CHICAGO.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—There were few noteworthy features on 'change to-day, and the feeling during most of the morning session was tame with a lower close on most leading articles except wheat. The latter improved about 1/8c on the morning board and the afternoon advanced quite sharply, making a total gain for the day of 3/8c on leading options. Corn broke badly for November, being at the close 1c lower than on yesterday, while year was only 1/8c off. 30s were 1/8c lower at the close, pork 30s at 23 1/2c lower, lard a shade lower and ribs 12 1/2c lower. The closing quotations in the afternoon were: December wheat 73c, November corn 39 1/2c, May oats 27 1/2c, January pork 81.85, January lard $6.72 1/2 (a decline of 1c), and January ribs $5.57 1/2.

Wheat was rather quiet and dull during the first hour, but under a fair demand, chiefly from short sellers, an improvement set in at the end of that time. Messrs. Lindblom, Hancock, et al. who are popularly supposed to control the bull market, were smiling faces as they observed Lester's brokers and those of a few other heavy weight houses splitting their throats biddage for wheat. Nat Jones made a few quiet purchases, probably to fill outside orders, while Stauffer, La Boff and others were ostentatious sellers. For the first time in two or three weeks, Mark Lane to-day reported 6 pence per quarter advance in California wheat just shipped, although the report for the whole market was inactive but steady. Liverpool was quiet as usual. Receipts here were a little more of winter and less of spring, with less at Milwaukee and Baltimore and more at Toledo. New York early was 1/8c higher and St. Louis 3/8c lower for wheat. Exports at New York brought 160,000 bushels yesterday at the decline, while freight engagements were made for 448,000 bushels of wheat and corn together at Philadelphia. The engagements included 28,000 bushels. Reports from Kansas City continue to be received, stating that the winter wheat crop is very badly damaged by Hessian fly. Advances from the winter wheat growing sections of Michigan and Illinois show a notable decrease in acreage. Speculators who want to realize immediately attach less weight to the conditions of the growing crop than to the movement of the one already harvested. The receipts are steadily increasing, and while speculators are banking on lower prices, capitalists and investors are slowly coming into the market and taking wheat with the intention of holding until it is higher. The main trading, however, was speculative and January was the favorite option. That month opened steady at 73 1/2c, sold up for 73 3/4c and at 1 o'clock stood at 73 1/2c. In the afternoon it firmed up with the other options and at the close was at 73 1/2c. November ranged at 71 3/4c to 72 1/4c, closing at the highest figure, and December ranged at 72 1/4c to 73c, closing at the outside. No. 2 spring in lots sold at 72 1/2c to 73c cash, and No. 3 at 66 1/2c to 67c. No. 3 winter sold at 73 1/4c to 73 1/2c and No. 3 at 59 1/2c to 60 1/4c. Hancock and Young were good buyers during the morning hours.

"Prices are so low everywhere," said Chas. D. Hamill, "that a steady improvement in any market is enough to make short sellers anxious here, but the general situation does not present any new features. I think the marked decrease in receipts at primary markets indicates an investment demand of a permanent character." "I can see nothing that promises a better return for December for a long time," said another operator, "and the forces on 'change and the facts outside are so evenly balanced that neither side is able to gain much advantage over the other. Yesterday December touched 73 1/2c but it could not be kept there, as the increased offerings brought it back to 72 1/2c before the day closed. On the other hand, December has been down twice since it was first put on the market, because so many buyers appeared. It would seem, looking at the whole matter from an independent standpoint, that the chances for an advance are now better than for any former decline." The Chandler-Brown Co. say: "The heavy average of receipts and consequent piling up of stocks has been the chief cause of the depression which has prevailed in this market. Our advice for some time past have quoted a falling off in deliveries of farmers to shippers. A heavy stock should be held in reserve, as we think it will be the cause of better prices." Corn opened rather quiet at a decline of 1/8c for year, but the other options kept up pretty well for a while. There was, however, a lack of speculative demand, weak holders unloaded, and these influences, coupled with a sharp drop in New York, caused a break of about 1 1/2c in November, which was freely offered. About 150,000 bushels were delivered on contracts in the afternoon, and there was a rally of 1/8c in prices. Prices in May were weak, but though the quotations were slightly lower than yesterday, the feeling was quite steady at the close. November opened at 40 1/2c, sold at 39 1/2c to 40 1/4c and closed at 39 1/2c. Year sold at 36 1/2c to 36 3/4c, closing at 36 1/2c. Kammerer was a buyer early, but sold later and Schwartz & Dupre were apparently bears.

