friends in Albany on that interesting occasion, I cordially co-operate with them in the support of the excellent ticket nominated by the Democratic National convention, and feel assured that in its success at the election, of which there is every promise, the country will achieve a substantial victory for the cause of a good government.

The New York World of Saturday editorially said: "It is settled that Tammany Hall will endorse the Democratic National nominations at an early day and follow up the same with a ratification meeting that will shake the city on its foundations. The boom is booming." The meeting will occur September 15th.

WHEN Ben Butler plumped himself down at Harrisburg the other day a plain spoken, square-toed son of Pennsylvania called upon him and informed him that he might as well drop out of the lot, as Blaine could carry the state without his aid. In a speech of Col. Pliott was a flea in old Ben's ear, as it were, and he got out of the Pennsylvania Dutch latitude with all expedition.

New York is rather a nice town to live in. A sailor who came from nobody knows where or died last Friday of yellow fever in the New York Hospital, an institution in the populous part of the city, and crowded with patients. This is rather a startling exhibit of the inefficiency of the municipal government. Probably no city in the world is so loosely and so carelessly managed as the city of New York. Of course this incident is treated with levity by the New York papers, but the case may not turn out to be a joke.

Are bank robberies, defalcations and embezzlements, by confidential and trusted employes, something phenomenal in these days, or are they a matter of current events, and such as are to be expected? An enquiry not without significance in these days of constantly violated confidence. To guard against possible theft and embezzlement on the part of his employes the following is related of one of the soundest and invulnerable banks of the Badger state.

An Eastern man who was in Wisconsin a few days ago, while in a bank, saw a man carrying a $50 bill changed. The cashier counted out $30 and then spoke to the bookkeeper. The latter spoke to the janitor, and this individual put his hands on the man's chest, and if my company with a man turned out to be President and chief stockholder. This person stepped around to the safe, and by the aid of the bookkeeper, he unlocked the safe, and charged it to him on a day-book. Later in the day, as he met the Eastern man on the street, he explained:

"Perhaps that transaction looked queer to you, but I can assure you that it was perfectly correct. The cashier took a notion to skip he'd have to pawn his boots to get beyond Chicago. The bookkeeper watches the cashier, the janitor watches the bookkeeper, and the man who changed the three that depositors are paid 5 per cent. interest, and not a game of poker or faro has ever been played in this town."

The sinking of the United States war ship, the Tallapoosa, was caused by the drunkenness of her officers. Had they been sober, no collision with schooner would have occurred. The catastrophe and loss of life was caused by the mandarin imbecility of its officers. There were nearly two hundred persons on board, and a number of lives were lost, how many is not known nor never will be. The officers do not care to have it known. The fault was not with the schooner but with the officers, and with the management of the ship itself. Investigation shows that the Tallapoosa—

So far as her officers were concerned, was virtually floating saloon. The viands and liquors with which she was loaded for the entertainment of the Secretary of the Navy and other officials and guests were paraded by those to whom the cargo of the vessel was entrusted until she became so gorged with food and saturated with liquor that their condition was that of so many inebriates. It is not difficult to believe that the captain Reed of the schooner, spoke the truth when he declared that the officers who remained on board: "It was the most careless piece of work I ever saw." It was worse than carelessness; it was criminal; and the parties responsible for the loss of the ship, and the lives of those who were on board, should be severely punished.

The presidential campaign of this year of grace is now fairly opened. The preliminaries have all been adjusted, and the work has begun with an earnest zeal that promises hot work as the canvass progresses. Four presidential candidates are in the field, standing on their respective convention platforms, the letters of acceptance are all in, positions are taken, alleged virtues are spread forth "officially," and more or less solid ground has been reached, and the arena widened for the fray.

The deeply impregnated with the political odors and smells of personal character, but the assailing quality of one candidate soon found that the mephitic and malarious exhalations enveloped the front door of the other; the locomotives of slanderous fifth, collied; and the light assailing parties were put hors de combat in the disastrous downfall of jangling glass houses, and have changed their tactics for the proper work of a political campaign. Only the inconsequential nincompoops are left to wallow in the fifth of private character incalculating, reaping nothing but contemptuous scorn, and exerting no influence on the main questions of the hour. The silly cry of withdrawing presidential candidates from either party, put forth by crank politicians and solled moral purists, never received countenance in any influential quarter, and is now clamored for only by idiotic weaklings, whose impracticable silliness, leads to nihil public consideration.

