Democratic Congressional Convention of Fourth District.

A Democratic convention of the Fourth congressional district of the state of Minnesota, is hereby called to meet in the city of St. Paul, on Thursday, the 17th day of July, 1884, at 12 o'clock m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate who shall be elected a member of congress from and for said district at the next ensuing general election.

The basis of representation fixed for such convention is one delegate for each county of the district, and one delegate for each two hundred and fifty voters or major fraction thereof, cast at the last general election for the Democratic candidate for governor. The several counties of the district will on this basis be entitled to representation as follows:

Anoka	3	Pine	6
Chisago	2	Ramsey	12
Hennepin	19	Sherburne	2
Isanti	1	Washington	7
Kenabec	1	Wright	8

Total delegation 61

EUGENE M. WILSON,
Chairman of Congressional Committee of Fourth District. 190-98&199

OF ex-Alderman Michael Toumey of the New York Tammany delegation, the Sun says, "he went to Chicago to oppose Gov. Cleveland, but returned determined to work for the ticket."

THE Ohio Democrats are organizing for a vigorous, aggressive campaign. By the first of August their work will begin in good earnest, and with favorable chances of carrying the state in October and November.

IN the issue of the New York Tribune of Monday the following was stated: "The Republican State central committee of Minnesota has chosen the Hon. C. K. Davis as a member of the National committee instead of M. G. North, resigned." It seems impossible for the Tribune to tell the truth, even about a small matter.

THE Bismarck paper that assigns Col. P. Donan to a Blaine stumping tour in North Carolina, probably hopes he will do something or anything that will take him away from Dakota. But, of all things, this is the queerest assignment to give him. Why not state that the gallant Colonel is about to be appointed postmaster at Bismarck,—something tangible like that.

SOME of the esteemed organs of the "grand old party" in this vicinity are being duped by the ready-made editorial matter sent out by the Blaine literary bureau into attributing the editorship of the St. Louis Westliche Post to Carl Schurz. It has been some years since Mr. Schurz has had any connection, near or remote, with that paper. It is now owned by a St. Louis ring of office holders, and at home has less influence than a piece of clean white paper. It will become the truly good rural prints of this section to carefully scan the "magnetic" statements furnished from Blaine's headquarters. Perhaps all of them do not care to be made to appear ignorant and foolish.

THE Philadelphia Press complains of Gov. Cleveland that he "has no past." To this the New York Sun pointedly rejoins:

"There are thousands of voters in Mr. Blaine's own party whose chief objection to Mr. Blaine as a candidate is that he has too much past. It is a past defaced with great and indelible stains."

The truly good organ in the Quaker city should pick its flint, and try again.

THE return to New York from Chicago, of two distinguished members of the Democratic convention is thus metioned by a city paper: "The golden-tongued ex-Senator Grady was as dumb as an oyster, and the silver-tongued Bourke Cockran said that if he wished to talk he could not do so until he had taken a Turkish bath. The two orators took a cab, and were driven to the Blossom Club." Such silence is very becoming.

AFTER all Mr. Logan's worry with his letter of acceptance, Blaine went through it with a blue-pencil and tore it to pieces. John Alexander is disgusted and regrets he accepted. If he had it to do over again he would let Blaine shake for his own persmisons and not try to bolster up his desperate case. Jack and Jim, will not be happy if they have much to do with each other, especially Jack.

THE New York Sun characterises a local political incident in that city in the following graphic paragraph: "One hundred cracked dynamiters declared vociferously for Blaine last evening. To the list of rogues in office, Star route thieves, gamblers, railroad wreckers, and frauds of high and low degree must be added the grand army of cranks, They all gravitate naturally to the great political Tramp." The portrait is eminently truthful.

STEVE ELKINS, the Whoop-er up, was at Washington Tuesday and is reported to have closed a bargain with ex-rebel repudiator Mahone, whereby that patriot is to support Blaine and secure the state of Virginia for him. Billy Mahone trades with Blaine just as if he had the electoral vote of Virginia in his breeches pocket, but he will find it very different when the votes are counted next November. Sherman should order another Danville inquisition on the spot.