Oats sympathized with the dullness in corn, and there was some selling by parties who have been rather heavy buyers lately. The tendency was downward and the close was steady at 25 1/2c for November, a decline of 1/8c, and 27 1/2c for May, a decline of 1/8c. Mr. Nat Jones and Geo. Baldwin, Jr., forming. A little later the provision pit, however, each other in the news boys were lifting up their voices in the alley and crying, "All about the board of trade party!" This information, coming from the news boys, was unauthorized as it was unconfirmed. Mr. Jones and Mr. Baldwin sold some pork and lard, but they are gutless as far as any panic is concerned. With the aid of two or three others they bought January pork all the way down from $11.02 1/2, where it opened 5c off, to $10.85, its lowest point. They then turned around and bought for a while, when Mr. Jones walked down to see what the wheat crowd was doing and Mr. Baldwin turned his attention to corn. No vast fortune was made or lost in the provision pit, and at the close things were as dull as usual, with the January pork weak at $10.85 and February 10c above it. November lard closed unchanged at $6.85 and January 5c off at $6.72 1/2, while January ribs tumbled 1/2c to $5.57 1/2 and stayed there, and February fell the same amount to $5.65.

At the stock yards business generally was fairly active. Arrivals of cattle were rather below the average for Friday and for the

CHICAGO FINANCIAL.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—General business at the banks continues quiet. Some days there is a little increase, but the improvement is not large enough or permanent enough to count for much. New York exchange opened at 50c/60c premium, with a good outside demand. Receipts and shipments of currency continue about equal in volume. Sterling exchange is higher at $4.82 1/2 to $4.86. Government bonds are 1/8c to 1/4c higher. The local bond and stock trade is a little better. Bank clearings were $9,984,000 against $7,193,000 yesterday.

NEW YORK.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The stock market opened with quite a number of stocks steady at the closing figures of yesterday, and others 1/8c to 1/4c per cent lower, the latter for Lackawanna. Illinois Central was off 1/8c, Burlington & Quincy 1/8c and Rock Island 1/8c higher. New York Central was in the lead and Lake Shore stood second for activity. During the first hour the market weakened under the heavy selling of Lake Shore. Union Pacific was down to 49 1/2, St. Paul to 75 1/2, Northwestern to 87 1/2, Western Union to 39 1/2, New York Central to 88 1/2, Lake Shore to 45, Lackawanna to 106 1/2, Erie second to 50 1/2, Pacific mail to 51 1/2, and West Shore bonds to 39 1/2. A general rally followed this early decline, which carried the market up 1/2c. There were rumors of trouble among trunk lines. The quarterly statement of the Lake Shore ending Sept. 30, is very unfavorable and it is currently believed that this road will pass its next dividend, inasmuch as such a course would strengthen its bond. The earnings of Central Pacific for October show an estimated decrease of $150,000. There is no reason whatever to expect a dividend on Jersey Central December 1. The short interest in the market has been largely eliminated within the past few days and this fact gave the bears more courage to operate. The bulls had little to say. Support was withdrawn from Union Pacific and Lackawanna to see what would happen, it was said, but more likely because there was no more shorts to buy. Gould was said to have gone into the Granger pool yesterday for the sake of influencing the rest of the market favorably, but the scheme did not work well. D. T. Morgan and his followers were reported to be selling and so was Gould, but the latter report was afterwards denied. Bear points were given out for St. Paul, and it was thought the stock would go to 70. Rock Island was supposed to be a good sale also. It was agreed that if the short crop of the past year in Iowa had lessened the same cause must also have decreased the income of the Rock Island. Considerable long stocks in Northwestern was marketed yesterday. President Adams, of the Union Pacific, says he anticipates no hostile legislation from congress this winter. Western Union was sold on reports that cable rates would be cut as soon as the Mackay-Bennett line opened for business. Treasurer Tomes, of the Rock Island, says this afternoon that the company has decided not to publish estimates of its earnings because of the comments over the difference between the estimated and actual figures.

