

DAKOTA & MONTANA

Collected and Forwarded by Telegraph to the Daily Globe.

Fargo Special Telegrams January, 1 to the S Paul Globe.

North-western Notes.

A sixty-five foot well, in Blount township, in Dawson county, proves to be a gas well. It shows no sign of falling.

A movement has been started at Watertown to circulate petitions against the repeal of the tree claim act, to be sent to Washington.

As there is some quibbling at Washington over the population of Dakota, it is probable that the legislature will provide for taking the census.

W. A. Fridly, the treasurer of Kinderhook county, was married Dec. 30, in Ogle county, Ill., to Miss Lucy Corwin, a bright young lady, who has visited Dakota, and wants to make it her home.

Alexandria, in Dawson county, has lately shipped large lots of hogs, that averaged 400 lbs. That is regarded as a fair average for Dakota. The same section is also able to ship fine cattle to Chicago.

Some of the taxpayers object to having pianos made a part of the school furniture in Fargo, and music a regular study in the course. They think that should be left out at least until the country becomes older.

Pemina, on the Manitoba border, was the first county created in North Dakota, and was one of the best settled and most prosperous. Its journals, at Bathgate and Pemina, are nearly model local sheets.

The Charles Mix News narrates among its game locals, that a party out hunting saw a large prairie wolf run into a hole and spend half a day with dogs and digging for it, when it proved to be an innocent feline in search of a mouse.

Doland records: The newspapers are fond of saying that a Dakota man needs two wives—one to visit friends in the east, and the other to keep house at home. About this season of the year it strikes us that he needs them both at home.

A meeting of the clerks of court in that district will be held in Watertown, January 15, for the purpose of comparing notes in the matter of a uniform system of books and fees throughout the district and territory, if possible. As a matter of fact no two clerks in the district have books that are alike.

Lisbon had quite a local sensation over the alleged attempt of a number of prominent citizens, some of them married, to engage in the millinery business. There is a good deal of nervousness growing out of statements found in certain letters that fell into the wrong hands. It is expected there will be legal aspects to the situation.

Recently a man named Sabett, check payer of the Northern Pacific Elevator company, at Minto, was put off the train by John Wash, conductor, not having pass or ticket. He then had the conductor arrested for assault and battery, but failed to appear on trial, and the case was dismissed at cost of plaintiff. Public sympathy was entirely with the conductor.

A caucus of leading spirits on the Republican side in North Dakota was held at St. Paul Monday, it is supposed to lay out the work for the legislature. Among those present were Wash and LaMoure, of the legislature. Alex. M. Kenzie, Col. Hoff, Gov. Pierce's secretary, Col. Jewell, of the Tribune, Major Magione, the Illinois Aethiops of Justice Francis, and a number more representative men.

There is, according to the Brookings Press a secret society, or as secret as female organizations usually, for the purpose of compelling the wifeless men of the place to marry them. One inconvertible recently had a suit before Justice Gaston in which the operations of the club were made public. It is not creditable to the young men that such excellent domestic material should be neglected.

The annual financial statement of the treasurer of the city of Fargo makes a very creditable showing. The bonded indebtedness is but $142,000, which will be considerably reduced by the taxes of the coming year, and in view of the fine school houses, bridges, parks, streets, sewers, etc., all of a metropolitan character, the exhibit is encouraging. The bonded indebtedness in the city is probably not much below $100,000-900. Taxes are not heavy and the tendency is to get on to the more economical track of older communities.

Nothing has been heard in Dakota of the scheme reported in one of the St. Paul papers, for the territory to erect the standard of revolution and secession and hobnob with Manifesto. That story is like bad butter, designated for distant markets only. There may be a few cranks in the territory who would like to see an attempt to cut loose from the Washington republic, but there is no real secession in the disposition made by congress whatever it may be. There may be little by plays and some thundering in the index, but the citizens of Dakota are loyal and law abiding.

A prominent politician in the north wants a remark in the Globe that will name North Dakota is charged with having the rings and bad political manipulators generally, all the recent disturbances about county seats have seen in the history of South Dakota; that has been and never prevail in the north and the goose is to be elevated. It must be remarked that the outbreaks have been in the new regions of the center, below the seventy-sixth parallel, but are hardly more numerous than in any territory or state where similar questions are being settled. There is a more intelligent and older loving people than in Dakota.

The factions editor of the Abert at Jamestown, whose lack of reverence for sacred and grave affairs, has often been deplored by his friends, rudely trifles with the sensitive feelings of Hon. D. M. Kelleher in regard to his reported feat of rescuing his mother's testament from the Indians. The wicked "Ironhook" was reared in a pocket of Egypt in Illinois where a whisky flask was in his youth, some fifty years ago, always carried in the pocket nearest the heart and called a testament. He of course thinks Kelleher's bible was of that sort. He does injustice to a most devout and pious pioneer, not a numerous article among Dakotans and especially with politicians.

