PAINT ROCK AND ITS VALUE

Writer in Iron Trade Review Treats of Sintering Process.

Of interest to mining men in general, and particularly to the iron ore trade, is an article which has been contributed to the current issue of the Iron Trade Review by W. R. Van Slyke on the subject "The Reclamation of Paint Rock Ores," in which it is contended that the Mesaba range paint rock ores contain between 35 and 52 per cent iron which may be recovered by sintering, and at cost, which would make the process worth while.

Among other things, the article says: "As is well known, the paint rocks of the Mesaba range are the result of the alteration of the slate members of the iron-bearing formation, which accounts for the high percentage of silicon and alumina. They occur in abundance and form the ore reserves of millions of tons. Several million tons are already in stockpile from the open pits, and represent a mining charge of hundreds of thousands of dollars. The dry analysis of the bulk of them will vary from 35 to 52 per cent iron. The physical structure shows slaty characteristics, but varies from soft and greasy to hard and rock masses. As will be inferred from the alumina content, they are generally clayey in nature and retain much water, even when stockpiled for years.

"How much does it cost to sinter paint rock and other high total volatile ores? This question cannot be answered exactly until there is a plant established on the Mesaba range for the commercial treatment of these ores. Naturally, all of the cost factors are subject to correction, as they cannot be accurately determined until a plant is actually established for the treatment of these ores."

The writer states he "is not intimately acquainted with ores from ranges other than the Mesaba. Laboratory experiments some years ago with the Mesaba ores containing high percentages of total volatile matter both free and combined, indicated that all that was necessary to make such ores attractive from the standpoint of natural iron was to beneficiate them by driving off the volatile matter by some process which would leave them not dusty, but with a desirable structure for a blast furnace."

Mining men say that the chief interest the trade would have in the recovery of the iron content in paint rock at present would be in the paint rock that must be mined in connection with higher grade ores. With large deposits of this nature, yet untouched, they say it would not pay to mine and treat paint rock; but where the paint rock must be mined to reach better ore, it might offset the mining cost to reclaim the iron content.

Mr. Peterson will go to Duluth to attend the clover and alfalfa meeting of the Duluth Commercial club.

CORPORATIONS MUST DETAIL PROPERTIES

ST. PAUL, June 25.—Public service corporations in Minnesota will be required to submit to the Minnesota tax commission complete data as to their properties according to an announcement made by J. G. Armon, chairman of the commission. The commission also will require similar reports from concerns operating paper and pulp mills, log and lumber companies and sawmills. Including a Declaration. The data asked for includes a complete description of the holdings of the various concerns, capitalization, stock and bond issues, gross and net income, market value of securities, operating expenses and other information which may enable the commission to fix the assessment on a proper basis. In the case of telephone and telegraph companies, the number of poles, miles of wire, switchboards and number of instruments in each assessment district is required.

Too Lightly Assessed.

The commission believes, it is said, that some of these concerns have been too lightly assessed by local assessors. Telephone companies are now assessed by the state a gross earnings tax of 3 per cent. The data asked for may develop the fact that this levy is too small in comparison to the value of the property, especially in the case of the large companies, according to persons posted.

JEALOUSY OF LION BLAMED FOR KILLING

CHICAGO, June 25.—"When an animal tame falls in love he loses control over his beasts." Mile. Adgie Costillo recalled this adage as she arranged to send East the body of her fishy dog, Dietrich, who had been killed and partly devoured by five of her lion cubs.

She also recalled several occasions when the lions snarled angrily as Dietrich had patted her shoulder and complimented her on the excellence of her "animal act."

"Perhaps jealousy had something to do with it," said Mile Costillo. "Lions are just like dogs and cats. They know when some one else shares the affection of their owner."

"It was only a few weeks ago that Emerson put his hand on my shoulder on the stage at Salt Lake City. I looked over at Teddy, one of the lions. His eyes glittered and he snarled. And it was Teddy that knocked Emerson down and killed him Sunday."

GIRLISH GOWN OF FLOUNCED BATISTE FOR SLENDER FIGURES.

For the slender, graceful figure such a garment as the gown illustrated cannot fail to attract admiration. It is, however, a garment to be shunned by stout women. The sloped flounces of embroidery that outline a yoke on the hips are set on a plain hemmed skirt. The bodice is cut on kimono lines and has pointed cuffs of the embroidery.

FORMER VIRGINIAN IS MARRIED AT ORR

(SPECIAL TO THE ENTERPRISE.) ORR, Minn., June 25.—The marriage of Victor Vauhala and Miss Ada D. Wilkman took place here last evening. The wedding was a quiet affair, only the immediate friends of the bride and groom being present. The bride was attended by the Misses Jennie Laupey and Helia Palmgard, both of Ely. Her gown was of ivory satin, with an overdress of white chiffon and she carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley. The ushers were Ivar Frasa of Virginia and William Johnson of Winnipeg.

The bride is the daughter of Isaac Wilkman, a former resident of Ely, and for the past two years has been teaching school at Cook. The groom is a member of the Pelican Mercantile company, and before coming to Orr was engaged in the real estate business at Virginia. After a short wedding trip to the Twin Cities and southern Minnesota points, they will return to Orr to make their home.