Stanley and the Congo Country.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Henry M. Stanley today spoke on behalf of the United States before the committee of the Congo conference. His remarks were delivered with great clearness, cogency and force. He explained his views concerning the difference between the geographical and commercial basin of the Congo. There were conceptions by no means identical. If the powers could agree on the former, they would deprive the upper Congo of its natural and necessary outlet, which outlet should comprise all the affluents of the Congo, and also the basins of other great lakes and rivers. It would be absurd to accept the geographical basin of the Congo as the commercial basin, and the Congo impracticable as an exclusive trade route. Therefore, divergent channels must be made available.

The Territorial Officers Must Move.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] BISMARCK, Nov. 21.—Gov. Pierce received official notification a few days ago of the completion of the capitol building in compliance with the act of the last legislature, and in accordance with further provisions of said act the governor has issued his proclamation to all parties concerned to take notice that the bill provides that upon the governor's proclamation all territorial officers shall move forthwith to the new capitol. It is expected Secretary Teller and Treasurer McDay will move their records during the coming month. All the other territorial officers are now here.

STILLWATER NEWS.

THE GLOBE AT STILLWATER.

The arrivals of grain at our market are large, but the price is keeping very low.

Mr. A. M. Kiehle looked much pleased yesterday, a little daughter having arrived at his house. Mother and daughter are doing well.

There was only one arrival at the states prison yesterday, John Swanson from this county, who gets two years for the stealing of a horse.

Yesterday the work of opening sky lights at the high school was begun, thereby giving more light in Miss Dexter and Miss Blodgett rooms, both of whom will have a vacation at Stillwater.

Conductor Matt, of the St. Paul & Duluth road, resumed his duties yesterday, having concluded his vacation. Conductor Barstow, who had been running for Mott, resumed his regular train.

The school board has decided that the winter vacation shall extend from December 24, until January 12, thus giving several of the teachers an opportunity to visit the world's exposition at New Orleans.

At the municipal court yesterday morning there was a case of assault and battery, which cost the party $20 and costs. We learn that there is a warrant out for the same one for assault with a deadly weapon, and he has been dodging the police.

The suit of the Stillwater Base Ball association vs. James H. O'Brien, was decided by Judge Hathaway to-day in favor of the plaintiff, the holding being that the subscription to the stock was binding whether a demand for payment had been made or not. This will probably decide all the cases pending, and the defendants will be glad to get out of court.

Mr. J. S. Fogg, of Boston, was in the city yesterday. He is one of the committee appointed by the directors of the Northwestern Car company to endeavor to arrange with the creditors of the company so as to bring about a reorganization. He left last evening with Col. Bend for Boston, where the committee will interview the Massachusetts creditors.

W. W. Capron's horse made a bad runaway yesterday, not only smashing his light wagon to which he was attached, but knocking a wheel of Chas. Fenner's wagon. He only ran from in front of the St. Croix flouring mill to Wm. Mullen's wagon shop, the fright being occasioned by the cars. The running gear of the wagon was in all shapes, and the tire of the wheel broken.

The masquerade carnival at the rink last night was the finest affair of the kind that ever transpired in the city, and the place was literally jammed with people. Some of the costumes were rich and elegant, some grotesque and funny, and the scene, with a hundred costumed couples upon the dancing floor, was brilliant in the extreme. Quite a number of St. Paul people were present. The occasion was so much enjoyed that it will not be the last one of the kind for a large majority of the city.

Thursday night the barn of John Lequist was entered and a pair of harnesses stolen. Suspicion pointed to a half crazed vagrant old man, and Officer Reardon charged him with the abstraction. He owned up like a man, and said the property was at Sadder's barber shop. As such was not the case, he tapped his memory pot again and said the goods were at the Last Chance saloon, an easy thing to do in pawn for $4, and a bottle of brandy. The property was recovered. The Rip Van Winkle who purloined it will go into comfortable winter quarters, which he had the good fortune and perhaps the wit to acquire by the transaction.