Prosperous Farmers. The Pierre Signal reports that in southeastern Dakota, parties who have recently been there say, that the farming element of the population of that section was never in better condition than it is to-day for living independently, respectably and comfortably. They have plenty to eat, drink and wear, and are less in debt than has been the case for several seasons, notwithstanding the low prices of many classes of produce. They have ceased paying nearly exclusive attention to wheat, and have almost unanimously gone into diversified operations. Everywhere you go you will see large herds of cattle, flocks of sheep, or carls full of hogs, and the granaries and bins contain a variety of products.

Waterfowl Notes. Among the items making up an unusually prosperous year at "Watertown the Courier" emanates: "Our railroad facilities have increased three fold, 112 miles of steel have been laid to connect us with the two great cities of the northwest, St. Paul and Minneapolis, from which we are now but a few hours ride. Our population, judging from school statistics and the voting population, has increased 30 per cent. in numbers. Always good in quality it has maintained its high standard. Our city has been beautified by the setting out of three miles of shade trees; by grading of the streets and the construction of excellent sidewalks; two large parks have been given to the city and ornamented with trees. The building operations have been many, beautiful and substantial. About eighty dwelling houses have been built besides many other buildings. Ten of these residences have cost from $3,000 to $4,000, six have cost from $2,000 to $3,000, and about twenty from $1,000 to $2,000. The aggregate building improvements have cost about $150,000. The whole increase in wealth, counting the cost of buildings, the advance in property, the building of the railroads in the county, and that from other sources, is at least a good half million."

The Exemption Lobby.

The Bathgate Sentinel appears to have information of this nature: The territorial legislature will convene on the 13th of January and be in session for sixty days, unless the members are killed off before. That it will be very exciting is evident by the interest now being taken in it. George R. Newell, of Minneapolis, will be there to represent the wholesalers and try and have the exemption laws so modified as to not allow the present exemption of $1,500. The railroads and elevator companies will be there in full force and try to prevent the passage of any laws injurious to them. They are afraid of the farmer element in the chambers.

He Wouldn't Resign.

The Brookings Press relates this incident of Judge J. E. Bennett, of Clark county, for the edification of Democrats who expect that Republican office holders in Dakota will resign when a Democratic administration comes in: Mr. Bennett was at one time supreme judge in Arkansas, and this year was the Dakota member of the national Republican convention. It is related that while Mr. Bennett was on the supreme bench at Little Rock, a company of armed desperadoes, who wished to get him off the bench, carried him into the bushes one night, and there demanded him to resign his position and leave the country, or pay the penalty with his life. Straightening up and looking his enemies squarely in the face he responded: "Well, gentlemen, I am fully at your mercy, but if I die to-night I die judge of the supreme court of Arkansas!" His would be assassin quailed before his noble reply, and sneaked away that their prisoner might go free.

Evil's Power.

The editor of the Alexandria Herald has recently visited his old home in the east and reports: Those who complain of hard times here ought to go back east for a few days. The writer heard more complaint of poverty and lack of money in the few days he was in the east last week than he has heard during the time he has lived in Dakota, put it all together. The fact is, in people in that part of the country don't begin to know what hard times are.

After O' day.

It does not matter whether ex-Gov. Ordway is in or out of the territory, there are some that will never feel quite easy until he is securely put under ground. The Alexandria Herald is disturbed and says: It is reported that the territory is not yet rid of good old man Ordway, but that he will return and seat among the people some politics during the session of the legislature. The great orator and organizer had better go slow. The cowboys along the upper Missouri are a terror to people of bad repute, just now.

Pierre's Wants.

The Pierre Signal is making a specialty of fighting the Bismarck and capital interests. It urges the theory that the location of the capital is yet unsettled, and that the legislature should adjourn to some point in South Dakota in furtherance of division. It intimates, however, that it can be pacified in this way: In the sixth legislative district there has not been a single legislative appropriation for a public institution of any kind. Pierre should have at least one public educational or territorial public institution, and now is time to locate it.

A STRANGE STORY.

A Female Artist Terrorized and Kept Prisoner by a Scoundrel.

A man named Adrien Eugene Altry was arrested yesterday at the Magasin du Louvre for the theft of a pair of woman's shoes. He stole them on Saturday, and yesterday had the audacity to take them back and demand to be reimbursed for the price that he pretended to have paid for them.

This incident led to a surprising discovery. Altry told the commissary of police that his name was Lemoyne, and that he lived in the Boulevard St. Michael. The name of Lemoyne belongs to a female artist who formerly occupied a social position. In some way Altry made her acquaintance and got her in his power. She is still young and has 10,000 francs which she inherited. She occupies a room in the Boulevard St. Michel, and at a rental of $3,000 francs. Altry kept her shut up at this place all day, and in the evening would bring her a morsel or two of bread.