THE Prohibition authorities of Marshalltown, Iowa, are bold, brave men. They singled out a woman who had sold a few glasses of beer in alleged violation of the so-called liquor law, and undertook to thrust her into jail. The populace became excited and threats were made of tearing down the jail. The minions of the law finally had the discretion to admit the woman to bail, when her friends carried her in triumph three times around the public square. It was a glorious act to make a woman the first victim, and let the men saloon keepers go without molestation.

THE Harrisburg Patriot furnishes an interesting feature in the history of B. Finance Jones, who with Steve Elkins and ex-Senator Chaffee, are running Mr. Blaine's campaign. It is this:

"The first American manufacturer to employ Hungarian labor was Mr. B. F. Jones, the new chairman of the Republican national committee. In 1866 he met a strike of his skilled mechanics by importing pauper laborers, and only yielded when the experiment proved inexpedient. Mr. Jones now insists on making the canvass on the issue of protection to American labor."

Mr. Jones is a proper person to be at the head of the "grand old party." A hypocrite in profession, a grinding tyrant in practice.

AN eastern paper of Monday remarks, "Colonel R. G. Ingersoll, whose interest in Mr. Blaine is not quite as lively as it used to be, reached San Francisco on a pleasure trip on Saturday." Col. Ingersoll was, on Saturday no nearer San Francisco than St. Paul, and on Sunday evening addressed a large audience at the grand opera house, emiting his stale quips and platitudes in regard to Christianity, concluding with his sterreotyped, sickly sentimentality in regard to love. Pope Bob may have less interest in Blaine than formerly, but his interest in making money for Ingersoll has not abated. He is simply an apostle for Ingersoll's pocket book, and nothing more.

UPON Saturday last, the final number of the Congressional Record for the session of congress just closed, was issued. It is a delightful number. Forty-six columns are devoted to the publication of a speech by a congressman named Sumner, alleged to have been made June 19; another congressman, Cutcheon, by name, fills a few pages with an alleged speech under date of June 10. Then there is a speech attributed to Senator Plumb, which it is claimed he delivered May 6, though until the Record was issued nobody ever knew it. On the 10th April Mr. Willis is credited with having made a speech, while it is creditably believed that he was not present in congress on that day at all. If there is one humbug greater than another the name of it is the Congressional Record. It is simply an extravagant fraud and ought to be abolished.

TOM CAMPBELL, the Cincinnati criminal lawyer, is likely to be disbarred for his defense of Berner, the murderer, whose acquittal brought on the Cincinnati riots of a few weeks ago. Tom is a member of the g. o. p. in good and regular standing, and why he should be singled out for discipline, and no attention paid to the parties who called the exposition hall meeting and inflamed the rabble mind by intemperate speeches is on the scape-goat plan that is contemptible. Campbell, with all his faults, is less culpable than the managers of the leading Republican newspaper and the men who did its bidding, and held a public meeting with the intent to fire the heart of a mob. If he merits professional ostracising, there are other men who far more deserve general expulsion from society. In dealing with such a question there ought to be some symptoms of fair-play.

IT must be distressing to Republican editors and speakers that Cleveland has a fore name which cannot be made available for campaign purposes. In the mind of the average Republican campaigner, the designation of a candidate as "Bill," "Sammy," or "Joe," is in the nature of a powerful argument against the fitness of such an one for office; but this cannot be applied in the case of the Democratic candidate. Hence, this is going to be a campaign of unusual difficulty on the part of the Republicans. Nor is Cleveland sufficiently old to afford an assistance to the opposition which is very much employed when possible, as in the case of Mr. Tilden, for instance. When a Republican editor has spoken of "Old Sammy Tilden," he had, in his own estimate settled the whole matter. But now they cannot even settle any pending issue by speaking of "old Cleveland," which is going to make it hard for the average Republican campaigner.

