CHICAGO.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—The feature on 'change to-day was the continuation of the corner in Beptember corn, which was advanced by the manipulators to a point 8c above the opening price, 41/2c above the close on Saturday and 3c above the highest point it has heretofore reached during the present corner. Fresh receipts were very heavy, but it is understood that all the cash corn was taken care of by the clique. Wheat was the cereal most largely dealt in and the course of prices was rather disheartening to the bulls, though they knew that the decline is but a temporary and healthful reaction. In the afternoon the grain markets firmed up somewhat, wheat advancing 1/4@%c. Provisions were rather tame. The closing prices for the October options on the afternoon board were wheat 781/4c, a decline of 3/4c as compared with closing sales Saturday; corn 571/2c, an advence of 1/c; oats 251/c, a decline of 1/c; pork unchanged at $17. Lard 10c lower at $7.30, and ribs unchanged at $10.20.

In the wheat market there was a sharp reaction, but one that should not be viewed with surprise by any class of operators, for where there has been a steady and natural advance of 5 or 6c there are always a good many operators who got in on the ground floor who are anxious to realize, and a large amount of such offerings are pretty sure to break the market a cent or two. The market opened firm under favorable foreign advices. British cables are said to be firm and higher, with showery weather, and a further advance of 6d per quarter was quoted for California and American red winter off coast. Farmers' delieveries in England for the week were a little heavthan for the previous week. New York and St. Louis were both lower and the receipts here were quite light. There was, however, less demand than was expected and the offerings on the part of those who desired to realize were quite free, which resulted in a down turn in prices that continued throughout the regular session. On the afternoon session there was a fair demand and 1/4@3/c of the decline was recovered. There was a fair shipping demand for low grades, but No. 2 was scarcely called for except for future delivery on speculative account. October opened at 79c, sold to 7914c, and then, under free offerings, down to 77% c, closing on the regular session at 77%c, and on the afternoon board at 78%c. November was the favorite deal and opened board at 79% c and the afternoon at 80%c. at 771/2@793/c, and No. 3 was steady at 63c. Hutchinson alone letting go 100,000 bushels. general feeling is still strong concerning the fu-

75c, 4c below the close of Saturday, but the corner brokers, with McHenry at their bead, seem to take hold very readily. The receivers held out stiff for the highest price, and the 1,000 cars of contract grades received were disposed of at from 78c to 80c. The September deal will close to-morrow noon, and there is yet another day's receipts to be heard from, it being estimated that they will amount to between 750,000 to 1,000,000 bushels. The clique had to put up $358,800 to take in to-day's receipts, and be required to carry the deal to a successful issue to-morrow noon. The price is now at the highest point but must be something enormous, or the clique could not afford to keep prices up. A few shorts settled this morning, but more seem determined to stay out until the end. Prominent and reputable bears are of the opinion that to-day's operations left the bears out of pocket and that another day will make them squeal," but those traders more bullishly inclined took a very different and much more cheerful view of the situation, at least apparently.

October opened at 57c, sold down to 56 %c. advanced to 57%c, and closed at 57%c. November ranged at 46@46%c and closed at stroyed.

'If you want to know how the corner is com ing out, I can tell you; it is coming out swim-mingly and with a good profit," said one of them. "I'll tell you what; Do you suppose a speculathousand bushels of corn when he has already made more than that on several millions of bushels. It don't trouble him in the least. He has figured how much corn he has already paid for, how much more he will need to pay for between this and Wednesday noon, and would not be taking cash corn now at 80c unless he was recouping himself out of somebody. Because every commission man on the floor declares himself out of the deal is not proof that the shortage is all settled and that Weare is a speculative idiot. Commission men have be handled in the shortage is all settled and that Weare is a speculative idiot. Did Abe Poole McHenry's principals. Did Abe Poole think or talk this way a few years ago, when he himself tried to engineer a corner on lard for Jim Keene, and N. G. Miller and W. W. Williams, or three years ago when for Sid Kent and Fairbaugh and McGeoch he helped engineer a successful wheat corner. W. G. Pope has invelighed acquires the people who have the corner. corn, and was he not then laughing in his sleeve at the fellow whom he had short at 74c? Who is there indignant now who has not either successfully or unsuccessfully attempted some sort of proceeding themselves, Eh? The present corner has revived the old question of whether short sellers of produce have higher rights than long buyers. People who are not in the market, but who are interested in the argument only as they are in any discussion where the disputants are very much in earnest should remember that interested parties are speculators, all of them. On the one side are speculators who all of them. On the one side are speculators who have sold, expecting to manipulate prices down; and on the other, speculators who have bought, and who have succeeded in manipulating prices sp.
It can also be shown that all of those who are now thying to incite some sympathy for them-selves because they were caught short, and are serves because they were caught short, and are being squeezed, have, at one time or another heretofore, as longs and squeezers of the mar-ket, ridiculed the very argament they them-selves are now using. If disinterested people will think carefully they will see that it is hard to decide whether short sellers are, or are not, entitled to any sympathy. Is not a corner the legitimate and best cure for reckless overselling? Just as stimulated production, great speed in marketing produce, and an overwhelming markshalling of corn, or wheat or lard or hogs are the legitimate cure of a deliberate corner.

Mr. Blaine did all he could to have every Owing to the big run on the top of heavy and money to build up the country, but ing who should control the country. Now he is their great friend and asks them to support him. The general then gave his attention to the Mulligan letters, and showed that Mr. Blaine's correspondence showed his between the parties on the tariff, and de nounced the use of the term "free trade" as party on that question. Both parties believe in protection. The Republicans wish a tariff so high that burdensome taxation will produce a surplus of one hundred millions annually, thus taking from the people one hundred millions which should be left in their pockets. The Democrats wish to protect only to the extent of the necessities of the government honestly and faithfully adminis The general then traced up the political record of the two candidates, showing that the election of Cleveland was a necessity in order to wrest the government from the greedy hand of corruptionists and stock The general then went on to state that when the nominations were made the Republicans felt sure of every northern state, admitting that New York and Ohio were the only states in doubt. The doubtful states are now very numerous. New York, Ohio, Wisconsin, New Hampshire, Michigan, Iowa, Connecticut and New Jersey are now doubtful, with the chances in favor of Cleveland. This is a favorable circumstance for the Democrats, as the opposing party will have to divide their speakers and money to such an extent as to cripple their efforts. They seems to have lost strength. The sentiment | cannot, as in 1880, hurl all their money in one state and carry it by soap.
