CHICAGO.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

CHICAGO, July 12.—Trading on 'change was moderately active to-day and prices irregular, but closed steady, the closing figures on wheat being the same as the opening, and this notwithstanding a number of causes which a week ago would have lowered prices materially. Among the adverse influences were the reported failure of a heavy dry goods house in New York and a combined effort on the part of the bears to effect a continuance of the downward course of the grain market. In the provision pit things were quiet, with what little interest there was centered in lard and ribs, but the day's business all around was less than any day this week.

As to pork, a prominent broker said to-day: "It isn't the general public or the poor laboring man who has to stand the racket of this corner in pork. It is the scalper and the small fry generally who have to pay $22 a barrel for stuff they never see. The laboring man can get all he wants for $16. Do you know why? Well, its because Phil Armour and the rest of the gang know that he won't bring it back here to sell."

Wheat was moderately active and prices irregular, being firm and higher early, and then breaking off, but at the close August was ¼c higher than yesterday's last sales, and September ¼c higher. At the opening there was a fair demand and prices ruled strong and somewhat higher, but later news was received of a large mercantile failure in New York, when prices began to weaken and fell off 1⅜c from the highest point but rallied ⅜c again, eased off and after some fluctuations closed firm at about the opening price. September opened steady at 84¼c, advanced to 84⅝c, fell to 83⅜c and finally rallied and closed at 83½c. There were no large deals reported and with the exception of a small outside trade the scalpers did all that was done. Reports from different grain centers show a much improved export demand. From Milwaukee it is reported that 112,000 bushels of wheat were taken there to-day for export. Baltimore follows with 356,000 bushels, New York with 600,000 and Chicago with about 85,000, making an estimated total of over 800,000 bushels.

"I don't care what the other fellows told you," said a member of the board to-day, "but in my opinion there is to-day a better export demand for wheat than we have had for three years. During the last week 2,200,000 bushels of wheat, including that afloat, has gone over to Europe. I am told by good authority that by the end of the week there will not be in New York more than 300,000 bushels of red winter wheat for export. The stocks in London and Liverpool are low in proportion. On July 4th the combined supply of wheat in London and Liverpool did not exceed 700,000 bushels. Now, with such figures before you, and the fact that the new crop throughout the country is in no condition to be marketed, how are you going to manufacture a bear argument?"

Corn was fairly active but prices were generally lower than yesterday afternoon. The opening was apparently firm and sales were at some advance over yesterday's closing, but the demand soon fell off, the shorts having apparently pretty well cornered during the past few days and bought sparingly to-day. The reported failures in New York and the consequent weakening in wheat brought corn down and August fell 1⅛ @ 1¼ c from the highest point, then rallied some again, eased off and closed quiet easy at 52 c for August and 51⅞ c for September.

Oats were more quiet and easier, prites ruling steady for the day with speculative trade slow and few willing to operate.

The pork market was quiet but strong, July and August closing at $22.50@22.00, or 50c higher than yesterday's quotations. September and October were unchanged, the former being quoted at $21.50 bid and the latter at $19.50. Year pork ranged at $22.00@12.95.

Lard was less active; trading was in fact only moderate, and a good share of the day's business consisted of transferring outstanding trades from August to September. August closed at $7.17½ and September at $7.32½.

Short ribs were in fair request for cash and future delivery, and closed at $7.80 August and $7.87½ September.

There was a brisk demand for all the good droves of native fat cattle and they sold quick at equally high prices as for any day this week and perhaps in some instances higher. For really good corn fed cattle the market closes strong for the week and fully as high as last Saturday. Grassy stock is also a shade stronger than last week, yet this sort of stock is hard to sell at any time. There has been a large increase of Texans and they have gradually declined, dropping 10c to day, making the decline on the ordinary run of canners 15@20c for the week. There is a fair business in stockers and feeders, but lean, little things are selling at low prices. Old cows, common bulls and the lower grades of native butchers' stock went again lower, making the decline for the week equal to 20@30c. Canners and butchers prefer the Texans that are now so plenty and comparatively cheap.

Receipts of hogs for the day rather heavy, for the last in the week, and for the week show a large increase over last week. Owing to the continued differences between the packers and the commission men as to the manner of buying and selling, business is not running along as smoothly as formerly and to-day's trade was rather slow, prices uneven and the general market unsatisfactory to all concerned.