THE failure at Cleveland, Ohio, of the banking house of Everett & Weddell, was wholly due to the stock gambling of Sylvester Everett. Until somewhat recently Everett had been treasurer of the city of Cleveland, being repeatedly elected without regard to politics. While in that position he gambled with the city's money, and when the time finally came for him to turn the office over to his successor he had to use the cream of his bank's assets to fill the hole his speculations had made. Two years ago he was the Republican candidate for Congress and during the night before the election he spent $13,000 in the saloons of the city, and was beaten the next day by 2,539 majority for the Democratic candidate. His gambling operations crippled another bank seriously, until at last he has been driven out of all the financial positions he had held, having, like Ferdinand Ward, ruined his associates. Everett has been a noisy Blaine man, going it strong on the "enthusiasm" basis.

A CHICAGO paper is urging the Republican managers to make a vigorous campaign in the South. "Let forty Republicans go South and preach their political gospel," it cries. And for reason for a southern campaign the oracle says: "Now that we have so many 'Pharisee' bolters, so many 'fanatical' prohibitionists, so many 'holier-than-thou' independents, the party must deliver the alleged coerced negro votes now in bondage to fear, lest the party get outvoted for the want of dependents in the South and the surplus of independents in the North." This is very well and very fine, but here comes the Memphis Appeal, and serves notice on the brethren that "Blaine is not the man to break the solid South," and for the reason that "he is regarded as a corruptionist, an ambitious, dangerous demagogue, who has slandered and persecuted the Southern people with remorseless cruelty." It looks mightily as if the "grand old party" would "get out voted for the want of dependents in the South and by the surplus of independents in the North." Let the g.o.p. try a southern campaign to get the conceit taken out of them.

THE New York Tribune and other publications of organ proclivities profess gratification that the nomination of Cleveland has "awakened no enthusiasm." They simulate a sentiment they do not feel. The very matter they assume to be pleasing, gives them the greatest concern. They understand only too well that there are but few votes under the frothy hurrahs manufactured, in one way and another for Blaine, and they view with fear and trembling the dignity, sobriety and business-like determination which the Democratic nomination has evoked. It is a matter of a good deal of concern to them that forty Republican newspapers, with an aggregate circulation of one million seven hundred and thirty thousand copies refuse to support Blaine, but are advocating the election of Cleveland. They would be gratified to see more "hurrahs" for Cleveland, and less of the thoughtful, determined purpose to defeat the man who represents everything that is dangerous to the ends of good government, purity and integrity in public life. People who are in earnest have no time to stand on the street corners and howl at the passers by. The Cleveland campaign will be one of solid earnest work, methods that address themselves to the best judgement of all candid men. The Blaine crowd may employ all the glitter and "magnetism" they please. Cleveland will command the best elements of the country, and it is with them that victory will abide.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION TO-DAY.

The Democratic convention for the Fourth congressional district meets at 12 m. to-day at Turner hall, located at the junction of Sixth, Seventh and Exchange streets.

A FAIR STATEMENT.

The Chicago News, a Republican journal criticizes much of the action and the platform of the Chicago Democratic convention, but comments on the nomination of Mr. Cleveland with unexpected candor. The News says: "In the nomination of Gov. Cleveland the Democratic party has most undoubtedly made choice of its most available man. And we use the word available in its correct sense, and not as a term of derogation. We believe Mr. Cleveland will attract more votes than any other man who was at all likely to come before the convention at any time in its deliberations. He enjoys the confidence of the thinking men of the country in an unusual degree; he is regarded as a prudent executive by the business classes; he has shown in abundant measure his appreciation of and adherence to the doctrine that a public office is a public trust to be administered for the people, and not to be used for personal advantage; he is admittedly honest and efficient."

HOLLOW SATISFACTION.

