JOHN ANDERSON DROWNED

Accident Occurred While the Young Man Was in Bathing Yesterday.

MET DEATH IN ONLY EIGHT FEET OF WATER.

Companions Thought He Was Fooling and Lent Him No Assistance.

John Anderson, 20 years old, an employe at the Crookston Lumber company's mill, was drowned in Lake Bemidji yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock. He was in bathing at the time near the dock where logs are unloaded from the cars. There were three companions with him, but they were so excited that they were unable to save his life, although he met death in a spot where the lake was only eight feet deep. The young man has no relations in Bemidji. He has a sister, Mrs. E. E. Johnson, in St. Paul, but his parents live in the old country.

Anderson, with three companions, engaged a boat and went out for a ride early in the afternoon. They rowed about the lake for a time. When near the unloading dock Anderson proposed that they take a swim. Two companions were agreeable, but the other preferred being taken to shore. He and Anderson were the only ones that could swim.

After splashing about in shallow water near shore for a time Anderson climbed into the boat and was rowed out to where the water was two or three feet over his head. The young man had no bathing suit on, and when one of the gasoline launches with ladies on board approached he told his friends to row the boat ashore, saying that he would swim after them. He accordingly jumped overboard and the boat started for the shore. It had gone but a short distance when Anderson began to call for help and struggle about in the water. The men in the boat thought he was only fooling, and continued rowing away. A few seconds later Anderson sank from sight. He came to the surface again but immediately disappeared. His friends became alarmed at this and rowed back, but he did not appear for a third time. They reached the spot and saw his body on the bottom of the lake, so near that they could touch it with an oar. They could not swim and were afraid to risk their lives, so rowed back to shore and took the other man on board. The lake is shallow for a long distance out at this point, and by the time they returned to the scene of the accident, got the body out and towed it ashore there were no hopes of bringing Anderson back to life, as they did not know what methods to adopt.

The body is now at E. L. Naylor's undertaking rooms awaiting some word from the sister and brother-in-law in St. Paul.

Was a Success.

The picnic and excursion to Cass Lake yesterday, given for the benefit of the Bemidji band, was an unqualified success. The special train of three coaches with a good crowd of local people on board left the Bemidji depot at 7:45 in the morning and returned about 9:30 o'clock in the evening. At Cass Lake as many more people got on. The boat Zella May had been chartered for the occasion and was boarded below town by the picnickers. The Indian Mission and other points of interest were visited on the lake. The weather was ideal and the day was thoroughly enjoyed.

HE ESTABLISHES A PRECEDENT

Judge Spooner Makes Decision New to State of Minnesota.

MAN MUST PAY ALIMONY BUT GETS NO DIVORCE.

The Question Decided Is a New One in This State.

Judge Spooner late Saturday afternoon established a precedent in the state of Minnesota in rendering a decision on the suit for divorce brought by William F. Baier of Minneapolis against Florence Baier.

The court found that the plaintiff was not entitled to any relief in this action and that the defendant was entitled to judgment: "that the plaintiff take nothing by this action; and, further, that that judgment be entered herein upon the defendant's application heretofore made herein, awarding her the sum of $100 as additional attorney's fees incurred by her in defending this action, and for the sum of $49 on account of additional expenses incurred by her subsequent to the previous order of the court herein allowing her suit money and not provided for in such order, and that judgment be entered herein in favor of the defendant and against the plaintiff, awarding her until further order or judgment of this court the sum of $18 per month." The husband will pay this amount to his wife on the first of every month, beginning with July.

The question as to whether or not the court is authorized upon denying the plaintiff's application for divorce, to grant the defendant an allowance for her maintenance during such time as the parties may live separate and apart is an entirely new one in this state, and Judge Spooner is the first to render a decision on it. It will therefore be of considerable interest, not only to Bemidji lawyers, but to attorneys throughout the state as well.

In this case Judge Spooner was acting for a judge of the Fourth judicial district. The husband in the case was 23 years old and the wife 18. They were married on September 24, 1902, and separated on December 4 following. Cruel and inhuman treatment was alleged, but the showing made by the plaintiff fell far short of proving this on the part of the defendant. The causes leading to the separation, the court states in the decision rendered, were absurdly trivial, and the probabilities are that there will be a reconciliation. Should this occur the order and judgment relative to support and maintenance can, upon application, be modified.

PROPOSITION IS FEASIBLE

McIntosh Times Endorses a Move to Divert Waters of Clearwater.

SAYS ACTION WOULD BENEFIT ALL CONCERNED.

Also Asserts That It Would Be of Great Advantage to Crookston.

The McIntosh Times has the following to say on the proposition to divert the waters of the Clearwater river into the Mississippi:

The proposition to turn the head waters of the Clearwater river into the Mississippi, which is outlined in another column, is one of the most feasible propositions yet advanced for preventing flooding of the Red river valley, caused largely by the fact that these upper tributaries break up before the river itself. The proposition also has the additional advantage of improving the river and the lands along its banks, tending to keep its waters within its banks and thereby preventing in a measure the overflowing of a large area of fertile agricultural land now rendered worthless because of the overflow resulting from the overcharged condition of the upper Clearwater. With its head waters turned into the Mississippi the Clearwater would still have all the water to care for that its banks will hold, and instead of injury being done great benefit would result to all concerned. While there is little occasion for such action, it is expected that Crookston, in its blind jealousy, will oppose this improvement in the interest of its 2x4 water power company, and this in spite of the fact that the city as a whole would be benefited by the turning of these flood waters and thereby diminishing both the frequency and severity of the floodings so often experienced by many of its residents.

Report of Rich Find Near the Property of the Iron Mountain Co.

Reports of rich finds on property surrounding the Pilot Mountain Company's property continue to come in and it looks as though the Bemidji men back of the Pilot Mountain Company had a rich proposition. The property is located in North Carolina. The following report from Charlotte, N. C., concerns a mine 18 miles from that of the Bemidji parties, which was purchased at the same time as the Pilot Mountain mine:

"Within the last few weeks, but more particularly within the last few days, a fortune has been taken out of the Barringer mine, near Misener Springs, in Stanley county, by the Whitney Reduction Company, of this city, which owns this and many other mining properties. Six tons of ore containing an average of $20,000 a ton in gold have been taken
