

It was delivered about six o'clock Wednesday night. The convention had been in session seven hours continuously, the time being occupied by the New York quarrel and the presentation speeches naming candidates. There had been numerous attempts to adjourn, but the galleries so intermingled their voices with the delegates voting no, that the chair decided them all lost.

WASHINGTON VIEWS.

How the Sages and Statesmen at the Capital City Look at the Nominations.

All Democrats, including Tammanyites, Immensely Pleased With the Ticket.

Some of the Remarks Let Fall by Congressmen and Cabinet Officials.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., 12.—Having slept over the Democratic nominations there was considerable political talk in departmental circuits to-day. Wherever newspaper correspondents went in search of items the question was propounded on every side.

Senator Wallace, of Pennsylvania, had just made a motion to adjourn, declaring that physical endurance could hold out no longer. Mr. Cochran also joined in urging the adjournment, but it was again declared lost. This was the only move that Senator Wallace made in which he was not successful.

Mr. Cochran then took the platform, being the next speaker after Grady, who, under the guise of seconding the nomination of Cleveland and had been alternately hissed and cheered. The greatest confusion and disorder at any time of the convention was during Grady's speech. When another Tammanyite arose the convention was not in a frame of mind to tolerate any more foolishness.

The delegates were too hungry and tired to think of much else but adjourning, but Mr. Cochran had uttered but a few sentences before he commanded attention and after a few interruptions at the outset, quiet and order was secured in the galleries, which the most incessant hammering of the president's gavel had failed to secure for Grady. He spoke with ease, and nerve and fervor, his voice strong and his gestures graceful.

And gentlemen, if these last few words of warning, which are perhaps to be the last that will come from New York to the convention, are heeded as I believe they will, you will find that every element of contest will be stilled; that although we may have been divided by the wild waves of tammy, as soon as the gavel of the chairman declares the nomination made, we will become calm and placid as the bosom of a lake in summer.

And gentlemen, if these last few words of warning, which are perhaps to be the last that will come from New York to the convention, are heeded as I believe they will, you will find that every element of contest will be stilled; that although we may have been divided by the wild waves of tammy, as soon as the gavel of the chairman declares the nomination made, we will become calm and placid as the bosom of a lake in summer.

Mr. Fellows proved himself an able man and a brilliant orator. In the debate on the New York unit rule on the first day of the convention, he won his case and that was the turning point or crisis in Gov. Cleveland's cause. To the surprise of every one, he was not heard again in the convention, and although he was loudly called for in the galleries to reply to Tammany, he kept silent. I should have been glad to have heard some more speeches from him.

The fact that the Minnesota headquarters were on the office floor of the Palmer, enabling calls to be made without getting into the crush of going up and down stairs, caused thousands of visitors to drop in during the week and made their quarters a very popular resort. The St. Paul police force and city council also made it their central point, from which they ramified to all parts of the city.

The southern delegates would not go to see "the Siege of Paris" or "the Battle of Gettysburg," because, they alleged, "the war is over."

The good order in Chicago during the past week was due to the presence of the St. Paul police force. The "crooks" know better than to cut up any sides when they were in town.

When the states gathered with their banners in a cluster over Ansel Oppenheim's head a photographer was so struck with the scene that he took a negative. No other Minnesotaan received such a tribute—not even Harry Lambertson, when he bowed his acknowledgements in behalf of the applause extended to Hendricks.

The only speech John Kelly made in the convention was his colloquial controversy with Mr. Fellows on the first day. At St. Louis in 1876, he took the fighting oar which was held in the convention by Thomas F. Grady, and at Cincinnati in 1880, he made a speech, though not granted a seat, endorsing the nomination of Hancock. Was his silence in this convention ominous?

All of the papers assert that the Hendricks boom Friday morning, when Illinois cast its one vote was a set-up job of the anti-Cleveland forces to break the Cleveland slate. It was well done, in any event.

Now that both of the great parties have nominated their tickets on unlucky Friday, honors are easy on that point. Perhaps the people will vote for Ben Butler to avoid a Fry ticket.

I promised to send the Minnesota delegation back in time to supply the church contribution boxes to-morrow and I have done my share. They will arrive to-morrow morning, and if the expense of white hats and other Chicago refreshments has depleted them they can at least supply the morning services with their presence and drop into the boxes "a little Democratic rooster, only five cents."

France and China. London, July 12.—A Shanghai correspondent of the Times, says: Sir Robert Hart, Chinese customs inspector, is trying to negotiate with Patenotre, French minister of foreign affairs, who seems blind to the dangers of a war of rebellion. Prince Chun trusts to the boasting of fanatics and to officials who conceal the defenseless condition of the coast. Ignorance, confusion and treachery render the situation critical. British officers have left the Chinese fleet.

Washington, D. C., 12.—No demonstration on the nomination was made here till Judge Thurman arrived home to-night, when he was met at the depot by several thousand, with bands. A liberal display of banners and a great display of fireworks was all over the celebration. The men were near the mill. The mill and building were entirely demolished. Barrack Wolf was hurled quite a distance and his body horribly mangled. He died almost instantly. Eugene Wolf was struck by flying timbers and perhaps fatally hurt. Roy Blackburn was badly cut up, and Hawley Blackard scalded almost to death by steam.

THURMAN'S HOME GREETING.

The Demonstration at Columbus Last Night on Thurman's Arrival Home.

COLUMBUS, O., July 12.—No demonstration on the nomination was made here till Judge Thurman arrived home to-night, when he was met at the depot by several thousand, with bands. A liberal display of banners and a great display of fireworks was all over the celebration. The men were near the mill. The mill and building were entirely demolished. Barrack Wolf was hurled quite a distance and his body horribly mangled. He died almost instantly. Eugene Wolf was struck by flying timbers and perhaps fatally hurt. Roy Blackburn was badly cut up, and Hawley Blackard scalded almost to death by steam.