A Blaine paper affects to be well pleased with the result of the Chicago Democratic Convention, alleges "a poor ticket has been nominated," "a meaningless platform promulgated," and the whole result "completed satisfactory to the Republican party." That is candor, but the candor of an empty whistle to keep the courage up.

The Democrats are more than satisfied with the result of the convention work, and if the Republicans are satisfied then two parties are well pleased. November will test the question as to alternate satisfaction. and when the plumes of the vaunted Knight trail in the dust, as they will, the residum of hopeless despair and unhappiness will abide with a corrupt party overthrow and crushed beyond the power of resurrection.

It is well for the "grand old party" to improve its time to whistle now, distractedly and tumultuously, for it will wail in November the despairing wail of the lost. A people long abused and plundered by faithless officials, are at length aroused to do a too long neglected work, and the cormorants of corruption will be hurled from power, and false government modes reformed from foundation to turret.

MR. FLOWER.

ROSWELL P. FLOWER, was strongly and widely advocated for nomination for President, prior to the convention but when Governor Cleveland loomed up so strongly, his friends forebore to neutralize the influence of the State, by urging another of its citizens, and thus causing a fatal division. The forbearance of Mr. Flower and his friends, under the circumstances is creditable to them, and worthy of the highest commendation.

The N. Y. Sun speaking of Mr. Flower well says: "Our esteemed contemporary, the Albany Times, justly says that Mr. Flower's exhibit of strength at Chicago is highly honorable to him and to the friends to whom his canvass was intrusted.

The time has not yet arrived when the service which Mr. Flower has now rendered to the Democracy of New York can be fully appreciated; but when Democrats undestand all that he has accomplished, and find themselves freed from dangers which he has done so much to obviate, a warm sentiment of gratitude will be manifested toward this whole-souled, able, and fearless citizen. There are few men of New York who, in 1884, have deserved so well of the republic as he."

LISBON, D. T., July 15, 1884.

To the Editor of the Globe:

Why don't you say something about Cleveland being nominated on Friday? Tote fair.

Respectfully,
JOHN J. SEMMES.

We are afraid that our esteemed correspondent does not read the GLOBE quite closely enough. The Chicago correspondence of the GLOBE promptly called attention to the Friday business of both conventions, coupled with the suggestion that it might be necessary to vote for Ben Butler to avoid the issue. As the GLOBE always "totes fair," it will again accommodate its correspondent by stating that the Democracy took the wind out of the Friday sail by nominating the same day, and now if Ben Butler sends the election to the House of Representatives as he threatens, we shall attribute it entirely to the fatality of both of the great nominations being on Friday.

CURRENT COMMENT.

THE Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette is constrained to say of the Democratic convention: "As for the convention itself, it appeared to be composed of men better looking physically than the members of the Republican convention. There was less a look of business and solidity, and plain matter-of-factness, and more of an appearance of show and display and fine dressing than there was a month ago; and, upon the whole, I must say I never saw a finer looking body of men in any public gathering. The Democracy run greatly to display, and in this respect one of their conventions is by far more attractive than a Republican gathering."

THE Gardener's Monthly laughs at the Government's blunders and failures in its efforts to raise tea in this country, while nursery men were aware all the time that there was no real difficulty in the way. The Monthly says: "The tea plant has been grown successfully in many parts of the South. Tea has been made from the leaves as good and as cheap as the Chinese ever made. Let the Government give but a bounty—protection, if you like to call it—for a few years to private enterprise, and we will guarantee the success of the Chinese tea plant as a tea product in America."

COLONEL W. F. VILAS, the permanent chairman of the Democratic National convention, first came into a national reputation for oratory by the speech he delivered in November, 1879, at the banquet of the Army of the Tennessee. He is above the medium height. He wears spectacles, has reddish black beard scissored close and moustache of the same. "The idea he gives," as Gath says, "is that of the rapidly fledged lawyer, sharpened into moderate acerbity by court practice and conceit." His voice is resonant, made in the mouth and breast, without any throat notes.