The issue is joined, an honest government against a corrupt dynasty. On this vital issue the two great parties have locked horns, and the most earnest struggle is being waged. The gigantic corruptions of the party in power, are shown in the publications of the press daily, beyond the power of successful falsification. The crookedness of the candidate of that party, in accumulating a fortune while speaker of the House, by more than questionable transactions has been clearly established, calling forth the severe utterances of bribery and corruption. On the other hand, the candidate of the Democracy is shown by all controversy to be officially unassailable, and to be inflexibly and courageously honest in opposing every suspicion of corruption, and resolutely protecting the interests of the people, the tax-payer and the working man. That "old man of the sea," Ben Butler looms up as a disturbing element in the canvass. Himself a monopolist, and the very champion of monopoly for long years, he now stands forth as the Presidential candidate of the Anti-Monopolists. His has been and is consistent only in inconsistency. He was a J. D. F. Democrat, then a J. P. Democrat, then a Democrat, and as such reaching the gubernatorial chair of Massachusetts, and now a "People's party" leader, a monopoly anti-monopolist. The Blaineites hail his nomination with enthusiasm, deeming that he will weaken the Democracy, and that his candidacy will inure to the benefit of Mr. Blaine.

Charles A. Dana, of the N. Y. Sun characteristically inconsistent, claiming to be Democratic, but true to no party measure, and reliable for no party support, having at first supported is now assailing Cleveland, coaching Ben Butler, and thus faithfully aiding on the Blaine cause. Dana dines and wines Butler at his own mansion, and together they lay their plans to defeat the Democracy, and establish with a full understanding, a Blaine and a Dana manager. The columns of the N. Y. Sun are characteristically filled with misrepresentations and lying evasions, and is constantly quoted in its vituperative misstatements, by Blaine organs, deceptively and knowingly as a Democratic journal when the Democracy is no more responsible for the N. Y. Sun than for the N. Y. Tribune.

The Sun stirs Cleveland by declaring that he is not fit to be President, that he is lacking in nearly all the qualities that go to make up a President. In short, that he is a very weak small man. You may see the characteristic inconsistency of the Sun. On the 8th of June last, only thirty days prior to the assembling of the Democratic National convention at Chicago the Sun said:

In New York there are two who are much discussed. We mean, of course, Gov. Cleveland and Roswell P. Fowler. Each has peculiar merits, and those the Governor are rare and elevated; but each has also points of comparative weakness. Yet, should the convention determine to nominate them, we say emphatically that the candidate will stand a fair chance of carrying the state of New York, and the best efforts of the Sun will be devoted to securing his entire success.

Both Mr. Fowler and Mr. Cleveland had "peculiar merits," but those of the Governor were rare and elevated. Now he is lacking in all the qualities that go to make a good President! Can inconsistency, well go farther?

But Butler's candidacy does not pan out as was expected. His nomination is proving to be really inconsequential. The people are seeing, and understanding clearly, that he is only a restless, uneasy, unreliable disorganizing marplot. It is apparent to all that he will draw cranks from the Blaineites as well as from the Democracy, and in this regard the books will be about balanced. Dana and Butler are playing their last game of political bluff and party mischief. Henceforth they will not be considered as factors of any moment, in any party or political combination. Their inconsistencies are too marked, glaring and monstrous, to gain for them anything but contempt and condemnation. Their every political act is at variance with honesty of purpose and unselfish sincerity.

Meanwhile the political skies are brightening, and the every encouragement to believe that the people arising to displace the corrupt party now in power, with the purpose of restoring to the Government to honest hands, that it may be administered for the benefit and welfare of all the people.

Advices from all quarters are of the most cheering character. In spite of all machinations New York will go for Cleveland. Frowning upon Republican, prohibitory, summary laws, the Germans of Ohio, with almost absolute unanimity, will rally to the support of the Democratic ticket. And so from every point of the compass comes the cheering news of the awakening of the people, with a determination to rescue the government from corrupt hands.

Indiana is sure to reverse its action of 1880 and vote for Government reform in November. Last Saturday the campaign was opened in that state, in the most lively, vigorous and encouraging manner. The people are arousing, the campfires are being lighted and will continue to burn more and more brightly till November brings the day of final action and with it a glorious triumph.