Yesterday afternoon the Relief society held a meeting for the election of officers, when the following were elected: President, L. W. Eked; vice president, Harry Wheeler; secretary, Mrs. Thompson; treasurer, H. Foster. The state of the city was talked over and the prospects of the winter's work. The meeting adjourned to meet in two weeks from last Wednesday, the arrangements being that the meetings would be held each fortnight on Wednesday afternoons at 8 o'clock. After the close of the business meeting the committee of ladies met to make arrangements for the paper carnival on Thursday evening next, and to discuss the progress, and will have a full supply of articles of paper for sale that evening, which will no doubt be largely patronized. It is hoped that every lady in the city who can will make something for the relief society.

Yesterday afternoon there was a good amount of amusement on North Second street, opposite Mr. Shurnally's residence, when Charles Boo, in accordance with a bet with Mr. Shurnally, had to saw half a cord of wood on account of Blaine's defeat. About 2:30 o'clock Boo appeared on the ground dressed in a red flannel suit, with a shantyman's red cap on his head. He had white stockings and a pair of rubbers. On his back was a white piece of cotton on which was the legend: "Behold the reluctant but voluntary sacrifice, Charles Boo to Blaine's defeat." The wood was good dry oak, and the way Charlie rode the new saw through it, showed that he was not a novice. He used the corporation sledge. Shurnally was master of ceremonies, and when he gave the order for a halt, Charlie got a chance of wetting his throat. He also had to supply the beer, which was well patronized by the thrifty crowd. The band was in attendance and played lively airs from the balcony over the worker's head. There was a good deal of good natured chaff and all appeared to be in the humor of the situation, and Boo, although the perspiration was rolling off him, showed no signs of being tired. After the close of the business there were a number of speeches and a general good time. Mrs. Boo thought that Sheriff Holcombe should have sawed one half of the wood, but he could not see it in that light.

DEATH OF S. R. STIMSON.

One of Our Honored and Estimable Citizens Quietly Passes Away.

It is with the very greatest regret that we have to chronicle the death of Mr. S. R. Stimson, who has been general manager of the Northwestern Manufacturing and Car company since May 1, 1883, at his residence on North Fourth street, yesterday morning at 6:30. Mr. Stimson has been confined to his house by his last illness since September 21, the last time that he was at the office being September 20. During his long sickness he has suffered much, but he passed away quietly, and was conscious up to the last moment. His family was present at his death bed, and Messrs. Feebler and Emerson, of this city, and Mr. Bates, of Minneapolis, were also there. The funeral will take place at his residence on Sunday next at 11 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. Carroll officiating. The body will be taken by a special train to Minneapolis for interment. Mr. Stimson has done much for the interests of this city, and he will be missed by a legion of friends. He was a warm friend, and his loss will be felt by all who knew him. His sound judgment and business ability will be much missed by the Northwestern Manufacturing & Car company, of which he was president, and on Senator Sabin the loss will fall particularly heavy. The loss is particularly heavy on his family, as Mrs. Stimson is not in robust health, and the greater part of the burden will fall on the only daughter. The whole community sympathize with the bereaved.

In Mr. Stimson's death the city has lost one of its best business men, and the Northwestern Manufacturing and Car company a gentleman of experience in the work in which it is more directly engaged. On his

AN AFRICAN WRETCH.

