NEWS FROM SCANDINAVIA

Principal Events That Have Transpired in the Old Countries Within a Week or So.

NORWAY.

Ex-Premier Michelsen is going to remove the Kristiania in February. The rotary snow plow used on the Bergen railway has done a wonderful work, and traffic has been resumed along the line.

The starting has endorsed, by a unanimous vote, the treaty of integrity guaranteed by Russia, Germany, France and England.

L. M. Christensen's saw and planing mill at Tonsberg was burned down in the night. The engine room and the office building were saved.

No one has been appointed to succeed Bjorn Bjornson as director of the National theater in Kristiania, but the competition for the place is lively.

A girl lost her way in the woods at Eidskogen, and when she was found the next day she could no longer stand on her feet, because they were frozen.

The government has asked for appropriations aggregating over $4,000,000 for the army and navy. Among the new equipment proposed are one freight and one passenger automobile.

Nothing has been done to remove Rev. Konow, the Unitarian preacher, from his position as assistant pastor of a congregation in Bergen. If his case were tried by a jury it is supposed that he would be acquitted, hence his opponents do not press their demand for a trial.

Peter Hognestad and Bernt Stoylen, who are to be professors at the free theological seminary, are pronounced language reformers, that is, they use pure Norwegian, and want to get rid of the conventional Norwegian-Danish book language.

King Haakon has bought extensive hunting grounds in Numedal. The land extends from Dagall up through the Hardanger plateau, and most of it is more than 3,000 feet above the sea. There are many white grouse in that locality, and the deal includes some good fish lakes.

A number of bad fires occurred in Norway during the first days of the new year. On several large farms not only the houses were totally destroyed, but even most of the stock was burned to death. At least two persons lost their lives, one in Kristiania and the other in Trondhjem.

Hans Peter Hansen, a painter at the Nestodden factory, fell into a tank of lye. The fluid reached only to his ankles, and he jumped out of the tank at once. But his feet were terribly burned, and blood poisoning set in at once. Fortunately for the victim, he soon became unconscious. The poison worked with astounding force and rapidity, and Hansen died amidst violent spasms.

An English company owning the Borregaard factories also owns an ancient right to sell liquors at that place. A majority of the people have tried to get rid of the saloon, but they cannot on account of certain "vested rights." The same company wants to buy the Klar forests. But the cabinet does not seem to favor the deal. Aarrestad, a member of the cabinet, is looked upon as the leader of the temperance people, and the company is said to have promised him to give up its right to sell liquors at Borregaard if the cabinet will ratify the proposed timber deal.

SWEDEN.

It is proposed to build a net of electric railways between the cities of the southernmost part of Sweden, Malmo to be the center of the system.

Over 500 persons are out of work at the Arlof sugar refinery on account of labor troubles. The wages were 8 cents an hour to the end of the old year. Now the employees ask for almost 11 cents an hour and the company offers not quite 9 1/2 cents an hour.

The formal opening of the first riksdag under the reign of King Gustaf took place Jan. 1 with simple ceremonies. King Gustaf, who was present, in the speech from the throne, referring to the heavy responsibility that devolved upon him with the death of King Oscar, promised, in whole-hearted zeal for the prosperity and progress of the fatherland, always to try to fulfill his duty. "It is my hope," the king said, "in both good and evil days to be supported by my Swedish people in the common work for the true weal of the fatherland." Continuing, his majesty announced that the suffrage bill adopted at the last session of the riksdag would be resubmitted to the present house for final approval, but he said there was no intention of giving the franchise to women for the present. Special commissions are considering a joint scheme of naval and military national defense, as well as the question of the relations between employers and workmen. The budget for the next fiscal year was then presented to the riksdag. It balances at $58,500,000.

The state calendar of Sweden will be published later than usual because so many appointments are being made in the different departments of the government since the new king ascended the throne.

The executive committee of the national society for the prevention of emigration wants the riksdag to appropriate $2,700 for keeping bureaus of information in Stockholm, Gothenburg and Karistad.

It is proposed to build suburban railways in the immediate vicinity of Malmo and Lund.

Prince Wilhelm spent the Russian Christmas at Moscow.

A banquet seems to be coming between the bagel bakers and the best growers of Sweden.

The beer dispensaries of Malmo used to be open from 1 to 4 and from 6 to 9 o'clock Sunday afternoons, but henceforth they are to be open only from 6 to 9 o'clock.

The city of Malmo had 79,770 inhabitants at the beginning of the new year and the increase for the past year was 4,509. The growth of the population has been more and more rapid since the beginning of this century, the increase for each year, beginning in 1900, being 718, 1,887, 1,708, 2,892, 3,359, 1,718, 3,185 and 4,509, respectively.

FINLAND.

A Russian paper is responsible for the statement that the Russian department of war has occupied the entire Finnish frontier, and that this can be crossed only at two points. Another paper states that the troops are divided into squads of twenty men, who are scouring the surrounding country. The inhabitants of the villages are hastening to the capitol or to Helsingfors.

