Chief Welsh declares his intention of arresting all men and boys found bathing in the river near the city and if any one found it may go hard with them as there is a fine imposed under ordinance No. 40 of not less than $1 or more than $100 for each violation, in default of payment of which not more than 90 days may be imposed. OLD WORLD NEWS.

The Labor Demonstration in London to Favor the Franchise Bill.

Green Room Club Dinner—Brigands at Work—Cholera News—Miscellaneous.

LABOR DEMONSTRATION.

LONDON, July 21.—At noon the organized trades union assembled at Sloan square, Paddington Green, Easton square, Islington Green, Clerkenwell Green, Insbury Circus, the Obelisk, Black Friar's and Grosvener gardens and proceeded to the embankment. The political delegates wore colors. The streets and bridges across the Thames were packed and traffic greatly impeded. Much chaff was indulged in by the spectators along the line of march, especially when those in the procession were more than usually adorned. Several thousand agricultural laborers from Kent and Sussex marshalled at Black Friars bridge. The procession moved in the following order: Mounted farriers, agricultural laborers, provincial deputations, London trades council, representatives from printing, bookbinding, paper, iron, metal, clothing, leather, shipping, building, cabinet making, fancy goods and general trades, political clubs, liberal associations, temperance bodies and friendly societies. Each section, on arriving at the park, marched to the platform assigned and the band played till the chairman arrived.

As the proceseion was starting from the embankment several loud explosions were heard near the government offices. The crowd was greatly frightened, and thousands made a rush toward Whitehall, believing the explosives due due to dynamite. The scare ended when it was found the explosions were nothing more than a salute which the horse guards were firing in honor of the birth of the Duchess of Albany's son. The route lay along Parliament street, Whitehall, Charing Cross, Pall Mall, St. James street and Picadilly. Before the procession started the embankment became a surging mass of humanity. Viewed from Hungerford bridge it presented an unbroken array of human heads relieved by blue banners and trees along the embankment. The trade societies carried emblems of their craft, noticeable among these was the banner by tailors, representing Adam and Eve after the fall. The agricultural laborers were loudly cheered. The resolutions prepared for submission to the meeting protests against a rejection of the franchise bill by the irresponsible and unrepresentative house of lords. It expresses approval of Gladstone's action, and declares "continued existence of unchecked power of impeding popular will, which the lords exercise, is not condusive to the welfare of the people and peace and prosperity of the country."

A tombstone was carried in the procession inscribed "To the memory of the house of lords, 1884."

Dense masses of spectators along the route interfered with the progression of the procession. It took a full hour to clear the embankment, and the end of the procession had not left Parliament street when the head had entered the park. The president of the board of trade and other ministers viewed the procession, and they were loudly cheered. Some of the bands in the procession played the "Dead March in Saul." When the procession had arrived at the park, speeches were made, and a resolution previously prepared was submitted and adopted.

THE BUILDING STRIKERS.

Over Five Thousand Laborers Want Nine Hours a Day.

NEW YORK, July 21.—About 2,000 brick layers, 3,000 laborers and 2,000 hod hoisting engineers struck work this morning because their employers refused to grant the demand that nine hours shall constitute a days work, instead of ten. The employers who denied the request say they can get other men to take their places and whether they can or not, it will be but a few days when the men will be willing to return under the old terms. The bosses who garnted the nine hours think the others foolish, as they will have to yield in the end. As fast as the men struck they reported at the headquarters of their respective unions. About thirty-five employers allowed their men to go to work on their own terms.

Hugh McMahon, who has charge of the erection of the new cotton exchange, says: The building trade is very lively. I don't think the boss builders can afford to have the men go on a strike for any length of time without suffering a great loss. Nearly all large builders will grant the demand.

The strikers claim they can stand it longer than the employers, and will hold out for six months.

It is reported that on many of the jobs the men were not out ten minutes before told to go to work again. A large number of bosses held out until noon then yielded, thus leaving not over 2,000 men on the strike.
