DAKOTA & MONTANA

Fargo Special Telegrams July 17, to the St. Paul Globe.

Northwestern Notes.

A real estate firm at Watertown has contracted with a Chicago paper for $500 of advertising.

The assessor puts the property of Hughes county, four years old, at one and a half millions. Pierre is the chief town.

Last week H. L. Beeton, in Hand county, proved up on 160 acres in the original shack of Dakota, which is said to be the only instance of the kind on record.

Large anticipations are had at Yankton over the discovery of a four foot vein of coal, three miles from town. It will be a great thing if it proves to be an extensive deposit.

The past week four young Indians were sent from Standing Rock agency to Des Plaines, Ills., to enter St. Mary's training school. Several of them can speak English. They are to be taught trades.

About the only serious accident on the 4th reported in Dakota was at Hawarden in the south where a man was run over and killed in a horse race. At Vermillion the fire works stand fell breaking one or two legs.

Mandan Pioneer: In the claim of James Kennedy vs. the Northern Pacific railroad, for injuries received in the Sweet Brier accident in March, 1882, E. C. Rice brought suit yesterday for the plaintiff for $20,000 damages.

As an indication of how young ladies are esteemed in Dickey county, it is stated that a young man walked twenty miles to hire a team to take his duck to the 4th of July celebration at Ellendale. She has a fine claim, however.

A statement going the rounds puts the figures Col. Donan contemplated in his party at eighty. About twenty-two would cover all including Cooks, Field, and Donan—but alas! man proposes—this does not apply to the colonel, however.

A Methodist camp meeting will be held on the farm of Mr. Suton, about three and a half miles west of Canova, in Miner county, commencing July 22. Rev. Doty, a former pastor in Lake county, will have the management of theservices.

In some localities the justices have become so public spirited that they will marry couples without fee and throw in peanuts and candy as well as kisses. One at Fargo says he will contribute all of the latter wanted but wont give even a chromo.

A portion of Hughes county, near Canning, suffered from hail recently. The local paper says: Many fields that promised a rich yield are now as barren as the hard beat road, and some of the farmers are left in very straitened circumstances.

There is no temptation to exaggerate about products in Dakota, as the facts are ample in rotundity. For instance, a gardener at Jamestown has pie plant that measures eight inches around the stalk, not the leaf, and his currants are as large as cherries.

There are several young men who would like the postoffice address of this party: "A young lady near Sioux Falls has plowed twenty acres this season and sown it to wheat with her own hands. In addition to this she is said to be 'good and true, and handsome too.'"

The Parker Era learns that the great camp meeting of the Adventists at Madison was the largest of the kind ever held in Dakota, that $10,000 were raised for church work, that over thirty persons were converted, and that a committee of seven was appointed to locate the repository.

Ipswich Gazette: The Baptist church is desirous to ascertain how many members of the Baptist church there are in Edmunds, McPherson and Campbell counties, and ask any and all to drop a postal to Miss Ella Pierce, the secretary of the church at Ipswich, and let their names be enrolled.

The Olivet Record says: In passing from this place to Providence, one can see fifteen groves which have been destroyed by the tree pest—the beetle. Timber that is stripped by this venomous insect will entirely die, as it has been thoroughly investigated in this county. But a short time after the bugs have finished their work, the tree can be easily lifted out of the ground.

The Port Emma Times has information that last week a hail storm visited La Moure city and parts of that county, in which some of the hailstones measured 12 and 15 inches in circumference, and came with such force that inch roof boards to shanties were broken. One man was struck upon the top of his head and knocked senseless, the hail cutting a gash large enough to place a finger. Only a few pieces of wheat are reported badly damaged.

Hand county is badly torn up over the county seat question. A strong effort is being made to remove it from Miller to St. Lawrence, a new town said to be largely owned by Chicago capitalists. The petition to the county board to submit the question to the voters in November had 1,162 names and the Miller remonstrance 1,180. These contests engender a great deal of bitterness and retard the progress of the counties, but they seem to be inevitable and nearly every county that has rival towns has to pass through the experience.

It is now charged that Major Edwards is responsible for the holding of the convention at Pierre. He is regarded by many as the Ben Butler of Dakota, and whether asleep or awake concocting schemes to make all the politicians dance to his music. Parties in the United States are fearful that Ben will be the wild taurus in their crockery and theater. Anxious ones fear the major will put up Pettigrew or some other fellow to remove the pins from under the present member of congress. He has not yet been accused of sowing wild mustard over the territory.