Hamill & Brine say: "Continued favorable conditions for the winter wheat harvest now in progress here had a depressing effect on this grain market, and local operators have, for the most part, been disposed to reduce their trading to a minimum. Conservative dealers recognize in the current value of wheat a price much lower than has been reached at any similar season for the past twenty years, and with freights to the seaboard considered, a very much lower price than has ever been known in this or any other primary grain market in the country. The most important wheat crops of the world being as yet unsecured, they feel that any time a very sudden and radical change might occur in favor of holders; all the contingencies of weather yet before us; while should the present promise of a crop of excellent quality be fortunately realized, it is certain that the demand will be good, both for export and consumption, at prices relatively higher than those obtainable for the inferior grades of the present crop now in seaboard warehouses. We can therefore reiterate our previous opinion, and say that, while from the absence of activity incident to the summer months, or from temporary depression arising from spasmodic financial disturbances, values should still further recede, we feel that purchases made about the present range will pay well, and advise careful buying on all weak spots.

"Corn has wildly fluctuated during the week. Lower prices having ruled early in the week followed by almost entire recovery. There is no especially new features to note, the demand as heretofore, keeping pace fully with the supply; shipments having exceeded receipts during the past week about 300,000 bushels. Crop reports continue favorable and the situation, as compared with that of last week may be regarded as unchanged; We feel that present prices are likely to be maintained for some time to come, the extremely light supply at all principal points rendering any permanent decline improbable before the coming crop is finally received in as good condition and with as favorable a yield as the present outlook would lead us to expect."

"Provisions—The advance in mess pork, which took place on Monday last, and which has since been fully maintained, exercised a similar influence on the whole list, and there was a sharp improvement in cut meats and lard. This last, however, has been wholly lost, and although the shipping demand has been about equal to that of last week, the closing quotations show some decline from those current at the date of our last."

CHICAGO FINANCIAL.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

CHICAGO, July 12.—The demand for money during the week has been active and all the funds seeking employment met with ready takers. Firmness has been the prevailing feature and paper grading "A 1" passed at 6, 7@8 per cent., the ruling rates being 6@7 per cent. The banks have not given outsiders any encouragement but have taken care of all of their regular customers. The trade of the city has been quiet and the movement of currency moderate and in favor of the city. To-day the local money market was firm under a good demand and rates were steady at 6@7 per cent. Eastern exchange between city banks was firm at 70@75c premium per $1,000.

NEW YORK.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

NEW YORK, July 12.—The stock market has dropped into a dull groove with small changes either way. The G rangers are off 1 per cent. for Illinois Central and Burlington, while Northwestern, St. Paul and Rock Island are fractionally better. Vanderbilt protected Michigan Central but let New York Central take care of itself, with the result of an advance of ½ in the one and a decline of ½ in the other. The peg seems to have been put into Lake Shore at about 75 and when it drops, as it did this morning, to a notch below, it is shoved up in quick order.

Union Pacific has been less active but strong to-day, and the Gould brokers have been quietly buying the Gould specialties, which is positive evidence that the "Little Black Man" proposes to march up the hill, and those who must will follow per force. Texas Pacific shares, to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars, are locked up in the Gould vaults in the Mercantile Trust company's cellars, and Texas Pacific has dropped to 8, with Wabash at 5, while Rochester and Pittsburg is nearly out of sight.

To-day Texas was jumped 1 per cent. and Wabash ⅛ in short order, and the gossip of the street is that Gould proposes to put the cats and dogs on tep and divert attention from the Telegraph and Missouri Pacific specialties. The fact is that Gould is believed to be in trouble, but his friends say he has grip and grit enough left yet to put his stocks up or down as he pleases. There are some very hard rumors respecting his situation, and the only basis for them appears to be the negotiation of certain loans on Missouri Pacific and it is regarded by some as a "Gould move"—that these loans have been manipulated.

Aside from the statement that the Democratic presidential ticket has a good head and a very big tail the office gossip of Wall street to-day rests on Gould's and Sage's probable financial life and the Saturday races.

There is little business and no outside trading.

Condition of the Chicago Postoffice.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Chief of Postoffice Inspectors A. G. Sharpe and Inspector Camp appointed as a commission to examine into the condition of the Chicago postoffice, have made a report to the postmaster general. They find the postmaster has devoted his time to the office and possesses a good general knowledge of the details of the service. The assistant postmaster is experienced and efficient, and well fitted for the position. His duties, however, are somewhat limited under the present organization of the office. Some of the most important duties usually performed by the assistant postmaster at large postoffices having been delegated or absenteed by what is termed an auditor."