My friends and neighbors, I should not be a human being, and would have no heart in my bosom if I was not deeply touched by this expression of your love, and, regarding you, I know that you were my friends; that you would greet me and take me by the hand on my return, but that you should show such marked demonstration beyond all expectations. For one who is not, and who never expects to be anything but a private citizen, it is indeed more than could have been anticipated, therefore I express to you most sincerely my great appreciation. I pay for my disappointment you may think I feel, but let me tell you sincerely I am not a disappointed man. I have met with reverses in life, but always tried to keep a level head. I am happier and I feel better in the midst of this rejoicing than I have ever received the nomination for the presidency. I was not in any sense a candidate. For a year or more I have said I was not and would not be a candidate, and I think the world was to let alone. But the world saw fit to have it otherwise. Your state convention made me a delegate to the national council of the Democracy, and your names are honorable to me, and so far as Gov. Cleveland and Gov. Hendricks themselves are concerned, there was nothing done but that which was honorable in making about the world to let alone. A few men there of whose actions it would be the sincerest hypocrisy in me to express approval, and I hope they can live without mine. Your nominations were fairly won, and it is impossible to gratify all in such matters. There were always those who were disappointed because of failure to nominate their friends, but there should be none at the present time. The convention was the grandest ever held on earth, and the nominations made by so large majorities and amid such enthusiasm inspire confidence. Let us go to work and redeem this country from the iron rule of the present power, and with patriotic motives and earnest work we will live to see this country in the hands of that party of reform which was once small, but which is now the hope of the people from one end of the land to the other.

The speaker eulogized highly those who had been his opponents, and spoke of the nomination in strong terms. After which he said he was weary; that he had been traveling since 5 o'clock; that he had been kept a prisoner at Chicago for a week, and that he was rushing in to see the old man, and pointing to his old homestead beside which his carriage stood, he said, "I am particularly anxious now to get into that house, and see an old man who is waiting for me, just as he would have been a cry sent up all along the line of "Thank you," and cheers were continued for some time after the door closed.

DAKOTA POLITICS.

Delegate Convention to be Held at Pierre, September 17.

The Republican Territorial committee of Dakota met yesterday at Hotel Lafayette, Minnetonka, for the purpose of fixing the time and place of holding the convention to put in nomination a candidate for Delegate to congress. As the members of the committee are residents of north and south Dakota, and to reach either division of the territory the committee must pass through St. Paul, it was decided that the most agreeable time would be for the committee to hold its session amid the delights of St. Paul's delightful suburban resort. When the committee convened at Hotel Lafayette all but one of the fourteen members were present, in accordance with the following list:

E. P. Wells, Jamestown, chairman; E. W. Caldwell, Sioux Falls, secretary; C. T. McCoy, Aberdeen, (represented by J. H. Drake, Aberdeen, proxy); J. H. King, Chamberlain, (represented by R. N. Ewart, of Mitchell, proxy); G. W. Hawes, Big Stone City; Wm. Skinner, Brookings; W. H. Cuppett, Canton; A. J. Plovman, H. H. Gregg, Black Hills, (represented by R. F. Pettigrew, Sioux Falls, proxy); A. C. Boland, Black Hills, (represented by V. E. Prentice, Pierre, proxy); John Fadden, Grand Forks, (represented by E. P. Wells, Jamestown, proxy); Iver Larson, Mayville, (represented by C. A. Dentley, Mayville, proxy); H. F. Miller, Fargo, (represented by A. W. Edwards, Fargo); W. E. Steele, Steele. B. W. Benson, Valley City, absent.

In anticipation of the possible arrival of the absentee, Mr. Benson, the committee sat informally and came into the city on the 5 p. m. train and held their formal session at the Metropolitan hotel, in parlor A. The question that first came up for settlement was the time for holding the convention and the decision was readily and unanimously reached, naming Wednesday, September 17.

The next question was to decide the place for holding the convention. The first delegate convention held in the territory was at Vermillion, the next at Sioux Falls, and the last one at Grand Forks. In the towns ambitious of becoming the chosen place for the September convention, appeared the rivalry existing between northern and southern Dakota. After the claims of C. A. Dentley, places had been stated and discussed, the committee went into executive session and upon the fifth ballot the lot fell upon Pierre. The several ballots were as follows:

First ballot—Big Stone City 1, Aberdeen 6, Mitchell 3, Pierre 8, Brookings 1. Second ballot—Big Stone City 1, Aberdeen 6, Mitchell 3, Pierre 4. Third ballot—Big Stone City 2, Aberdeen 5, Pierre 7. Fourth ballot—Big Stone City 1, Aberdeen 5, Pierre 7. Fifth ballot—Big Stone City 1, Aberdeen 5, Pierre 7.

The selection was a triumph for the southern Dakota interest. The basis of representation was the next question for settlement, and after considerable debate it was decided as follows: each organization county of the territory to have two delegates at large and one delegate for each 200 votes of the total vote given for Delegate in 1882, and the major fraction of 200 votes of the total vote.

A sub-committee of four, two from southern and two from northern Dakota were appointed to make the assignment of delegates upon that basis. The agreed basis will furnish a convention of about 350 delegates, and of the number Southern Dakota will have a preponderance. It was discovered that among the members of the committee there was a decided sentiment against the return of Delegate Raymond, and if the pronouncements of the gentlemen of the committee are correct, he cannot be nominated.

Southern Dakota will present the name of Mr. G. W. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle, at Bethune & Lambie's.
