

RADIANT ROCHESTER,

Which Never Minds the Weather When the Wind Don't Blow.

The First Still Day of the Week's Track Sports.

A Big Crowd and Big Race and Big Time Generally.

The Winona Board of Trade Banqueted in the Evening.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

ROCHESTER, Sept. 4.—The weather opened this morning incomparably lovely. The sun came out bright and clear, the air was cool and delightful and everybody was happy.

The city people seemed bent on taking in the fair early in the morning, before the crowd gathered, and they accordingly turned out with their carriages and patronized the business with the idea no doubt of taking in the fair before the crowd came.

THE WINONA VISITORS.

At 10:30, a. m., the special train bearing the Winona board of trade arrived and were met at the depot by a committee on reception from the Rochester board of trade.

The party consisted of John Kendall, president; C. L. Bonner and J. L. Brink, vice presidents; Prof. W. F. Phelps, secretary; W. W. Thomas, treasurer, and about sixty members of the board representing the leading business houses and manufacturing institutions of Winona.

They were formed on Main street and, headed by the band and committee, were marched to Rommel's hall on Broadway, where they were addressed in a few brief but appropriate words of welcome by President E. Damon, of the Rochester board of trade.

He alluded to the desire for a better acquaintance upon their part with the business men of Winona, and spoke with feeling of the prompt, generous manner in which the Winona board of trade came to their relief last summer, when they were stricken with the terrible cyclone.

He most cordially welcomed them to Rochester, and extended to them the freedom of the city. He informed them that carriages were in waiting to convey them about the city and to the fair grounds, and invited them to a banquet in their honor at the Cook square at 8 o'clock, p. m.

Prof. Phelps, on the part of the Winona board of trade, responded briefly to the address of welcome.

The committee on arrangements composed of S. B. Clark, R. L. Van Duren and F. B. Kellogg, then distributed tickets of admission to the grounds and to the banquet to each visitor, after which they proceeded to the carriages in waiting and to the grounds.

THE BABY SHOW.

At 11 a. m. the tent of the "World's Exposition" became the center of attraction. It had been tendered to the use of the association for their baby show. It was thronged at the appointed hour by the mothers and babies, twenty-two having been entered for exhibition. The space for a large distance about the raised platform over which the tent was pitched, was crowded by an immense throng of people, who seemed as interested in the operations of the judges as if they had been the arbiters of the destiny of each individual.

The committee of judges were Oliver Gibbs, Jr.; Hon. C. H. Edwards and D. E. Bailey. After mature deliberation they rendered the following decision: First premium, consisting of a full suit of baby's clothes, to Willie Hooks, of Rochester, a fine looking brunette baby, sixteen months old, and the second, a life sized dressed doll, to Laura Patterson, of Rochester. The suit of baby's clothes were given by Lut & Knowlton, of Rochester, while the doll was offered by J. J. Fulkerson, of Rochester.

In accordance with the stipulation, Secretary VanCampen, of the association, kissed the premium babies.

As soon as the award had been announced the audience were told that a special committee from the Winona board of trade, who had charge of a purse of $13, raised on the train coming up, were in waiting to pass their judgment on the prettiest babies, and to award two purses of $8 and $3 respectively. These awards were made, the first to Arthur L. Abar, of Rochester, and the second to Clara Hogan, of Rochester, the first a boy of four months, and the second a bright, little dimpled girl of ten months. The committee were W. T. Hubbell, M. E. Turner, A. O. Slade and O. N. Roberts, who kissed the babies, as if they were used to it and liked it.

THE WORLD'S EXPOSITION.

The headquarters of the World's exposition were frequented during the day by a large number of people. The following is a list of the gentlemen connected with it: Oliver Gibbs, Jr., Lake City; U. S. commissioners: H. E. Marvin, Rochester; general superintendent dairy department: C. P. Russell, Excelsior; horticulture: F. G. Gould, Excelsior; manufacturing department: L. C. Porter, Winona; fair exhibit: H. H. Young, St. Paul; immigration pamphlets: Seth H. Kenney, Morristown, and J. F. Porter, Red Wing; amber case exhibit: Henry Kibb, Rochester, poultry and pet stock: F. A. Richardson, Austin; general field agent dairy department: The superintendents are busy selecting exhibits for shipment to New Orleans. Among these exhibits will be four tons of amber case products. At the Wednesday evening meeting a programme of operations was agreed upon, so that the commission will be prepared to proceed systematically.

