate for President. The World concludes in regard to our foreign relations: "The President speaks with a force and clearness which will command the respect of men of all parties."

David Manifests Indignation. Washington, Dec. 7.—When referring to his acceptance of the position of President of the Senate in his speech to-day, Davis manifested considerable indignation in alluding to various newspaper criticisms that he had sold himself to the Republicans. He was very emphatic in the re-assertion that not a single word tending to commit himself to the Republicans passed between him and them prior to his acceptance of the position. His speech has made the Senate officials and employees happy.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—Civil suits against the alleged star route conspirators came before Judge Butler and the jury in the United States District Court to-day. Verdicts were given against Benjamin B. Wiley for $7,500; $8,000, $8,000 and $400, amounts of bonds accompanying the principals for carrying on the star route which he was bidder. Judge Butler formed the opinion that the Government should have other and more direct evidence than that which it proposed to offer and a new jury will consider as to the cases of Joseph Fink principal and Joseph R. Black and Henry C. Arbuttle, his sureties, judgments were given for $1,975, $4,156, and $3,018, the amounts of contracts in which they were concerned.

New Railroad Company. San Francisco, Dec. 7.—A new railroad company has been formed under the name of the Arizona and Nevada Railroad and Navigation Company. Its object is the construction of a line between Cayville, Nevada, and Yuma, with extensions by rail or water as may hereafter be determined, to Port Isabel and Libertad, on the Gulf of California. The company has been incorporated under the laws of Arizona but has its principal business office in San Francisco. The capital stock is twenty million dollars. The road will pass through the line of mining district on the Eastern bank of the Colorado river. From Fort Isabel the line will continue to Altar and through the rich mining district to Libertad.

Violently Opposed. New York, Dec. 7.—The Post's Washington special says: Western Congressmen, notably representatives from bullion producing States are violently opposed to the recommendations of the President and Secretary Folger that the coinage of the silver dollar be stopped and silver certificates be withdrawn. Representative Belford, of Colorado, in speaking for their sentiment says: Such a policy will alienate bullion States against which it discriminates. It will be as unpopular there as a suggestion to repeal the duty on iron would be in Pennsylvania. If President Arthur desires to make war on my State, I shall not support him in his policy.

Explosion in a Candle Factory. San Francisco, Dec. 7.—The loss by the explosion at the candle factory this morning is estimated at about $30,000. The boiler was of high pressure, eighteen feet long, and two feet in diameter. A piece weighing a ton was thrown over a two-story building, and landed in a gravel pit a thousand yards distant. Other pieces of great weight were thrown against the wall of a warehouse and shattering adjoining buildings. Bricks, timber, grease and candles were distributed over the neighborhood. That no lives were lost is almost miraculous.

Foreign. CRIME NOT DIMINISHED. Dublin, Dec. 7.—Justice Fitzgerald, in opening the Munster Assizes, said the Government's peace measure which exceeded the anticipations of the most ardent advocate of tenant rights, caused many to remember to get the burnt article.

Taking Fast Horses East. Cheyenne, Dec. 7.—O. A. Hitchcock, a well-known jockey, returned his conveyance with eight fine horses to St. Julian. Santa Clause, Overton, Sweetheart and Promising, California three-year old horses in a Central Pacific baggage car.

General Meeting. Washington, Dec. 7.—General Negley President of the Nation Council of the Union League of America, called a general meeting of the Council in Philadelphia on the 14th of December.

Convinced. Indianapolis, Dec. 7.—Dr. Orphans says all experts on insanity here who have been summoned in the Guitau case, are convinced by the cross-examination of his responsibility.

Arizona Smelting Furnace. The following is a description of an inexpensive copper smelting furnace in use in Arizona: It is simply a large perpendicular square frame, built of well dressed stone, and thirty feet high. Five feet from the top the feed opening is placed, and here to the bed of the furnace it is fifteen feet. It has a capacity of fifteen tons daily. It has stout copper plates in the masonry where the heat will be the most intense. It will be firmly secured from damage by expansion by means of iron clamps. The slag and metal discharge openings are in front. The low position of the smelter gives little show for a slag dump, but that is to be obviated by the erection of a derrick with a thirty foot arm, which lifts the slag pots and swings them sixty feet from the furnace. The cost of the furnace does not exceed $700.

