WHAT HE WOULD DO.

Soldier's Course in Event of His Being Suddenly Awakened.

Of Col. John C. Hayes, who served with distinction under Gen. Winfield Scott in the Mexican war, an amusing story is told by T. E. Farish in his "Gold Hunters of California." Hayes with his command, had been out scouting. On his return he made no report to Gen. Scott, who sent for him. Gen. Scott was a veritable martinet in enforcing military discipline. After Hayes was seated in the commander's headquarters, Scott said: "Col. Hayes, I have received no report of your expedition against the padre." "I did not think it worth while," said Hayes. "Every officer of the army is required to make a full report of everything to his superior officer. Please make your report verbally." Hayes began by saying that he struck the padre's trail on a certain day, followed it for two days and on the third day, while his command was resting at noon and taking their siesta, the old padre came down on them. The "boys" gathered themselves together and whipped the Mexicans off, killing quite a number of the padre's command. His own loss was insignificant, one killed and three wounded. "Surprised you, eh?" queried Scott. "Yes, we were not expecting him." "Where were your pickets?" "Did not have any." "What!" shouted Gen. Scott. "A colonel in the regular army of the United States go into camp in the heart of the enemy's country and never place a picket on guard? What would you do if surprised when asleep?" "Shoot the first man that waked me up," was the cool reply.

FINE SCENERY IN FLORIDA.

Pleasure and Sport Along the Wick-a-Watche River.

Parties who have visited the Wick-a-Watche river recently speak very highly of its beauty and attractions. The river is only eight or ten miles long, but it is wider than the Anclote, and several large springs near its source cause a continuous current toward the gulf, notwithstanding the tides. There are two especially noticeable springs, and so clear are the waters that for fifty feet down the smallest fish are discernible, and there are many varieties from the minnow to the tarpon. One of the most peculiar features is that the fish will not bite at the most tempting bait, although in the river the fishing is very fine. It is exactly twenty-six miles from here. There is one house there owned by a Mr. Goethe, a direct descendant of the great German poet and philosopher of that name—Tarpon Springs (Fla.) News.

MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

Held this Year in Week of September 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8.

The promise for the Minnesota State Fair this year is brighter than ever before. Special pains have been taken in all the preparations, which were commenced immediately after the close of the fair of 1904 and the months of careful work over details seem about to be crowned with an unusual success. From Monday morning, September 4th till 11 o'clock Saturday night, September 9, the state fair grounds, midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis, will be crowded with exhibits and gay crowds of visitors. This has become the holiday week of the year for thousands of Minnesota people—a custom which is becoming more and more popular each season.

This year's fair is being developed along the lines which have proven so successful in the past; and indications a short time before the fair point to larger and better exhibits in every department.

The fair will be opened on Monday morning September 4 with an address by Senator Dolliver of Iowa. In the afternoon of the same day, Dan Patch the fastest harness horse of the world will make a sensational mile on the race track in an effort to lower his pacing record of 1:56. Dan Patch will appear on Monday only. It will be the greatest day of the fair. The management guarantees that all exhibits will be in perfect order Monday morning and the entire amusement program will be given complete.

Each evening of the week there will be a magnificent pyrotechnic spectacle given by the Pains who are widely known as the greatest fireworks people in the world. Half fare rates will be made on railroads.

"PARSON BIRD" IS CLEVER.

New Zealand Songster That Can Be Taught Much.

Among the feathered inhabitants of New Zealand there is a bird called the parson bird, or "tui." It is about the size and shape of a blackbird, but has a pair of delicate white tufts at its throat, and is a glossy dark green otherwise, which looks black in the sunlight. It can be taught to crow, to speak, to whistle tunes, and besides these tricks it has a repertoire which is not often equaled by any other feathered songster. At vespers it has a note like the toll of a bell or the clear high note of an organ. It can mimic every bird in the bush to perfection; it will break off in the middle of an exquisite melody and indulge in a strange medley of sounds which are impossible to describe, but if you can imagine "the combination of a cough, a laugh, a sneeze, with the smashing of a pane of glass," it will be some approach to the idea.

The tui nests twice or thrice a year and has large families. Like the other birds of New Zealand it seems to be unconscious of danger from man. It is a pity that the birds of this island are becoming so scarce, for they speak to us of a time when nature was harmless, when the snakes, tigers and falcans did not exist.
