RECEIVING ELECTION RETURNS.

The Incidents of the Day in Minneapolis -- George K. Shaw Gets a Whack on the Nose. The excitement over election has continued throughout the day. The streets have been filled with crowds all day long, greet crowds congreating about the Nicolett house at least one and one-half cent per bushel and Churchill's drug store where the bulle- over that delivered at the mills and its delivtins was displayed. The Republicans who had gone home early the night before were greeted the first thing with the GLOBE's extra. After a while the complexion of the began to come out of their boles and make themselves known, evidently believing that "what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," they turned the tables on the Democrats and repaid with interest the cruel treatment they had received the night before. About noon Washington avenue, in front of the Nicollet, was packed with people so that teams could hardly pass. The utmost en-thusiasm prevailed. Plug hats were smashed over their owner's ears, and were thrown high in the air. Many amusing scenes occurred, and the Democrats, Republicans, Butler, and even the strait laced St. John men seemed to catch the spirit of the fun and cheered the returns, without regard hardly, to the character of the news.

ONE INCIDENT Which has occasioned a good deal of comment was the treatment accorded Geo. K. Shaw editor of the Evening Journal who ventured into the crowd. He was seized, his hat smashed, clothes nearly pulled off from him, and was carried about by the crowd. It was all good natured, but it was understood his Republican brethren were taking that method of getting even for the bitter warfare which he nad waged against Gilfillan. A little Mr. Shaw, who evidently was not feeling very good natured, met a party of prominent Gilfillanites, including George Baden, who has been doing a good deal of work for the county committee Words passed between the two in language more forcible than elegant when Mr. Baden told Shaw that the fournal had done the "dirtiest work." K. replied, "you're a liar," accompanied by a profane remark. Hardly were the words out of his mouth before Baden's fist came in contact with his face, cutting his lip and disfiguring his countenance somewhat. Shaw's glasses were broken and fell to the ground. Friends interferred and tried to prevail upon the now thoroughly aroused editor to leave before he was utterly anihilated. Mr. Shaw, however, wasn't to be persuaded and he re fused to go until he got ready. The trouble was finally quieted, however, and no further violent demonstrations took place.

In the evening the crowds were tripled. The yelling continued, and while the news was certainly all the Republicans could ask for, still there was considerable doubt ex-pressed as to the authenticity of the dispatches and confidence was not very strong. A number of exuberantindividuals attentio by marching around with feathers in their hats, while a drum corps headed a sort of an impromptu Mulligan guards, and paraded the principal streets. Traveling on Foot Through the Old Bay State.

l am traveling through a small part of Massachusetts on foot, "taking it easy" from stay all night or not, but asked me into the town to town and village, and often starting out at morn with no idea where I may bring up at night. I am learning how little we may see of the real country while traveling by rail. The people of the state live on their country roads. The railroad generally runs criminal fleeing from justice. Suspicion was by everybody's back door, and often far out of in the atmosphere. The old family clock cight of that

Last week I visited in this manner Salem, Marblehead, Peabody, North Reading, Read-Woburn, Lexington and Concord. These places lie from ten to seventeen miles | Marblehead, and that I was so traveling to from Boston.

Msrblehead's single hotel being full from a theatre company's invasion, I found quarters at a boarding house. I lost that boarding house three times in six hours owing to Marblehead's crooked and confusing streets. It would disappear suddenly and after hunting vainly for it an hour I would find it again turning up at my elbow. Entering about 6 p. m. I enquired for the dining room. No people were about. I had been shown my room several hours before by a good looking landlady in curl papers. (N. B. There seemed here a general tendency to curl papers and pins in the afternoon. The Blue Earth County Election.

Returns have been received from all but two towns and the entire Republican county ticket is elected with the exception of county attorney, Pfau, Democratic, receiving a majority of about 500. of Blaine in a pleasant frame of mind. As saming as they have that either Beecher or foy was mistaken they will be disgusted to leare bow quietly Mr. Blaine took the im outation against his official integrity and what miserable failure he made in attempting to meet it. "I don't remember," he said, "that I ever had any transaction in that direction. "I don't think I had any bonds at that time. A pretty defense from a man openly charged with offering to sell his official action! could hardly have conveyed a stronger impression of guilt by direct confession than he does by this calm admission that it is a mere question of memory. He might as well have said—indeed, he does say in effect—"I have had so many transactions of this kind that really cannot recollect whether I tried to se Mr. Joy or not. I think not, though I do not remember having any bonds at that with murder should say without any heat indignation: "I think you must be mistaken I do not remember killing anybody at that time. My impression is that my revolver was at the gunsmith's, and if this impression is correct I couldn't have killed anybody."

The Independent Voter.

Once in four years you say who shall serve you as President. There is a contrast to this in the Clothing trade. Any day you may signify who shall serve you. Retail buyers are chronic Independents, and buy as they please. This is why they are so well served, especially at the "Plymouth." We are sure of nothing, unless we deserve it-and not always then. But these Independent buyers are generally wise-wise enough to know that their interests are protected at