Berlin, Jan. 18.—The inundation of Finland with Russian troops and the gradual reduction of Finland to a Russian province is now part of the settled policy of the czar. Finland regained her liberties during the height of the Russian revolution, when the continuation of the Bobrikoff policy became impossible. Now that the revolution at home is crushed, the crushing of Finland's new liberties is inevitable. The old Finnish garrisons are to be withdrawn. St. Petersburg has known for nearly two years that the troops at Helsingfors and Vyborg are affected by the Finnish propaganda. As long as Finland was peaceable it was garrisoned with the worst disciplined regiments, the best regiments being kept at home. Among these ill-disciplined troops the Finnish Socialists kept up an active propaganda, which culminated in the mutiny of Sveaborg fortress. Since the crushing of the Russian movement things have got worse. Russian revolutionists, driven from their own country, inundated Finland and seconded the Finnish movement for the reduction of the czar's troops. All these unreliable regiments soon will be withdrawn and replaced by soldiers from Poland, Little Russia and the Jewish Pale, where most regiments are actively loyal, owing to the promotion, praise and plunder they have gained in their campaigns against the Jews and Poles. The czar is apparently convinced that they will be no less eager to carry out the work of repressing Finland. Nicholas II is the most active of the anti-Finns. He never has forgiven the humiliations of October, 1905, when his governor, Prince Obolensky, surrendered to the Finnish Red Guard. Moreover, the Finnish Socialist movement is developing rapidly. There are eight Socialists in the new landtag, and this spectacle is a sore in the eyes of the Russian cabinet. M. Stolypin and Gen. Kuropatkin are strongly anti-Finnish. Three months ago Kuropatkin was summoned and intrusted with the drawing of a scheme for regarrisoning Finland. Kuropatkin advised that no garrison in Finland would remain loyal as long as Finland remained a nest of free thought and revolution. The change in the garrisons was therefore decided on in concert with a scheme for taking away boldly the Finnish constitution. Stolypin approved this scheme, but insisted that the change should come gradually, and this amendment was adopted. Finland is to have 10,000 more soldiers than formerly. When these soldiers have been placed in garrison the Russian government will open a series of demands upon the Finnish senate, among which will be the delivery of Russian political refugees, the suppression of Socialism and a change in the fiscal system.—The Russian calculation is that according to her constitutional right Finland will refuse to comply, and this refusal will serve as a pretext to begin encroachments upon the constitution, the Finnish language and the personal freedom of Finland's people.

Caruso, the great Italian singer, is going to sing just one evening in Copenhagen, and he is to receive $2,430 for his trouble.

Denmark exported 10,434 tons of milk and 7,586 tons of cream to Germany during the year ended September 30, 1907. During the same period the export of butter, mainly to England and Germany, was 98,437 tons, the increase being 7,500 tons as compared with the previous year.

Holger Drachmann, for many years past the leading poet of Denmark, died at the age of 61 years. This news did not come as a surprise. Drachmann has suffered from different diseases, and during the past ten years he has been compelled to spend a large part of his time at hospitals and sanatoriums. Drachmann wrote vigorous poems almost to the very last, and his best poetic productions will no doubt be read and enjoyed by coming generations.

DENMARK.

Prince Erik, a seventeen-year-old son of Prince Valdemar, is going to learn farming on Baron Bliken-Fincke's farm in Fyen.

Burglars broke into the rooms of Count Carl Moltke, Danish ambassador at Rome, and stole silverware for about $2,000. There is little hope of recovering the stolen goods.

Members of the Viking Swimming club in Copenhagen had a contest when the temperature was below the freezing point and the water was full of broken ice half an inch thick. The distance was 160 feet.

The Warren Milling Co.
Every farmer will acknowledge that a flour mill in the town is a great convenience. Not only a convenience but an actual help in supporting the wheat market. Our local mill grinds nearly all the wheat they buy, into flour. At times it pays the mill to pay a premium on some good grades of milling wheat and in this way other buyers of grain advance their prices to compete with the mill. It cannot be denied that the elevator companies as a rule do not like a live up-to-date mill that is aggressive in its management. They feel that the mill is an element of competition, and as in the case of our local mill, they strike back by shipping in flour to sell, to the detriment of the local manufacturer. You who buy flour from the elevator companies just stop and think it over. Is not the mill of benefit to you? Try to imagine what the condition would be if every one was as unpatrotic as you. Why the mill would simply be forced out of business for want of customers. You would have to accept the price the elevator ring put on your wheat and you would also have to pay whatever price they set on the flour. Every pound of ground feed would have to be shipped in and you would pay the freight both ways. These facts are reasonable and are easily understood. If you live in Marshall county you certainly should use Warren flour made from your own wheat, adulterations are impossible. The flour made by the Warren Mills is as good as can be made out of good wheat. Be loyal to home industries and buy flour made at home by the