In opening the campaign in Indianapolis Mr. Hendricks made an able and incisive speech, pointing out the Republican party, unanswerably, for starting malpractices and dishonesty in administration. He showed how outrageously and unjustly the people are taxed to create a surplus revenue, and stated that a surplus of four million dollars, is now locked up in the government vaults at Washington, that ought to have been left in the pockets of the people. With such unrighteous taxation, with such an enormous surplus fished from the pockets of the people, corruption in every department stalks abroad. Mr. Hendricks' speech was able, clear, showing a perfect familiarity with governmental affairs, and was the utterance of true statesmanship and political philosophy. The speech fully reported, was published in the GLOBE Monday morning. Read it.

In short, the outlook everywhere is encouraging. The Democracy are putting on their armor and are everywhere at work. The Independent Republicans are spurning Blaine in great numbers, determined that the government shall not go into the hands of a corruptist. This large defection will seal the doom of a corrupt dynasty.

Let no one be deceived by Blaineite misrepresentations. The alleged defection of the Irish is untrue. Investigation shows that the Democratic voters, of whatever original nationality, are to-day, as a whole, as ever true to the old flag, and will side in carrying it triumphantly to the front in November.

It is developed that at least twenty Georgia editors are developing themselves into cultivation of chickens on an extensive commercial scale, and the Savannah News hopes that they were not induced to go into this line of business by the example of the beneficiary of the great electoral fraud. But there will be a very general raising of poultry in the shape of Democratic voters, and the country quite early in November and in abundant time as well as quality for Thanksgiving.

Mr. HENRY LIVING is now saying his last words in London preparatory to his second visit to America. One or two items of interest are worth mentioning concerning this visit. First of all, Miss Terry will accompany him, and Mr. Joseph Hatton will not accompany him. Their respective news is a relief to the Palladium of our Liberties—the unshackled press of America.

The Republican National Campaign committee is sorely in need of funds. This is encouraging. The Democratic campaign is being carried along without a corruption fund. Democrats are not having to be bought. But a Republican campaign without a corruption fund is a green-corn dance with no green corn.

BIERMAN CHOSEN.

The First District Democratic Convention at Albert Lea Yesterday.

The Programme Laid Out for Wiping the Earth With Milo White.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

The committee on permanent organization reported as follows: Permanent chairman—Hon. C. F. Buck, of Winona.

well prepared on all questions, debated with ability and rapidly gained respect and consideration in the Senate.

[Mr. Vernon (O. Banner.) The New York Sun sought to lose and control Gov. Cleveland in making appointments and managing the affairs of his office, but not succeeding, the editor fancied he had a grievance against Cleveland, and now opposes his election for President. Dana secured a large circulation for the Sun by making loud professions of Democracy, and howling about "turn the rascals out." His present desire seems to be to keep the rascals in.

MURPHY'S PLAN OF SALVATION. A Rousing Meeting Last Night, with a Deepening Conviction on the Part of Many to Strike for Freedom.

A service of song of half an hour's duration preceded the address of Mr. Murphy last evening. When that was concluded Mr. Murphy read the third chapter of Mark, making a running comment as he passed along. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Marshall. The Gospel hymn "Who is on the Lord's side," was sung by the choir, the congregation joining, and this was followed with "Jesus Lover of my Soul."

Notice was given of a prayer meeting to be held from 3 to 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Central Presbyterian church.

Mr. Murphy said in the outset that he would say a few words in regard to Gospel temperance. This he did through a series of anecdotes or experiences of pledge signers that had come to him in the course of his public career. In every instance the efficacy of the power of Gospel temperance was fully shown. The motto of the pledge, "with malice toward none, with charity for all," lies at the foundation of the Murphy movement, and numerous instances were offered to show that the most gratifying results had been accomplished, and men restored to all that can be hoped for in this estate. In the course of his address Mr. Murphy said:

How careful we should be to win men, not by a word or look discourage or drive them. God blesses men wonderfully in answer to prayer. Every one that asks it receives. Let us have patience, exercising faith, love and charity, continually striving with God's help to assist men to be true. Don't criticize, don't take much of a man to critic, but it takes a genuine manhood for a hero.

The ladies of the Women's Christian Temperance Union are the mothers and sisters of the city, organized not for their own glory but to do deeds of ministering to the lowly and unfortunate, tempest tossed upon the waves of sorrow. Help them. Whatever they ask us cheerfully give. Their works of mercy bring them and us nearer the throne of the Eternal Goodness.