PERSONAL.

The following were among the distinguished visitors at the fair on Wednesday: Dr. A. Stewart, V. Simpson, Andrew Hamilton, J. J. Randall and G. W. Van Horen, all of Winona.

C. A. De Graff, of the Lake Elysian stock farm, Janesville, Minn. Chas. Helfman, Eau Claire, Wis. C. P. Russell, Excelsior. J. H. Leggie, La Crosse. Claxton Wiltach and Fred A. Wright, St. Paul.

During the day yesterday, the committees were all busy examining exhibits and making awards, and towards noon the familiar blue, red and white ribbons began to be seen.

Probably the oldest exhibitor of stock upon the grounds is Col. Olin, of Rochester. He has two pens of thoroughbred American merino sheep of which he feels justly proud. His flock is sired by Acme No. 23, bred in Vermont by W. S. Burwell, and are all of them strictly pure.

To make a complete list of entries and awards would be too laborious an undertaking even for a Gleaner representative, so we shall content ourselves with saying that all things considered the awards were made in excellent taste and correct judgment, and that the best won.

In this connection it might be well to state that the Globe headquarters at the head of Newspaper row, were as usual on such occasions the center of attraction and were thronged throughout the day.

The programme in front of the grand stand was resumed at 1 p. m., by the concluding heat in the race between Herod and Silas Wright.

SECRETARY FOLGER.

His Death Yesterday Afternoon at His Home in Geneva, N. Y.

A Biographical Sketch and Review of His Public Life at Washington.

Reception of the News at the Treasury Department and by the President.

His Successor Will Have to Be Appointed on or Before the 28th Instant.

GENEVA, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Secretary Folger died at 4:55 p. m. The only persons present were Mrs. Hart, his deceased wife's sister, Dr. Knapp and his associates, his family physician, Dr. A. B. Smith, and his confidential servant, James. Dr. Smith and Capt. J. S. Lewis had left him but a few minutes previously. Dr. Henry Foster, who had been here two or three times as consulting physician, arrived on the 4:45 train, and was conveyed to the Folger mansion by Dr. Smith.

Mrs. Ernst, the secretary's sister, arrived by the same train. After the death of the late named had entered, the three last named had entered, and all were over. Secretary Folger's two daughters are in the Adirondacks, the elder in very feeble health. His son, Capt. Charles W. Folger is at Alexandria, Virginia. All have been writing to come, the Geneva telegraph not being earlier resorted to as the sudden termination was not apprehended. Capt. Folger will arrive tomorrow. The secretary returned for the last time to Geneva Wednesday evening, Sept. 20.

CAUSE OF DEATH.

Secretary Folger's family physician gives the following diagnosis of the case: Great feebleness of the heart's action, congestion of the middle lobe of the right lung and capillary congestion of the bronchial tubes, torpid liver and an albuminous discharge of urine, showing disease of the kidneys. The doctor was informed that the secretary had had hemorrhage of the lungs three times late before his return. The first was while out yachting with friends at New York, on which occasion he discharged about a pint of blood. The secretary rode out daily until the 20th ult., since which time he has kept his room, but did not wholly abandon his official work. He continued to answer important letters and telegrams up to yesterday, and seemed reluctant to be kept in bed, yet he means unconsciously of his critical condition. He entrusted to his personal friend, Capt. Lewis, the final messages to his family and other directions of confidential nature. Within a few moments after the secretary expired telegrams announcing his death were dispatched to President Arthur at Newport, Assistant Treasurer Coon, Frank Sperry, his private secretary, Hon. Thomas C. Acton, assistant treasurer at New York, and Judge Andrews, of Syracuse.

THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The first news of the death of Secretary Folger received in this city was conveyed in the associated press dispatch from Geneva. Upon its being shown to ex-Secretary Coon, who is the acting secretary, he immediately notified the chiefs of the bureaus in the treasury department, and invited them to meet at his office this evening. Late in the evening Coon was informed by a brief telegram from Geneva from the colored servant of the secretary of the latter's death. As the news of the death of the secretary spread about the city, it was received with general expressions of regret. Officials of the treasury department especially were shocked by the suddenness of the event. The generally expressed opinion of these officials was that his death was due to overwork. He sought to supervise all the details of the service, instead of leaving the merely routine work to his subordinates. Treasurer Wyman said that for some time before Folger left the department he had been complaining of pain in the region of the heart, and in difficulty in breathing. The watchmen and other employees of the department who heard the news expressed their sorrow and spoke feelingly of Folger's uniform kindness to them.

TO CLOSE THE DEPARTMENT.

At the meeting in the assistant secretary's office this evening there were present, Mr. Coon, who presided, Comptroller Lawrence, Commissioner Johnson, Treasurer Wyman, Commissioner Evans, North Auditor Bardsley, Supervising Architect Bell, Hon. Danton, Mr. Nimmo, chief of the bureau of statistics, Mr. Alexander, fifth auditor, and Judge Crowell, acting sixth auditor. Mr. Coon, on calling the meeting to order, announced the death of Secretary Folger and stated that he had called the officials to this meeting to advise them as to the proper action to be taken. In the absence of the president an executive order to close the department could not be had, and he was doubtful of his authority to close it, even for a day. He said if there were no legal obstacles in the way he would close the department tomorrow, and also on the day of the funeral. Judge Lawrence, first comptroller, Judge Johnson and Mr. Alexander, fifth auditor, gave it as their opinion that the acting secretary had authority to close the department tomorrow, or on the day of the funeral. Mr. Coon, after hearing from these advisors, announced that he would issue an order closing the department tomorrow informally, and stated that he had already ordered the drapping of the building. He also informed an Associated Press reporter that when the office is informally closed all the mail and express matter is received as usual, but nothing is sent out, and nothing goes on record as having been done on that day.

He said that the relations of the treasury department with the business world were such that it was important that it should be closed as seldom as possible. He thought by the direction of the president the sub-treasurers and other outside bureaus of the department would be closed for a couple of hours at least on the day of the funeral.

THE PRESIDENT NOTIFIED.

Mr. Coon, as soon as he received the news of the death of the secretary, notified the postmaster general, who is the only cabinet officer in the city, and both sent telegrams to the president informing the latter that they had received news of the death of Mr. Folger. Assistant secretary French, of the treasury department, has been in Europe for some time, and is now on his way home. His absence leaves Mr. Coon the only assistant secretary here, and has been acting secretary since Folger left. Under the law he will continue to act as secretary, unless the president should make another appointment in ten days from to-night. Death of a cabinet officer during his term of office has been a rare occurrence in this country. Webster died while secretary of state, and two secretaries of war, Rollins and Upshur, and two postmasters general, Brown and Howe, have died while in office. Folger is the first secretary of the treasury who has died while holding office.

NOT EXPECTED.

Assistant Secretary Coon said that he has received several letters recently from Secretary Folger, in which he wrote rather despondently. In one, alluding to the burden of work in the department, he said that while he was about useless still would pack his trunk and return to duty if he (Coon) felt that too much was laid upon him. In another he remarked that he was in a miserable plight, while a third letter was closed abruptly with the remark that he had set out to walk at length, but was very weak and listless. Two other letters received since were dictated to an amanuensis, and, while containing clear directions concerning important matters, also conveyed the intelligence, inserted by the writer, that the secretary was very weary, and could do only the smallest physical and mental exertion. In one letter Acting Secretary Coon was advised to send a cable message to Assistant Secretary French, asking him to resign at once. Judge French was then on his way to Europe.