The commission says: We have carefully examined work now performed by auditor and are of opinion his duties can be added to those now performed by the assistant postmaster without detriment to the service. We recommend this consolidation be made, and that the three thousand per annum be paid the auditor be suspended from the allowance. A private secretary of the postmaster is carried on the roster at $2,500 per annum. In our judgment this position is unnecessary, and as a matter of fact very little service has ever been performed by the party now holding the position. We, therefore, recommend that the office be abolished. The commission believe that two clerks employed in the weighing division can be dispensed with. The superintendents division we found to be efficient and experienced men. The mailing and city delivery divisions are especially well managed. Some additional force is regarded as necessary before beginning the heavy work of the fall and winter. The stations were found in good condition, with the exception of fixtures and furniture, which is worn and shabby from long service. The commission recommend the discontinuance of the postoffices at Wright, Grove, Bandon and Humboldt Park, their places being supplied by sub-stations. They also recommend that an inspector be charged with the duty of investigating the delivery service, with a view to its extension, if deemed advisable, to outlying stations. Altogether the report recommends an allowance of thirty-one additional clerks at an aggregate salary of $20,120, and provides for a reduction of $7,460, leaving a net increase of $12,660.

Revenue Collection.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The following circular relative to the collection of tax on fruit brandy has been sent to the collector of internal revenue by the treasury department:

"It is decided to continue the system of supervising operations of fruit distilleries which has prevailed the past two seasons. To this end, collectors are instructed to give prompt attention to all notices and bonds, that distillers may not be delayed in beginning work, nor have a pretext for commencing work before they are notified of the approval of their papers. Practices where they exist delaying the return of monthly reports, and carrying singlings over from month to month without doubling until towards the end of the season should be required to be given up, and collectors will rigorously insist upon a more strict compliance with the regular methods of procedure which the regulations provid. Earnest measures should be taken to secure prompt and faithful entries in the distillers' record of materials purchased and used, days and hours in operation, number of boilings made and the quantities produced. Doubling should be required each month, and arrangements made which will enable gauging to be done promptly and as often each month as circumstances demand. Serial numbers of packages must be continuous at the same distillery with the same proprietor, and must not be changed each year. For the purpose of frequent visitation of distilleries, you will again, when necessary, lay off your districts into suitable divisions and arrange for a force of competent officers sufficient to thoroughly effect the purpose of maintaining a supervision of these distilleries, which shall afford the distiller every facility for compliance with the law, and shall limit the opportunities for evasion.

A Batch of Murderers.

DETROIT, Mich., July 12.—Some time since the wife of Paul Loscher, of St. Joseph, left him and went to Montague, where she hired out as a cook at a hotel. Yesterday her husband made his appearance at Montague with the avowed intention of killing one Hugh Parmenter, who, he claimed, induced his wife to leave her home. Not finding Parmenter, Loscher induced his wife to take a walk with him. Upon convenient opportunity he shot her dead and then shot himself, but the wound is not necessarily fatal.

At a dance at Trent, Muskegon county, last night, Russell Clement and Joseph Loomis quarrelled over an old grudge with the result that Loomis was stabbed five times. He lived fifteen minutes. Clement is in custody.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 12.—This afternoon Joseph Seldenstriker, aged thirteen, shot and mortally wounded Curly Eshenbaugh, a little fellow only six years old. Young Eshenbaugh, who was an inmate of the Episcopal home for children, was with an old lady and several other children in an orchard connected with the home, when Seldenstriker, with three other boys, entered the grounds. Seldenstriker was flourishing a revolver and the old lady ordered him away. He retorted with an oath, adding, "I'll shoot some of you," and suiting the action to the words fired twice. The first shot lodged in a tree and the second took effect in Eshenbaugh's stomach. Seldenstriker and his companions then fled and have not yet been captured. Eshenbaugh is still living, but death is momentarily expected.

After the Battle.