"BOTH England and France," says the Philadelphia Times, "are now experiencing some of the delights and advantages of a vigorous foreign policy, such as the partisans of Mr. Blaine are understood to recommend as a good policy for the United States. The condition of things in Egypt and in Tonkin is thus not wholly void of interest to Americans. If ever the lesson of minding your own business was emphatically taught, it is by the needless, yet perilous, complications into which both England and France have blundered in the east."

THE Princess Metternich is plump and has a good deal of color in her cheeks, the consequences, she says, of beer being so tempting in Austria, and the Viennese climate being so dry. In looking at the French crown jewels, she let fall some tears and exclaimed: "How gay and frolicsome we used all to be at the fetes where these diamonds were worn! What a good old time the reign of the Emperor was to all those who had easy access to him!"

GOV. HUBBARD of Texas was a school boy at Macon, Georgia. He used to say: "Boys, I'm going to Texas to be Governor," whereat his college chums would laugh. At Chicago he looked like a Southerner of the old Howell Cobb and Herschel Johnson school, having a small mouth and a huge paunch and seemingly to be made up with a bag under his waistcoat like the lean actor who portray Falstaff.

A MEMBER of the Paris legislature pointed out that the bill requiring three years' service from every one would have the effect of largely increasing the already numerous staff of German employees in French shops and offices. A proposal to permit clerks who at the end of twelve months passed a satisfactory examination in the military drill to be excused further service met with no favor.

THE Philadelphia Telegraph is surprised that a person of the intelligence of Henry Ward Beecher should declare that the idea of the resurrection of the body presents a lasting objection to cremation, since "the grave and the furnace do precisely the same work, the only difference being that the one requires years where the other needs only minutes for the accomplishment of its task."

LARGE fortunes are rare in Switzerland, and the salaries of public functionaries very modest. The President of the Confederation receives $3,000 a year, few judges more than $1,250, and there is probably no bank manager in the country who gets more than twice that amount. A man with an income of $2,500 is considered very well off indeed, and to have five thousand is to be rich.

THE Boston Herald puts a conundrum: "The New York Tribune printed last week a calm 'appeal to the southern leaders,' inviting them to vote for Blaine. And this week it prints some doggerel verse about the "old rebel yell" at Chicago. Has not Mr. Blaine yet decided whether to offer taffy or flaunt the bloody shirt as his policy toward the South?"

THE August Century will contain, in Mr. Cable's novel, "Dr. Sevier," a thrilling description of the departure of Confederate troops from New Orleans at the beginning of the Civil war. The march of the New York Seventh down Broadway is also described, with hardly less graphic power.

A FRESH fruit mission would be one of the most beneficent charities that could be devised for the poor of great cities. At present, unripe, stale or partly decayed fruit and berries are chiefly sold to the very poor, when they can afford to buy any, and such stuff is worse than none.

MR. T. B. ALDRICH, in deference to the prevailing Boston Anglomania, is now abroad to secure British writers for the Atlantic Monthly, while, per contra, the London World especially praises the current American magazines because they are more American than usual.

LATE CITY NEWS.

Kate Filbert was arrested and brought in to the city hall for street walking late last evening.

Sheriff Quinn, of Benton county, arrived here last night with I. W. Boyd, arrested for the crime of selling liquors without government license.

Special Officer Snow found on Tuesday night a box of hair switches under a shed belonging to Noyes Bros. & Cutler, corner of Fifth and Sibley streets, valued at $200, stolen from Mrs. Farr, in Mannheimer's block, about a week since.

The first annual picnic of the employes of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha shops at, St. Paul, (the Royal Route), takes place at Lake Elmo on Saturday, July 19. The excursion train leaves the Union depot at 9:15 a. m. and returning leaves Lake Elmo at 8:30 p. m.