MAGIE LEADS OTHERS AS MONEY-SPENDER

DULUTH, June 25.—In compliance with the corrupt practices law of 1912, candidates for nomination and election are daily filing their expense statements with County Auditor Halden. These statements will be filed from time to time until the general election in November, as required by law. A glance over the statements shows that Frank L. Magie, one of the nominees for sheriff at the primary, has incurred greater expense than any other candidate in the county. Thus far he has expended $808.68. Sheriff John R. Meining is second, with an expenditure of $777.26.

There were a number of other candidates for nomination whose only outlay to secure a place on the ticket was the filing fee of $10. Of the latter, D. T. Collins of Hibbing, candidate for representative from the Sixth district, was the only one to get a nomination.

GRAND RAPIDS TO BE WITHOUT A HOSPITAL

GRAND RAPIDS, June 25.—St. Benedict's hospital, established nearly a quarter of a century, will be closed on July 1.

The building, which is a frame affair, was a short time ago condemned for hospital purposes, and as the patronage has been steadily falling off during the last five years because of the cessation of logging operations in the neighborhood, the management decided to close the place up rather than make the necessary improvements.

The building was erected in 1891 and had many managers during the first years of its existence until the Benedictine Sisters acquired it in 1898. This will leave Grand Rapids without a hospital.

MUNICIPAL MEAT SHOP MAY BE OPENED HERE

The suggestion of Wm. Tritchler at the council meeting Tuesday night that the city establish a municipal meat market, may materialize into something of a certainty if the plans of a number of citizens are acted upon by the city fathers. It is understood that a petition is being circulated today and which is said to be signed quite generally with a view to asking the council to take up the matter. Mayor Michael Boylan, who was asked regarding the move today, said that he had not heard of it.

"I have not heard of such a petition, but if the people want a municipal meat market, I am here to help them all I can," said Mr. Boylan. "I was elected on a progressive platform and thus far I have been able to carry out some of my pledges made to the people. I am still mayor of Virginia, and I am going to do all in my power to do things that will benefit Virginia and the people that live here."

Mr. Tritchler stated before the council that there existed in Virginia a big meat trust that should be broken up and that meat was being sold here at higher prices than it could be bought for at Eveleth. He asserted that something ought to be done to relieve the high cost of living for the poorer classes of people of the city.

RANGE EDITORS HERE SATURDAY

The Range Editorial association will hold a meeting in this city next Saturday afternoon, according to notices sent out by Secretary Earle H. Yarik of Aurora. A cost expert will be present and other matters of importance to the craft will be taken up. Mr. Yarik says to "Be there with lard in your hair."

AMUSEMENTS.

At the Socialist Opera House.

Last night at the Socialist opera house the Harry St. Clair Stock company delighted another large house in their clever performance of the very pretty comedy drama, "Lena Rivers" and each and every member of the company proved themselves far above the average stock performers. Tonight they present the very funny farce comedy entitled "A Terrible Tangle." This is one of the most laughable and legitimate comedies of the present day, the plot being strong and the situations all clever and a good laugh is promised all who attend. Not a dull moment from the rise of the first curtain until the fall of the last. Special Klein features of moving pictures are shown before the regular performance. The curtain will rise on the drama at exactly 8:30. Reserved seats are on sale at Tredway's drug store. On Friday night a beautiful satin brocade dress length will be given the party holding the lucky number. Coupons for it are handed out each night at the door. This company has but recently finished a five-months stock engagement at the Brinkman Theatre in Bemidji and it is their intention to stay here during the summer and present nothing but the best of comedies and dramas. On Sunday night only, they present the beautiful three act comedy drama, by the late Daniel Sully, entitled "The Parish Priest."

SCHOOL BOARD RELUCTANT TO CONDEMN LOTS

department has been approved. This will give us $1,000 from the state to help maintain this work. There is a good prospect for this department for next year.

"The commercial department, the manual training and the domestic science department have all proven popular with the high school students. Some of these departments already feel the need for more room to properly handle the increased numbers of students taking these courses. This is especially true of the manual training and domestic science departments. "We have been particularly free from contagious diseases during the year which fact, I believe, is attributable to the constant care exercised by the school physician. He has also been able to discover a number of unfortunate children in the schools who needed medical attention and has rendered them very valuable assistance."

"I wish to express my sincere appreciation of the splendid manner in which the members of the Board have co-operated at all times during the year. The idea seemed to prevail from the first that the welfare of the children was of foremost consideration and that to promote their welfare there must be a harmonious body of men looking after their interests. "We have had the utmost harmony and cordial relations between the members of the board and the superintendent and I believe this relationship is making toward a rapid improvement in the effectiveness of our school work. Great improvements have been made during the present year. I believe we have secured an exceptionally strong corps of teachers for next year and with the cooperation of parents, members of the board, and teachers there is no reason why the schools of Virginia should be second to any other schools in Minnesota."

"Respectfully submitted, "P. P. COLGROVE, Supt."
