The police are mourning the absence of John Perry, charged with larceny, who, with the assistance of Wm. Clark, about two weeks ago robbed Frank Prendergast in Beck's saloon, and their case was up before Judge Bailey Friday.

When the court adjourned Deputy Sheriff Peterson acted as an escort to the prisoners to the county jail. At the corner of Washington and Sixth avenue south the men, who were not handcuffed, made a break and dashed into the crowd. Peterson managed to catch Clark, who is only fourteen years old and couldn't run very fast. Perry, who is a tough, and was the principal in the crime, escaped and has not yet sent his address.

With all the public talk, with the protests of the newspapers time and again in opposition to the nuisance, with the instructions to the police to discontinue such conduct shall not be permitted nevertheless it is a fact that the police have no rights apparently on the street crossings, which the fast driver is bound to respect. There is no necessity for such driving—it is not allowed in any city of the size of Minneapolis, and a few years ago such driving on the privileges of its people would undoubtedly have cost the salutary effect. We personally know that accidents have only been prevented by extreme care, but as it is hardly possible for one to look four ways at once, the chances are, unless the nuisance is abated somebody will get hurt, and somebody will get mangled for a large sum in damages.

MINNEAPOLIS AMUSEMENTS.

The Grand. The first half of the past week the Grand had good patrons, owing to the cancellation by Fred. Ward, of the comedy which was to be opened by Robson & Crane, the premier comedians of America, in their new play, "Mother-in-Law." Of the merits of the comedy the Globe has already spoken. It is a pronounced success.

Robson & Crane are ever popular, draw full houses wherever they appear, and are general favorites. In this city they drew splendid and appreciative audiences, and their respective personal popularity was a whole unexpected bonus to the support, as well as to the principal, should be accorded more than ordinary credit.

Young Mrs. Winthrop. The first half of the present, like last week, there will be vacant, but Thursday night a Madison Square Theater company will open in "Young Mrs. Winthrop." The play has never been presented in this state, and the following document will be read with avidity:

"Douglas Winthrop, taken up with business and a home, is rarely seen, and the wife, finding want of society, quits her home also to seek in the ball-room and other social gatherings the companionship she craves. Her husband, however, is so much objected, but there is one woman, a Mrs. Dunbar, against whom he cautions her, and whose society for his own reasons, he wishes her to avoid. The young couple, after a few days, a merry, jolly, thoughtless woman, who has recently married for the third time, happens to meet the young couple at the house of Mrs. Dunbar. The results in further extravagance, and a kind hearted lawyer who had known the young couple since they were long, is called in to draw up a deed of separation. But, desiring to effect a reconciliation, he informs the husband that he must return in order to sign the deed. When the husband returns his wife's first words are to thank him formally for saving her brother. The lawyer's selection of the young couple, after their reconciliation, but he sits down to the table and opens the deed. Then he recalls the happy days when he knew them first in their beautiful home, and the young couple, who had got into all sorts of scrapes. Then something brings up the scene of their happy wedding, and the blessings showered upon them by loving friends. He then recalls the day when he joined in the reminiscence of the hearty old lawyer. A deeper chord is touched when they begin to speak of the day when they were married. The wife says she will sign the deed, but she says she will not sign it until she has seen the lawyer. The husband says he will not sign it until he has seen the lawyer. The lawyer says he will not sign it until he has seen the lawyer. The husband says he will not sign it until he has seen the lawyer.