Oh, the subtle power of drink. For it, men give honor, virtue, truth, are dashed into the gutter, give their time, and, oh, so often break the hearts of the best friends men ever had.

The only safety is in total abstinence; no man should trust himself to total when he crosses the line from moderation to intemperance. Love is a conqueror, I never knew a man who would trust his wife with his pocketbook unless he was dead in love with her.

Do it taper and there is no success in tapering off. Sign the pledge and ask God's help to keep it. Come forward, men, and sign the pledge. Make the pathway of liberty broad and wide, line it with heroes. Blessed be the man who puts his foot on the serpent and conquers him.

During Mr. Murphy's remarks the deepest feeling and interest was manifested, and when the opportunity was given to sign the pledge one hundred and sixty came forward for that purpose, including a gentleman who had been a drinker for thirty-two years, but who now accepted the freedom of Gospel temperance, and blessed Francis Murphy for pointing out the way.

The meeting continues to-night with song service at 7:30, and Mr. Murphy's address at 8 o'clock.

WEDDING BELLS. Two Notable Weddings Celebrated in St. Paul Yesterday.

St. Mary's church on East Ninth street has seldom been the scene of a more joyous and happy event than the one that greeted its sacred precincts yesterday morning.

THEY ARE TIED AGAIN.

St. Paul and Minneapolis Meet, and the Former Takes the Sixth Game of the Series.

Winona Tries a New Pitcher and Comes Within an Ace of Beating Milwaukee.

[St. Paul vs. Minneapolis.]

But few people attended the last game between the St. Paul and Minneapolis teams yesterday, but 300 or 400 being on the ground. The game was won by St. Paul on the good playing of the home team, assisted by the few errors of the visitors, although neither team played a very brilliant game.

In the first inning, Andrus, of the Milwaukee club, went to the first base on a safe hit, a wild pitch by O'Brien gave him a safe hit, and he went to third on a passed ball. In attempting to run in from third he was put out. Reid hit to short stop, and Casey took his base on called balls. A base hit to center by Kinzie brought Reid in, and a high fly to right, missed by Dealey, brought in Casey. Nichols was put out at first, Kinzie remaining on third base. For the home team Carroll led off with a two-base hit, and reached third on a passed ball. Hengle struck a high fly to short stop, Dealey sent a ball to left field, and Carroll scored. Barnes reached first on a grounder to left field, and was sent to third by a base-hit from O'Brien. Dunn went out and Barnes and O'Brien were left on bases.

In the second inning Isaacson struck out, and a high fly, missed by Barnes, gave Walker first. Andrus struck out, and Reid was retired on a high fly. For the St. Pauls Ganzel reached on a fumble by Andrus, and was assisted to first by a base hit from Filley, the latter making second on the attempt made to put out Ganzel at third. A base hit from Werrick to left allowed Ganzel and Filley to score. Werrick reached second on the base hit of Carroll, and scored on an attempt to put out Carroll at second. Dealey struck the sphere for two bases and a third base hit by Barnes allowed him to score. Hengle was put out at first on a weak hit to short stop, O'Brien struck to second, and was hit by Dealey, and Barnes at third. In the third inning Casey, of Minneapolis, struck out, Hengle was retired on a fly to Dunn, and Murray retired the nine by striking the ball to first. St. Paul failed by striking in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh innings. In the fifth inning Walker, for Minneapolis, reached first on a base hit to right, and Andrus was retired on a fumble by left, scoring on a fumble by first of Werrick's grounder. Hengle struck out, and Dealey sent a grounder to left, which was fumbled by the fielder, enabling Werrick to score and taking Dealey second. Barnes knocked a fly to left, which was muffed by the fielder, and Dealey scored, Barnes being retired at second. In the ninth inning Minneapolis made a desperate but futile attempt to regain the game. Werrick, by Hengle gave a base to Walker, and Andrus struck the ball for two bases. Isaacson hit for a base to left. Andrus, Walker and Isaacson scored. Reid was retired on a weak hit to second, and Casey struck out. Following is the score:

ST. PAUL. Carroll, 3b., 4 1 2 3 PO A E Hengle, 2b., 4 0 1 2 4 0 0 Dealey, 1b., 5 2