The aggregate expenses of the courts in New Mexico for two years past, foots up $73,310.43. This sum is divided as follows: Bernalillo county, $3,451.30; Colfax county, $3,003.67; Dona Ana, $7,830.83; Grant, $7,407.34; Lincoln, $4,781.30; Mora, $4,594.96; Rio Arriba, $3,211.78; San Miguel, $13,490.16; Santa Fe, $14,264.69; Socorro, $3,857.62; Taos, $3,622.50; Valencia, $3,189.77; Supreme Court, January, 1881, $961.90. Jurors' and witnesses pay, mileage, sheriff's, district attorneys' and clerks' fees, are included in the above. In the court expenses of the first and second districts are included traveling expenses for Judges Prince and Parks.—Albuquerque Review.

Freeze-to-be-nobby-young-men: The fellows with carat diamond studs catch cold quickest. They expose their lanch-dried shirt fronts instead of buttoning up the ulster.

Intellectual legs: A London woman censure on Mr. Irving's limbs thus indulges: "Mr. Irving's legs are limp and utter. Both are delicately intellectual, but his left leg is a poind."

A religious paper printed at Pooah, India, says of a young woman who committed suicide: "She ended her virtuous life in the cool retreat afforded by a convenient and unbragous well."

A Printer's Dream. A printer sat in his office chair; his boots were patched and his coat threadbare; while his face looked weary and worn with care. While sadly thinking of business debt, old morpheus around him slowly crept, and before he knew it he soundly slept, and sleeping he dreamed that he was dead: from trouble and toil his spirit had fled, and that not even a cow bell tolled for the peaceful rest of his cow hide soul. As he wandered among the shades, smoke and scorch of hades, he shortly observed an iron door that creaking hung on hinges ajar, but that entrance was crossed by a red-hot iron bar, and Satan himself stood peeping out and watching for travelers thereabout, and thus to the passing printer spoke and with growing voice the echoes woke, "Come in, my dear, it shall cost you nothing, and never fear; this is the place where I took the ones that never pay their subscription sums, for though in life they may escape, they will find when dead it is too late! I will show you the place where I melt them with red hot chains and scrape of tin, and also where I comb their heads with broken glass and melted lead; and if of refreshment they only think, there's boiling water for them to drink; there's the red hot grindstone to grind down his nose, and if they mention they don't like fire, I'll sew up their mouths with red-hot wire; and then, dear sir, you should see them squirm while I rub them over and cook them to a turn. At these last words the printer awoke, and thought it all a practical joke; but still at times so real did it seem, that he cannot believe it was all a dream; and often he thinks with a chuckle and grin of the fate of those who save their tin—and never pay the printer.

The Head-Liner. The professors of journalism who periodically tell us about newspapers have failed to notice a comparatively modern and a very important feature of the newspaper, namely, the head-lines. This is a department of the paper which has stealthily conquered for itself an influence which even newspaper managers sometimes inadequately recognize. It often happens that the ingenious artist in this department is really editing the paper. He can convey an impression which the writers of ponderous leaders are trying to avoid. He can create a doubt or awaken a suspicion by a single artfully-chosen word or sow broadcast an opinion which it may take columns of writing to show is unfounded. Suggestions that are buried in the bodies of articles may attract no notice; but the flaming head-line takes the eye at once, and its diagnosis of the matter which it criticizes may be very wide of the mark without the average reader applying any corrective. The head-line largely regulates the emphasis that is given to the report of current events. Small matters in this way may be magnified, and mere conjectures invested with nearly the dignity of established facts.—Toronto Mail.

Humorous. America is a country where a man's statement is not worth two cents unless backed up with an offer to bet you $10.

A correspondent wants to know how "burnt amber" is made. Very likely the makers have to remember to get the burnt article.

When a man gives you his left hand to shake, it is safe to infer that he has done something with his right hand that he is ashamed of.

Couldn't tell a lie: An honest Hibernian, when asked if he had a pleasant time at the picnic replied: "I'll not deavay ye, son, it was all times a sorrow black eye on the ground till after 3 o'clock."

The star route men have had seven lawyers to pay for the last six months, and some people are beginning to think they are punished enough.

A Dublin newspaper contained the following: "I hereby warn all persons from trusting my wife, Ellen Flanagan, on my account, as I am not married to her."

The London Spectator says: "Genius protects itself." The Spectator has probably heard of the purchase we recently made of a self-cooking revolver.

Synopsized opinion by the court—"These defendants are dismissed. The court finds they stole a large amount—enough to entitle them to respect. Call the next case."