Frank Waters, the brute who so infamously beat his wife last night that her screams were heard six blocks away, causing all that portion of Virginia avenue to rush to the place to see what murder was being committed, is about fifty years of age, and imbibed his brutishness, doubtless, from thirteen years' service on the New York city police force, "the finest in the world." The wretch deserves the severest punishment the law affords, in the absence of a legally constituted Minnesota whipping post.

WHOOPER-UP.

The Jim-Jack Mutual Admiration Society Crystalized by the State House Ring.

The Blaine and Logan campaign club, after the terrible throes to get born experienced last week, Wednesday evening came out of the shell with a very respectable break of the egg, at Arion hall (over the salaon) last evening, possibly fifty persons being present, of whom thirty-one attached their names to the roll. The club was organized by the choice of A. F. Nordine, assistant secretary of state, as president, M. D. Kenyon, assistant state auditor, secretary, and T. T. Johnson, treasurer. On motion S. A. Plumley, C. E. Chapel, M. D. Kenyon, H. L. Benedict and D. L. Reese were chosen a committee to draft a preamble and resolutions, and constitution and by-laws, the first to state why the club was formed and the last to furnish it with reins for its guidance and government in the future. It was also voted to meet at Arion hall every Wednesday evening for the time being.

T. A. Plumbley made a talk in which the Republican party were apystrophized as the salvation army of the past, present and future, the plumed knight of Maine the greatest statesman on record, for reasons not explained, and was the young men's idol of the nation, which was true as respected the present gathering, not a single iron-gray being on hand. Cleveland was characterised the unknown governor of New York, formerly sheriff and assistant district attorney, and was the representative of the same old rebel Democratic party who had been licked for twenty years and now come up to be gloriously licked again. The argument made on the unknown business showed how the memory of Frank Pierce and John Tyler had slipped away from the memories of the present generation, while an ashy, smoky smell from a burning straw pile failing to become purified by a ferriage of the river from over in the Sixth ward seemed a fitting incense to this species of wild oratory.

President Nordine on being called upon said he could not remember since he was old enough to vote of the name of a nominee which had filled him so brimfull of enthuse as that of Blaine. Nordine tells a good story, and he tells it well, and to describe how the Cleveland boom had died out, told the negro catfish story of shrinkage from a bouncer to a shrimp, but forgot to mention that the Blaine first and last had collapsed into a dried herring. He said the Republican party had become so amiable in long rule that they had become careless of their rights and arraigned President Arthur for letting even such an insignificant monarchy as Spain spit in America's face without retaliation. He wanted Blaine who would take Spain and these little foreign fellows across his knee and spank them.

The mule and the turpentine story was not up to the one he told as a starter, and his criticism because our nation has no navy was a foul ball for his own nine from the fact that the Republican party has been engaged ever since the war in abdicating the mighty deep in favor of the war and commerce tubs of other nations.

Mr. Kenyon made a vigorous speech for bringing out every Republican vote in the state in the coming campaign. He thought Blaine would carry the northern states solid, some of the southern, but nothing was said about Mexico. He didn't care about the high-toned, aristocratic Democrats coming over for Blaine, nor for Geo. Wm. Curtis, but he wanted all the poor Democrats to come into the Republican camp, where no one wore kid gloves or boiled shirts, or something to that effect.

Mr. Reese was an enthusiastic talker for the the nominees of whom Logan, the black eagle of Illinois was as pure, spotless and incorruptible as the "beautiful snow" before it hit the generally dirty earth, He was raised in the same air as the eagle, and had that to do with him socially and in business, but said nothing about any political experience. Blaine was a big salesman, but the sale was evidently a little the bigger man, and although he didn't say anything about having the ticket turned tail to, it was evident that the transposition would not be opposed by him. A man's not worth a wisp of marsh hay who wont back up an old friend for the vice-presidency, and give him a chance, if elected, to go fishing when he is a mind to for four years of summers, which is about all the office amounts to, unless somebody else higher up kicks the bucket. Mr. Reese closed by saying that as far as heard from the bulk of the German and Irish vote was just as good as in the Republican party's billiard table pockets, as well as Minnesota and Ramsey county.

