FLYING AT THE PENNANT.

Fifty-seven of the Sixty New York Counties Officially Reported.

And Cleveland's Plurality Remains As It Was, Over 1,200.

They May Squirm, They May Wiggle, They May Lie as They Will, but They Can't Wipe Out

The Count in New York City Incomplete and May Not be Finished Until Next Week.

Brooklyn, Where Wonderful Things Were Hoped for by Blaine, Reports "Officially" a Gain of Six for Cleveland.

The New York Tribune Sees the Inevitable and "Casts an Anchor to the Windward" by Giving Cleveland's Plurality as it Now Stands.

And Still the Wonder Fews, Why There Should be so Much Fuss When the Electoral Vote for Cleveland Stands at counties as far as ascertained by the official count gives Cleveland a plurality of 1,254 votes. In case of six counties, however, when the canvassers adjourned owing to some technicality, and where the pluralities may be changed, unofficial figures are given.

The count still going on. New York, Nov. 13.—At 2 p. m. all but twelve counties of the state have been reported. The result of the official canvass of those outside of New York show Blaine's gains aggregate twelve, Blaine's losses aggregate fourteen, and Cleveland gains of seven, and a net gain for Cleveland of nine.

Blaine 2,616, Cleveland 2,639, St. John 154, Butler 111.

Blaine 7,182, Cleveland 5,780, St. John 455, Butler 144.

that reduced Cleveland's majority in the city and made the election so close.

There is, of course, a great deal of speculation here about the man that will be put into Cleveland's cabinet, but as yet it is guess work.

Gov. Cleveland has the advantage of going into the presidential chair with no political debts to pay, and besides that he seems to be the kind of a man who will suit himself despite all opposition.

He has as yet given no signs as to whom he will choose as his advisers, and to the Globe correspondents, who to-day interviewed him on the subject, he said:

"I am incalculable on that subject and will make no answer."

It is the general opinion here, however, that McDonald, of Indiana, will be given a place, and also Bayard, if he wants it, about which some doubt is felt.

I shall give due credit to the horse shoe for what has already happened, and shall carefully preserve it in the hope that it may bring success to my efforts to give to the people good government."

An Estimate of Cleveland. [Special Telegram to the Globe.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Senator Gorman, of Maryland, is quoted as saying that the more he had seen of Cleveland during the progress of the campaign just closed the more he had found to respect and admire.

Cleveland would show himself in the presidential office fully equal to all of its requirements, and his policy and appointments would be of such a character as to disarm just criticism.

In reference to the apprehension said to be entertained among the subordinate government employes at Washington, he said it was like one starting at one's own shadow.

NATIONAL CATTLE GROWERS. The Convention at Chicago Yesterday.—The Northwesterners Present.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—About 200 representative stock men of the country met in convention at the Sherman house to-day to discuss contagious diseases of cattle in this country and to devise means to prevent their spread.

Among those present from the northwest were: R. C. Jordon, A. H. Bullis and J. M. McLean, Minnesota; A. C. Lake, J. M. Smith and Dow Clark, Dakota; C. Kohers, F. M. and J. H. Holt, H. Sullen and Wm. Ball, Montana; J. B. Grinnell, R. C. Clark and Judge Nourse, Iowa; A. T. Rabbitt, others from Wyoming.

After the appointment of various committees, the convention adjourned until afternoon, when J. B. Grinnell, of Iowa, presented the report of the committee appointed at the previous convention to go to Washington and secure needed legislation for the suppression of contagious diseases, particularly pleuro-pneumonia.