CHICAGO, July 12.—There were very few remaining evidences this forenoon of the Democratic convention. The delegates very generally have taken their departure. The club and headquarters banners have been furled, and hotel corridors have resumed their wonted appearance. On the streets are to be seen a more than usual number of white hats, a number of which are surmounted by small feathered roosters, the wearing of which has become a sort of rage among the Democracy. Members of the national committee and other officers of the party who are still in the city express confidence as to the strength of the ticket. The delegates generally express great satisfaction for the treatment recieved at the hands of the local committee in providing for their comfort. Now that the great convention has come and gone, it is due to the officers and committee of arrangements that the press should acknowledge their obligations. The remodeling of the hall made an admirable audience room, and the facilities granted for making, printing and telegraphing the extensive reports were ample. Special thanks are due to Judge Wm. C. Goudy, in the preliminary arrangement of the details, and Hon. Austin H. Brown and Col. Richard J. Bright, the efficient sergeant-at-arms, for the intelligent aid rendered, and just appreciation of the requirements of the press.

St. Paul vs. Muskegon.

Yesterday the St. Paul team met that of Muskegon at the West Seventh street park, and after the closest possible contest, the visitors squeezed through with the victory, the score standing 2 to 1. The home nine presented Foster and Ganzel as the battery, Brown at third, Foley at short, and Carroll, the new man Manager Hunter brought with him from Omaha, at right. The other members played as usual. It was Carroll's first day in the team, and it would be unjust to criticise him on that account. He comes here with the reputation of being a heavy and safe batter and a good fielder, and we reserve caustic remarks for some other occasion, with the hope that his wear will make their use altogether unnecessary. His failure to hold Harter's fly in the seventh inning after two men were out was very costly and extremely aggravating, as it let in Muskegon's two runs, giving the visitors the game, but it should be remembered that he had a long run for the ball and the position he had to assume in trying to take it was a very awkward one. The next time Harter went to bat he hit what seemed to be a safe drive to right field, but Carroll got his revenge by taking the ball on a bound and fielding it to first ahead of the runner. The play was made rapidly and neatly, and received hearty applause. We believe Brown a strong man, but he plays his position rather too carelessly. He got three of the seven errors charged to the St. Paul team, but had he been fully on his guard he would have made none of them. Ganzel played a stronger game than usual, accepting ten chances. He had three passed balls, but only one of them assisted in run-getting. O'Brien might have cut off a man running to third in the seventh, but he lost the opportunity by throwing low. Tilley and Barnes had an easy day of it, getting a fly each, and the latter making a pretty base hit after having been hit with the ball and so lamed that he could hardly run. Foley assisted the Muskegon team in getting its scores in the seventh by a fumble of Knight's grounder, but otherwise his playing was of its usually brilliant character. Hengie was Hengie again. He retired three men, made three assists and got two pretty hits to center field. Foster made a bold move for victory, giving the Muskegon hard hitters but two singles, but a pitcher must be aided by something more than Providence to win. The home team hit Knight safe seven times, but the hits were in seven different innings. St. Paul's run was made in the second inning, as follows; Foley took first on seven bad balls, took second on a passed ball, to third while Brown was being thrown out at first from catcher, and home on Barnes' hit to center, O'Brien having retired on a foul fly to catcher in the meantime. Tilley closed the inning on a foul tip. Muskegon's two runs were made in the seventh, as follows: Knight reached first on Foley's fumble of his grounder and went to second on a passed ball. Brower was retired from short to first. Wright reached first on third's fumble and stole second, Knight taking third. Cook sat down on a foul tip, and Knight and Wright scored on Carroll's muff of Harter's fly. Patton was retired on a fly to center. Jennings, the umpire, is a popular favorite, and received an ovation of cheers on entering the field yesterday. Following is the score:

Minneapolis vs. Saginaw.

The one day's rest evidently did the Minneapolis boys some good, for they braced up, and, barring a few errors, played a strong game with the Saginaws. It was a fifteen-inning struggle and was then decided a draw by the umpire, the score sheet giving each club credit for four runs. Caruthers and Walker occupied the points for the home team and they did themselves proud. Caruthers did not weaken, but pitched all the innings with remarkably even effectiveness. He had one wild pitch, but did not give a man his run on balls. Clarkson, the pitcher for the visitors, is a wonder. His peculiar curves troubled our boys sorely, twenty-five of them striking out, while only eleven were struck out by Caruthers. The base hits of the game were eight with a total of nine for Minneapolis, and six with a total of six for Saginaw. Reid alone cracked the ball for two bases. Parker's error cost the home club three runs. The other six errors were not costly. The only costly errors by the visitors were passed balls, and they gave Minneapolis two runs. The umpire is blamed for the draw. Murray ran home on a fielders choice hit, and to the eyes of everybody was safe by several seconds, yet he was called out. This one, which the umpire cheated them out of, would have given the home team the game. There was considerable kicking on both sides at the manner in which Frank called strikes. The day was cold and damp, which probably accounts for the fielding errors. The attendance was quite large.