When the Commissary of Police went to her apartment yesterday, and caused the door to be opened he found not a single bit of furniture remaining, except two miserable beds. A pale, thin, haggard woman, with hair in disorder and scarcely clothed, supported herself, by clinging to the door, "I am dying of hunger," she said. The magistrate sent for food and she ate it with relish. After retaining a little strength she related how Altry had exercised his tyranny over her. Whenever she went to collect the interest on her little fortune he accompanied her, and it passed into his hands. He then paid the rent and squandered the remainder. She was prevented by terror, she said, from making any complaint against him. The police inquiries revealed a singular piece of swindling on the part of Altry. In collusion with a coelette named Geroline, now in prison, and at whose expense he had lived for a number of months, Altry tricked the painter Corbet at dominions out of several hundred pictures. The victim refrained from fear of ridicule from causing the arrest and punishment of Altry.—[Paris News.

The Old Chemist of Napoleon III.

[Paris Letter to the London World.]

The Bonapartists are lamenting the death of Gen. Fleury, who was the personal friend and companion of the pleasures of Napoleon III. The General died last week of gout at the age of sixty-nine, after a brilliant career as a soldier and a high court official in the masquerade of the Second Empire. Fleury had many of the qualities of Morny: above all, a talent of being decorative and showy. His whole life was a manifestation of this. From the French point of view, when he attained his majority the first thing he did was to spend his patrimony at Paris as a fast young man about town; then he entered the army, fought bravely in Algeria, was wounded, decorated and promoted from grade to grade. When Napoleon III. was amusing himself in London, he met Fleury, who became the companion of his pleasures, and subsequently played an important role in the coup d'etat. During the Empire he achieved all the honors he could desire, and the revolution of 1870-71 found him a division general, a senator and ambassador at St. Petersburg, where he astonished the Russians by the splendor of his equipage. The General remained up to the last the elegant gentleman he had been in the days of his glory. He was one of the best known men in Paris. A charming talker, a most distinguished looking man, and a man of very agreeable looks. Gen. Fleury leaves a mass of memoirs, which, in spite of the reserves, which he has made, form the private history of the president of the Empire, written by the man who was most continuously and intimately connected with it.

Lonely Johnson's Coat.

[New Orleans Times.]

A wedding coat made by Andrew Johnson will be shown in the Tennessee exhibit at the World's Exposition. The coat was made in Johnson's little tailor shop at Greenville, Tenn., in 1838, or 1839, for Mr. H. T. Price, of that town. The garment is made of the best navy blue cloth, cut in the old fashioned "claw hammer" style. The collar and lapels are very broad, and there are five large buttons on each side. When the coat was made there were twelve large brass buttons, five on each side and two behind besides the small ones on the cuffs of the sleeves. All the buttons are now missing except two on the right breast. With the exception of the loss of the buttons the coat is in a good state of preservation. None of the seams are ever ripped, and there is not a hole worn in the cloth.

SOUTHERN MINNESOTA

Gleanings of News and Items of Material Interest.

A Daily Globe Department at Mankato Devoted to Developing and Advancing the Southern Portion of the State.

The office of the Southern Minnesota Department of The Globe is in charge of Mr. E. F. Barrett, with headquarters at Mankato, the business and editorial rooms being on the second floor of the First national bank building formerly occupied by the telephone exchange. Personal calls or communication addressed to Mr. Barrett on matters pertaining to this department will receive prompt attention.

Special Reports from the Globe Mankato office January 1.

Mankato Dots. Business suffers from the cold weather. Nothing in the municipal court yesterday. Pure wines and liquors for family use at D. Althof & Co.

The old year went out booming with the mercury dropping. In places where the snow has not drifted it is about sixteen inches deep.

London punch for sale at D. Althof & Co., wholesale liquor dealers.

Geo. B. Kinsley, Esq., of Blue Earth City, has been in Mankato several days snowed in.

Don't hitch your horses to a lamp post. It is against the ordinance and you are liable to a fine if you do.

Dressed pork is bringing $4.70 in the market and large quantities of it came in in the early part of the week.

The funeral services on the remains of Mr. F. B. Hitchcock were held Wednesday afternoon at his late residence in West Mankato.

For the best breed use Hubbard & Co's Superior fowls. It has few equals and no superior.

On one day of this week about 100,000 pounds of pork was brought into this city and sold. At the rate of $4.70 per hundred amounts to a neat little sum to go out of Mankato in one day.

The sixth annual fair of Superior Hose company No. 2, at the City hall on Wednesday evening, was well attended considering the inclemency of the weather. The company netted about $100 from the ball.