A Negro, After Accomplishing a White Girl's Ruin, Forces Her to Marry Him.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] CLEVELAND, Nov. 21.—A very sensational case was commenced yesterday before Judge Barber by John Wilkinson, a rich and respected white citizen of Waterford, West Virginia. The suit grows out of the marriage in 1883 of the daughter of Wilkinson, a handsome girl, to John Ash, a colored coachman, for many years employed by the family. The father asks that the marriage be declared null and void, as the girl was induced to run away and marry Ash by threats. Her testimony before the court disclosed the following remarkable story. She said: "I am twenty-one years of age and know Ash since I was eleven years of age, he being a servant in my father's house. During the absence of my parents he used to amuse the children and me in particular by telling stories, playing games and romping. He was a familiar acquaintance, but I never now find, but did not think of it then. He used to take me on his lap and seemed very fond of me and the other children. As I grew older and my household duties grew heavier I was thrown into his presence more and more. When my mother undertook to advise and correct the children Ash would endeavor to undermine her authority and then would tell me when we were alone that my parents were too strict and that I had a hard time. About the first of September, 1883, he made a direct proposition to go away with him, which I silenced by threatening to tell my father. He prevailed upon me not to do so, and, fearing my father and brother would do him some harm, I kept quiet. Some time after this, when my parents and brother were all away from home, I had occasion to go to the cellar. I did not know Ash was there, but found that he was. He caught me as I was about to return and threw his arms about me. I screamed and pleaded and begged him to let me go, but he would not and threatened me. He threatened violence if I said anything to anybody about what had happened. About two weeks afterwards he again seized me as before with more threats. On a number of occasions afterward I soon discovered the consequences and the thought of it nearly drove me mad. The fear of him deterred me from telling the truth. He gave me medicine and began to use his influence to have me fly with him from home. I refused at first, but he insisted upon doing as he wished, and as a last resort I consented to go, not thinking that I would see much of him. I left home, pretending to be on my way to school, on the 18th of June, 1883. Before going far I determined to return, but Ash persuaded me to go on. At Wheeling when I got off the train I did not see anything of Ash and waited in the depot several hours. I believed I had

THE COURT.

[Before Judge McCluer.] Yesterday morning Judge McCluer delivered his charge to the jury in the case of Charles St. Clair for the assault on Adam Marty, at the time of the jail breaking. His charge was against the prisoner, and the law made an accessory a principal as in such a case. The jury got the case at 9:40 and did not return a verdict until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when they brought in a verdict of common assault. This was not a heavy sentence as the evidence or the law demanded, but it will be sufficient to hold him for some time to come.

The case of Thomas J. Yorks vs. Roger Mangan was dismissed, as the laws are such that the present books of the records of deeds could not be taken in evidence, not from any fault of the present incumbent. Mr. J. N. Castle made an excellent defense, Thompson & Manning for the plaintiff and J. N. Castle for the defendant.

The case of J. H. Hartford vs. Fayette Marsh, the case of Intervenor, was dismissed. Thompson & Manning for the plaintiff, Go-forth & Roberts for the intervenor and Fayette Marsh for the defendant.

It is doubtful if the defendant St. Clair, in the doubtful case of Samuel Judd's estate at Marine, will be tried this court.

Grand Lodge of Good Templars. The semi-annual session of the Good Templars of Minnesota was held in Mankato Knights of Honor hall, Thursday and Friday. About seventy-five delegates representing twenty lodges were present and the sessions were interesting and productive of much good to those in attendance. The following Grand Lodge officers were present: G. W. C. T. John M. Durnam, of Brooklyn Center; G. W. V. T. Secretary Mrs. A. B. Batcher, of Le Sueur; Mrs. M. A. Pennington, of Minneapolis; G. Deputy Marshal Mrs. Jennie Patterson, of Lu Verne; P. G. W. C. T., R. A. F. New, of Minneapolis.

The sessions during the day Thursday were devoted for the most part to routine business. In the evening the Third District lodge was organized, with delegates from twelve lodges in the district.

The following officers were chosen: W. C. T., G. W. Allyn, Eagle Lake; W. V. T., Miss J. A. Wheeler, Winnebago Agency; W. S., E. P. Cook, Mankato; W. F. S., A. C. Jacobs, Champion Mills; W. During the evening a series of resolutions defining Good Templar work were adopted, the only one creating discussion being the following, which was finally adopted by a vote of twenty-nine to one: "The order of Good Templars is not a political organization as the term political is generally understood. We constrain no man's political opinions. It is simply our brother, and we know him not as a Republican, Democrat or Greenbacker, but as our brother. He is alone responsible for his vote, and we have no right to interfere with him in the discharge of his duties as a citizen. Partisan political discussions should never be allowed or even countenanced in our lodge rooms, and if he persists in such a course, violates his obligation as a Good Templar, just as though he were to drink intoxicating liquors. But while we do not dictate to members as to which party they may support, we do say that no Good Templar can be consistent and vote for license or other candidates or party that would, if placed in power, perpetrate the traffic, and throw a shield of protection around the one who sells intoxicants."

Friday was devoted to lodge work, and among the exercises was an essay "What becomes of our suspended members?" by Miss Kate L. Pennington,