AMUSEMENTS.

That the amusement going public of St. Paul know and appreciate a good thing in the way of the better class of operatic performances is attested by the continued large audiences that assemble at the Grand to hear the Caleton opera company in their presentation of the sparkling beautiful opera the "Merry War." Two large audiences gathered at the Grand yesterday to enjoy the performance, while at both the matinee and evening renditions was greeted with applause, the bright music by the score, its vocal charms and superb mounting being highly enjoyable. The opera improves, moreover, with each representation, and those who enjoy the charms of sprightly music should not fail to see and hear it. The "Merry War" will be presented again to-night with the same cast and excellent appointments.

"Rank and File."

The new military spectacular drama, "Rank and File, or the American Soldier," will be produced at Market hall next week, commencing July 22, in which Owen Bartlett will appear in his original character of "Skid," supported by the St. Paul Dramatic association. The drama will be given under the auspices of the Emmett Light Artillery, and besides those appearing in the cast thirty young ladies of the city will take part in the several tableaux, viz: "Columbia at the Opening of the Great Struggle, with the Loyal States Around Her," "Battle Field by Moonlight," "Columbia and the States Weeping at the Loss of Life," and the beautiful allegory "Columbia Crowning the Heroes of the North."

The drama abounds in thrilling scenes, comic situations, battles, marches, pictures of camp life and prison pen suffering, and 100 persons will participate in its production, an infantry and artillery drill by the Minnesota national guard will be woven into its delineation. It will be given under the management of E. H. Lovring, its owner, in five acts entitled: New York York City; West Virginia and Cumberland Gap; West Virginia and Tennesee; In and near Andersonville; Mr. Elwood's residence, Madison Square, New York, 1865." The Successors to J. H. Armsby.

Since Mr. Washburn is about to retire from congress he appears to be looking for business outside of Minneapolis. It was announced by telegraph last night that Geo. R. Newell & Co., of Minneapolis, had succeeded to the business of J. K. Armsby & Co., of Chicago. Mr. Langdon was interviewed, but denied it. It seems, however, that Washburn and Newell, the other partners, must have gone into the Chicago business, for the following notices were sent out yesterday:

You are hereby notified that we have this day sold our stock of merchandise and book accounts and assetts of every and all kinds to George R. Newell & Co., who are to carry on business at Nos. 22 and 24 River street, Chicago, and you are requested to pay the debt you owe us of $— to said George R. Newell & Co. on their demand. J. K. ARMSBY & Co.

Chicago, July 15, 1884.

You are hereby notified that we have this day bought out the stock of merchandise, book accounts and assetts of any and all kinds of J. K. Armsby & Co., late of 22 and 24 River street, Chicago, Ill., and you are hereby requested to pay the debt you have incurred to them to us at 22 and 24 River street forthwith.

GEO. R. NEWELL & Co.

Chicago, Ill., July 15, 1884.

Senator Pendleton Interviewed.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Senator Pendleton, who has just returned from Chicago, was seen to-night by an associated press reporter, and expressed himself as follows concerning the declaration of the convention on the question of civil service reform: That the declaration was satisfactory to civil service reformers and the nominations were alike satisfactory to them. He said both Cleveland and Hendricks were strongly committed to reform of the civil service and asked, "who could desire more absolute committal to the doctrines of reform than the acts of Gov. Cleveland and the declarations of Gov. Hendricks?"

Senator Pendleton referred to a speech by Gov. Hendricks in 1872, and his letter of acceptance in 1876, in support of the assertion that the governor was heartily in favor of civil service reform.

Newspaper Opening.

Owing to the ill-health of the proprietor, the Winona (Minn.) Herald is offered for sale, or rent. It is the only Democratic newspaper published in the English language in Winona county, and both city and county are Democratic. The Herald has been established fifteen years, and in addition to the news office, a good job office and also a bindery is included in the outfit. An excellent opportunity is offered to a practical newspaper man.