The first inning was a blank. McElwin, the new center fielder from Union college, opened the second with a heavy base hit, but he was retired at second on fielder's choice, Nichols going to first. The right fielder then muffed Walker's ball and Nichols went to second. A passed ball sent Nichols to third and Walker to second, and another brought Nichols home. Caruthers fouled to the catcher and Parker's ball was fielded to first by third baseman. Each club got goose eggs in the third and fourth innings. In the fifth Walker and Caruthers tallied. Walker got in a fine base hit, Parker fanned, Walker stole second, Isaacson struck out, and Walker scored on a passed ball. A two-base hit by Reid had the happy result of giving the plate to Caruthers. In the sixth inning the visitors got in three runs. Faatz struck for one base, Clarkson sent a grounder, which was picked up by Caruthers, and with intent to make a fine double play he sent it to second, but Parker muffed it, and Faatz got that base and Clarkson got first. Lockwood made a base hit, on which Faatz scored, Clarkson going to third. Then both Clarkson and Smith secured the home plate on Whitney's base hit. Forester went out from third to first base, and Whitney went out at home on fielder's choice, Murray assisting, Lavin going to first. Spence sent a fly to Reid. In the seventh inning Minneapolis got in another run and in the eighth the visitors scored a tally, but after that nothing but goose eggs adorned the score sheet. Following is the score:

Stillwater vs. Bay City.

STILLWATER, July 12.—To-day's was the finest game that has been played here. It required twelve innings to decide who had the victory. Errors were few and almost unavoidable. The fielding on both sides was sharp. When a man could be put out the opportunity was not lost. In most of the innings they went out in one, two, three order. In the sixth inning the home team made one run, and the visitors made one in the seventh and one in the twelfth. No two clubs could be more evenly matched than those that played to-day. The batteries were strong, Quinn and Dealy being for the home team and Foutz and Robinson for the visitors. Fowler did some excellent playing, and his throw from right field to third base was a telling one. Rapidity of throwing was a marked feature, and all did well, but the coolness of Quinn, in the most exciting moments, was very noticeable. The three-base hits of Visner, Dealy and Foutz did not profit them, as the play was too sharp. The attendance was not large, but those who were present were highly delighted, and witnessed the best game of the season. It was a contest between the pitchers. Peters must have been pleased with the way his men worked together, and even Noonan, who has been on the base ball field to play only once or twice this season, showed the material of which he was made. By holding the ball a little too long he allowed the last score to be made, thus giving the visitors the game. The following is the score:

Milwaukee vs. Fort Wayne.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

MILWAUKEE, July 12.—The feature of the Milwaukee-Fort Wayne game to-day was that only four men came to bat in the first inning, and only three in each succeeding inning. The score was 1 to 0 in favor of Milwaukee. About 1,000 people were in attendance when the game opened. Brown pitched for Fort Wayne and Cushman for the home club. Dunlevy umpired. Sexton, of the Milwaukees, went to bat, and took his base on seven balls, but was thrown out in trying to reach second. Hogan went out on strikes, and Maynahan was thrown out at first base. The visitors went out with Wood on first base, Carriden being put out between second and third and two striking out. In the second inning Behel reached first on the second baseman's error, and got to third when the catcher dropped the ball. Straub brought him in, but the side went out in straight order. The rest of the game was a succession of brilliant plays with but few errors. Broughton made two high throws which nearly lost the game for the Milwaukees, but quick fielding saved the day. The following is the score:

Two special events were sandwiched between the heats of the regular races. The first was the pacer Johnston to beat his own record of 2:10. He was first given a warming up heat in 2:28¾. In the second heat he reached the quarter post in 32 seconds, half in 1:04½, three-quarter in 1:38, mile in 2:11¼. In the third heat he reached the quarter in 34 seconds, and covered the mile in 2:12¼.

Though he did not succeed in lowering the record, he paced a mile faster than was ever before trotted or paced, except by Westmont.
