Suggestions For Thinking People.

To buy a piano is a serious undertaking for most people because they know absolutely nothing about the construction or the requirements necessary for durability as well as tone quality and are therefore unable to determine its value which may subject the buyer to great financial loss, leaving them easy prey for unscrupulous salesmen assisted by the paid advice of a supposed friend, to substitute a varnished think box for a musical instrument with music. Do you care to take that risk?

Great are the obstacles in the way of a judicious selection of a piano when the buyer has no personal knowledge for they must rely almost wholly on the advice of the dealer who can make the way plain for buying advantageously for the most inexperienced buyer, if he so desires, and he will gladly do it if he is honorable. Therefore it is important that you should use good judgment in selecting a dealer. He should be one whom you know to be trustworthy and fair in all his dealings and to whom you can go personally at any time for explanation and advice and on whom you can depend on what he tells you concerning them.

You can readily understand why as a rule it is advisable to "patronize home industry." This rule will apply in almost every line, particularly in buying a piano as the dealer is easily accessible in case attention is required, beside having sold the instrument it is to his interest to see that it is in good condition as a standing endorsement for him, and a very important consideration for the buyer, an advantage he will not have buying from a distant dealer.

Not having the ready money to pay for the piano need not stand in the way of purchasing. Your home may have the advantage of a musical instrument. You can buy on easy terms, paying for it in small monthly payments that will suit you circumstances.

The special sale of the car of pianos still continues. We are making prices on instruments very much lower than they were ever before offered in this part of the state. If you think of buying a piano in the near future it will be to your interests to take advantage of this money saving opportunity.

Salvation Army.

A famous writer once said of the Salvation Army that as an organization it could and did make a dollar do more work than many an average man could get out of five dollars.

This is a fact, as witness the work in the Army's Colonies, Shelters, Salvage Depots, Supply Stores, Rescue Homes and a dozen other centres of its activity, every day in the year. The fact is that there is probably not in existence today an organization, whether religious or secular, that can accomplish so much with so comparatively little expenditure; yet the thing that saddens The Army people is that they could do so much more if they had more resources.

That is something in the nature of a public calamity, for the more the Salvation Army does, the better off the public is. Fortunately an opportunity now presents itself in The Army's Self-Denial Week, April 5th to 12th, when we can all show our interest in a very practical way. We don't very often get out of our way to deny ourselves for another's food. Here, now, is an opportunity to practice a little wholesome self-sacrifice in order to aid those whose utmost joy it is to lay themselves upon the altar of self-sacrifice in order to benefit mankind. We are called here a generous people; let us see that in this instance our reputation as a town is thoroughly sustained.