There is a good deal of indignation among the papers along the N. P., at the grossly exaggerated estimates placed upon the towns by the June number of the work Descriptive America, which is devoted to Dakota. For instance, Fargo is credited with 5,000 population; Bismarck, 4,000; Grand Forks, 4,000; Jamestown, 1,000; Valley City, 800; Mandan, 700. The latter is also given as the county seat of Mercer, a county north of Morton. Any stranger who visits Mandan and don't see 3,000 people will be thrown into the river; Jamestown claims about the same, besides an insane asylum; Fargo has small use for one who don't perceive where the 12,000 comes in, not looking very far over the river, either. A magazine with such absurd figures will not sell in this country.

White Ghost's Speech at Miller.

At the Fourth of July celebration at Miller, in Hand county, there were 342 Indians, and they were quite a successful feature. Quite an absurd dispatch was sent the Chicago Times, and perhaps other papers, about their alarming the people at St. Lawrence so that they telegraphed General Terry for military protection. A band of seventy-five of them rigged in paint and feathers came dashing down the street giving the war whoop at every jump of the ponies. The chiefs made speeches, one of them, Running Bear, was ninety-six years old, and very decrepit and hideous. In his speech White Ghost said:

"When I came across this prairie I saw white people with big farms, lots of horses, and raising their children upon it. I have a small part of land out on the reservation left and every once in a while they ask me for that. I have't large horses, they are small, but still the white people ask me for a piece of my land. My father was raised between the Missouri and Jim rivers; he is now dead; he thought the land belonged to him and his children. When I was down to see the president I told him I could drop the seed down on the ground and it would come up, the soil was so good. When I went to Washington I told the great father the land on the other side of the river was not of any account, but they still want it. When I was down to see the great father I told him if he would give me a reservation on this side we could just sow the seed and it would come up and then we could make a living. I have got a little piece down there and still the white people come on that land. I thought I would tell the white people and get them to help me. I have only a little piece of land down there, and I want to keep that and raise cattle, so that when I die my children will be wealthy."

Recovering from a Broken Neck.

The Vermillian Plain Talk reports a very unusual case in which a man is likely to recover after having his neck dislocated. John Hennipin, section boss, fell off a hand car and was run over by it. The paper says: "He was picked up and carried to his home, where investigation proved that in the fall his neck had been dislocated. As he lay in an unconscious condition it was thought he would die soon and as a consequence it was not thought necessary to call a physician. However, after several hours had passed and still he did not die, it was deemed best to call a physician. Accordingly word was sent here and Dr. Schott repaired immediately to the house of the injured man. It was found that the injury consisted in a complete dislocation of the neck, which rendered the patient utterly helpless and numb. After applying what remedies could be ministered, the doctor left to await developments. At last accounts the patient was gaining some feeling in his limbs but was not able to move. The chances are much in favor of his recovery but there is yet danger. Strange to say no other injuries were sustained though the hand car passed over his body. There is perhaps not one case in a thousand where a man sustaining such an injury ever recovered.

Bungling Confidence Operation.

Valley City Times: He was a stranger, his name is Wood, and he came from Oriska. He is a telegraph operator and a confidence man, new in the business. While the Oriska operator was out of the office yesterday, Wood telegraphed the First National bank to "Honor Charles D. Tenney's draft on you for $350." This botch was signed "Wm. Tenney, Security bank, Minneapolis." Wood then sent a message directed to "Charles D. Tenney, Valley City," saying, "Draw on First National bank of Valley City, for $350." As soon as Cashier Kanouse received the message he knew it was a confidence game, as any bank official would readily see from the phraseology. Also the Minneapolis cashier's name is W. M. and not Wm. Tenney. Wood arrived here, got his telegram and presented himself at the First National bank, to be informed that his little game wouldn't work. Before leaving Oriska he stole two tickets to Portland, Oregon, for which he was arrested to-day at Jamestown at the instance of Agent Sanderson, of Valley City, and under orders of Supt. Graham. He will be brought to Valley City for trial.

Dakota's Bread Producing Capacity.

E. O. Smalley, on a recent visit to Jamestown, went out into the country to look upon a field of a thousand acres of wheat, and says: "We fell to figuring on a pine board on the bread producing capacity of a single Dakota township in which one half the acreage is in wheat. There are 640 acres in a section, and thirty-six sections in a township. That makes 22,240 acres. Supposing one half, or 11,000 acres in round numbers, to be devoted to wheat, and the crop to yield twenty bushels to the acre—the probable yield this year—and we have 220,000 bushels. Allowing five bushels to the barrel of flour—the highest figure—we have 44,000 barrels of flour, or 8,844,000 pounds. Few people consume as much as two pounds of flour a day in the bread they eat; but let us make this liberal allowance. We thus find that a single Dakota township, only half cultivated, will supply bread for 12,634 persons."