St. Paul District Conference.

The St. Paul district conference will convene at Mahtomedi, Monday, July 22d, at 10 o'clock p. m.

Bishop Foss will preside. The conference is expected to complete its work on Tuesday, and the St. Paul and Minneapolis Preachers' institute will convene Wednesday evening. The pastors are expected to notify each lay member of the time and place of the district conference. Every preacher is expected to be present.

The Editorial Excursion.

A slight change of time is announced in the hour of the excursion leaving St, Paul July 29th for Mahtomedi. The original time fixed was 1 p. m. This hour is changed to 12:25 p. m. for the accommodation of the St, Paul and Duluth R. S.

On the arrival of the excursionists at Mahtomedi an address of welcome will be delivered by Rev. S. G. Smith, Ph. D.

CAMPAIGN HUMOR.

A new adaptation—Blaine to Logan: Dear Jack, don't talk.—Philadelphia Times.

Butler's presence at Chicago is not now supposed to have any political significance.—Pittsburg Commercial (Rep.)

Ben Butler would have a walk-over in the south, where everybody would be pleased to step heavy on him.—New Orleans Picayune.

The mysterions red sunsets have departed, but Mr. Blaine will have all the more fun painting the universe when he is elected.—Boston Pilot.

If Blaine is elected the British lion will appear in Barnum's parade next season living on liver and wearing his tail between his legs.—Milwaukee Journal.

Gen. Benjamin F. Butler expects that the Concord School of Philosophy will nominate him and run him on the platform of "The Overmarch of the Too-too."—Cincinnati Commercial.

Benjamin Butler won't get any prize packages at Chicago, but we are privately advised that he will paint the town red before he leaves it, merely to testify that he has had a good deal of fun. —Philadelphia Press.

Mr. Dana, like some very skilful physicians, loses his head when he essays to doctor his own political family. His treatment is heroic and better suited to sickening a foe than curing a friend.—Wilmington (N. C.) Review (Dem.)

George William Curtis is not to be blamed very much for bolting the Republican party. He is about the only tandem-named literary man in the country who has not been appointed to a nice foreign mission.—Savannah News.

The Concord School of Philosophy will hold its sixth annual and its final session next week. The Blaine organs live in the hope that the school will give them a remedy for the oneness of the kicking against the thingness of the Chicago ticket.—Richmond Dispatch.

Cheaper Eastern Traveling.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 16.—The local passenger war which the Herald predicted is now raging. It is not very disastrous, and may be safely said, a needless war. The war was precipitated by an excursion agent, who advertised round trip tickets from Cleveland to New York, via West Shore for $15. The pool prohibits round trip through tickets, but the West Shore is not in the pool. It was said the party was to run from Cleveland to Buffalo over the Nickle Plate, but officials of the latter denied having sold any considerable number of tickets for the excursion and it is now said that most of the party go from here to Buffalo by boat. The New York, Pittsburg & Ohio and Pennsylvania roads at once laid the matter before Commissioner Fink, who instructed them to meet the rate, which they did with great alacrity. The bars being down Lake Shore went through, and now from present date until July 31st the fare of $12.50 one way from Cleveland to New York will be superseded by a round trip fare of $1 Whether the war will extend beyond July 315. remains to be seen.

White House Renovation.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Owing to the president residing in Washington longer than usual this summer, the customary overhauling of the White House has been delayed somewhat. In view of his early departure, however, the work is being rapidly pushed to completion. All the carpets have been taken up and cleaned, the lamberquins and heavy curtains removed and the furniture wrapped in linen covers. Large rolls of matting stand in the main corridor to be placed upon the floor of the east room. Only two chandeliers are to be removed at present. The central chandelier will remain, while the others are gone, to illuminate the room in case of necessity. It will then be taken down and go through the same course of treatment.

CURRENT NOTES.