The Francis divorce case has been on trial before Judge Sverdrup in the district court for several days. The grounds of the petitioner are "cruel and inhuman treatment" on the part of the husband.

Mr. O. J. Graham, formerly of St. Paul, will hereafter have charge of the District telegraph office in this city. Mr. Graham is an old hand at the district telegraph business having been engaged in a similar business in St. Paul.

An enjoyable event will be a grand masquerade on rollers at the Mankato rink Saturday evening, January 3. This masquerade will be the first of the season and will no doubt be well attended by the young who seek amusement.

Owing to the snow fall on Tuesday evening the trains on Wednesday and Thursday were all delayed to a certain extent. The Chicago & Northwestern was in the best condition of any of the roads. The Milwaukee was considerably off, and the Omaha line west of this city was all broke up and the trains from St. Paul were somewhat late.

MASONIC MATTERS.

The veteran, Robert Morris, will make his home in New York this winter.

The masonic fraternity of Norristown, Pa., have organized a masonic reading room association.

Bro. Jacob H. Medlar has recently been re-elected Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Maryland for the twenty-second term.

It is currently reported that an effort is being made by the masons of England to get up a masonic party for the purpose of making a pilgrimage to America.

A reception and banquet has been tendered Monroe commandery, Rochester, by De Witt Clinton commandery, stationed at Brooklyn, E. D., to be given Tuesday, Jan. 27. This will add to the interest of the forthcoming pilgrimage to the metropolis as it occurs the day following the grand display to be given in Madison Square garden by the Monroe drill corps, as the special guests of Ivanhoe commandery of New York City.

The Scottish Rite Katigons Templar and Master Masons association of Dayton, Ohio, report the list of assurance as follows: For $5,000 certificate, $15.00; for $3,000, $10.00; for $5,000, $20.00; for $7,000, $30.40; total membership, $34. Brothers desiring to become members, please address the agent 46 Pine street.

The New York consistory held a lodge of honor at the Academy of Music December 29th. This lodge comprises forty-one counties around New York city. Since the last sorrow lodge, given about ten years ago, eighty members have died, and this coming representation of the impressive funeral ritual will be to their memory. General Hobart West has charge of the exercises in connection with the committee of 100 members. A band of fifty musicians, a chorus of forty vocalists, a quartette, also twenty young girls, will take part in addition to the regular officers of the consistory.

A New Washington Beauty.

[Letter to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

There is a new beauty in society this season, one whom all are raving. She comes from the land of Mrs. Langtry, and is Mrs. Horace Helgar, wife of the secretary of the British Legation. She is a blonde of the purest and fairest Saxon type. She is a young woman, tall, slender and graceful, and the pink and white of her perfect complexion is as delicate as an infant's. She has a pretty mouth, dazzling teeth, and an aristocratic little nose, white with her blue eyes, good a little fine, crinkly hair, as bright as spun gold. With her perfect skin she can wear pearls by daylight, stand any kind of a cross light or reflection, and her favorite gray-blue, which not only enhances her delicate coloring, but gives her the complexion of a diamond from the start, and when the season is in full sweep and the beauty is seen in her jewels and ball toilets, the city will be singing with the praises of the young Englishwoman. Mr. and Mrs. Helgar have been given many dinners and entertainments, and one pretty party soon after their arrival by the assistant secretary of state and Mrs. John Davis. Mrs. Davis is the most brilliant of the three daughters of the Frelinghuysen family, and has eyes and hair as dark as a Spanish woman. The contrast between her and Mrs. Helgar is most striking, and as they are often together, each adds to the face of the other's charms.

Berlin Sensation.

[All Mail Gazette.]

The inhabitants of Berlin are proud of describing the capital of the German Empire as "the City of Intelligence." This appellation is, no doubt, well deserved, but even in that centre of enlightenment each recurring Christmas shows that countless legends and superstitions hold their ground. For instance, no clothes-lines are allowed to be seen in the house between Christmas and New Year, for if they are not all carefully taken down it is believed by all good Berliners that a dreadful accident will happen. On the supper table on Christmas Eve there must be a carp, which brings fortune, and if the scales of the fish are carried about in the purse it will never be empty during the coming year. All dreams between Christmas and New Year become true, and Mrs. H. J. is an illustration of the gift of prophecy. But we wonder how many Berliners, intelligent or otherwise, really believe these interesting relics of a pre-rationalistic age.

Master (to man servant, acting in the capacity of groom and gardener, and who has instructions to exercise riding horse regularly)—John have you been exercising Spiritually regularly this week? He seemed particularly fresh to-day. John—Well, yes, sir, the fact is, when the weather's fine I dine one time to go out, and if it's wet there's nae pleasure in riding.—London Punch.