In regard to the question of filling the vacancy by a temporary appointment Mr. Coon submitted the question to the attorney general on the death of Sixth Auditor Ela. The attorney general gave his opinion that the vacancy occurring by death of the holder of a bureau could not be filled on an expiration of ten days, either by a temporary designation or a permanent appointment, and that such a temporary designation, if made, should be for ten days. It would follow, therefore, that the vacancy in the office of the secretary could not be filled on an appointment for ten days from the 16th instant, and must be permanently filled not later than the 26th inst., Sundays not being counted.

A meeting of the treasury bureau will be held tomorrow at 10 o'clock, for the purpose of resolutions of respect to Folger.

ARTHUR RECEIVES THE NEWS.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 4.—President Arthur died this evening with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ellis, at Fair Lawn. There were about sixteen other guests. The president received a telegram announcing the death of Secretary Folger at 5 o'clock, and was greatly affected by the news. He will attend the funeral, and hopes to be able to attend that of Senator Anthony also. He has telegraphed his condolences to the father of Secretary Folger, and ordered the flags on the government buildings in this city and at Fort Adams to be placed at half mast until the funeral. The president had intended giving a dinner to the English admiral, Saturday, but that will now probably be indefinitely postponed.

His Life as Secretary.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The death of Secretary Folger has not created much surprise here, for it has long since been known that his health was very poor, and his official duties worried him severely, and consequently the news of the attack he had on his return from New York, where he had been for the still more serious announcement. Secretary Folger had but a judicial mind and judicial training. If he ever had talents of an executive order lack of the use of them had stunted their development, and the result was that he was a very hard worker, but particularly successful as a secretary. He labored painfully through a vast mass of routine business that a secretary who really performs his own work must leave to subordinates. He had a horror of signing his name to papers unless he knew all the facts of the case, and a detailed history of the whole subject. He came to the department early and stayed late, trying to master every detail of his vast department and attend to everything himself. One of his friends on one occasion ironically called his attention to his duty in not signing the elevators, which seemed to be the department's principal business, and content to leave to others. He was ever endeavoring to personally grant leaves of absence to the clerks, instead of leaving that work to one of his assistants or to the appointment clerk. But when there was a question of finance pending, the secretary seemed to be the department's principal business, and content to leave to others. He was ever endeavoring to personally grant leaves of absence to the clerks, instead of leaving that work to one of his assistants or to the appointment clerk. General Coon pervades the people of Geneva over this sudden removal of their beloved townsman, men of all parties and of all conditions in life alike joining in expressions of sorrow. The first emblems of mourning displayed were above the entrance to the quarters of the Thirty-fourth, separate company, Folger corps, N. G. S. N. Y., at Geneva, the National bank and upon the large Clermont street. The secretary will be interred in Geneva by the side of his wife, who died seven years ago.

HASTINGS.

[Special Correspondence of the Globe.]

HASTINGS, Sep. 4.—The lecture at Music Hall, for the benefit of the Hastings public library, was attended by a very large and appreciative audience. Mr. Donnelly is so well known in this state that it is needless to say that as a pleasant and entertaining speaker he has few equals and no superiors. But the large audience that listened to him last night will agree with your correspondent that his lecture "Atlantis" combines, in a high degree, qualities rarely found in the production of a public lecturer. It is, at the same time, a popular lecture in a true sense, and a profound and scholarly one. As delivered last night, without notes, as the author is full of his subject, he was equally entertaining and instructive to the scholar and the mechanic and day laborer. Mr. Donnelly began by saying that Napoleon boasted that his mind was like a cabinet with many drawers where one might arrange and dispose of the contents of one and close and lock it and turn to another without confusing or mixing the contents, that he could dispose of one subject under consideration and turn to another with his mind wholly abstracted and unembarrassed by the former subject. He said that if the speaker had often wished for such a mind that what with lecturing, running for congress and writing a book on Lord Bacon and Shakespeare, he found it difficult to concentrate his powers on given subject, and that he had therefore to apologize to his audience for appearing before them without a written lecture, as he had not found the time to prepare one on the subject assigned him by the committee. The speaker plunged at once into his subject and, notwithstanding his audience for an hour and a half, as they had rarely been by a lecturer.
