The Brooklyn Horror.

BROOKLYN, May 6.—The work of digging for the bodies of the victims of yesterday's fire was commenced this morning.

The extreme heat yesterday prevented any systematic search. The ruins were surrounded by thousands of people, some merely curious, while others had a sad interest in watching the work in the debris.

The firemen who worked down among the debris in the interior of the buildings said they could smell the sickening odor of burning human flesh, and in fact, when the wind blew in that direction, the crowd standing on State street could distinctly detect the same horrible smell.

The ten tenements houses on Atlantic avenue that had their rear burned out were still unoccupied and in charge of policemen. The occupants sheltered themselves as best they could, kind neighbors having taken most of them in.

At 3:30 there were four bodies found and at 5 o'clock the workmen cut out two more. This made nine discovered during the day. All were horribly burned.

Maxwell Arrested.

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—Chief of Police Harigan received a cablegram from Mr. Gamble, the consul at Auckland, New Zealand, today, saying: "Maxwell was arrested yesterday and will give trouble if he can. Send an officer with a requisition and a sworn deposition by the fastest steamer. Advise state department and cable when the officer sails."

Extradition papers were immediately prepared for W. H. Lemox Maxwell, the Southern hotel murderer. No agent for the state has been appointed to go for Maxwell, there being some doubts as to the manner of being appointed. There is no need of hurry, however, as the officer who goes can't leave San Francisco before June 5, when the next Auckland steamer sails.

Caught in a Trap and Surrounded by Indians, the Storm of Lead was Terrible.

But Effective Work by the Battery Drove the Red Skins From Their Cover.

Great Bravery Displayed by the Men—Revised List of the Killed and Wounded.

The Recent Battle.

BATTLEFORD, May 9.—Col. Otter with 320 troops started to Poundmaker's reserve Friday afternoon. They drove all night, and at 5:10 Saturday morning began a severe engagement with the Indians. Eight of our men were killed and thirteen wounded. The attack was begun by the Indians suddenly, and it looked as if a trap had been set for us, into which we ran. The enemy was strong, estimated at 600, and fought fiercely from cover, while we were comparatively open to the fire, fighting from the brow of the hill over a coulee. Five minutes after the first shot was fired we appeared to be completely surrounded. Fifty men were sent back to clear the rear. We had just passed through a deep gully, thickly wooded, with a swift stream running through on one side. The men sent back made a brave dash and accomplished their object, thus lessening the odds. The fighting, which was all skirmishing, was over a large and uneven stretch of country, and our men were working at a great disadvantage, but they stuck to it like heroes, and with in their front almost every direction, never finched for an instant. Every corps continued steadily on the aggressive, and by 10 o'clock the enemy was almost silenced. They resumed again shortly and the fighting was again heavy. The artillery, consisting of two seven-pounders and a Gatling gun, did good work, repeatedly driving the enemy from their cover. At 11 o'clock the enemy was again almost silenced. Col. Otter had already given orders to withdraw from the position of such disadvantage, and the Indians, observing this, endeavored to cut off the retreat of the men. Our troops fought their way out, inch by inch, the front always to the enemy. No praise is sufficient to describe the bravery of our officers and men. Every one showed himself a hero. Col. Otter, who was in every part of the field, and his orders were cool and deliberate, as if it were a sham battle. The men were badly used up before the withdrawal began. Our force comprised seventy-five mounted police and scouts, and 200 foot guards, men of the Toronto infantry school, a few of the Queen's Own rifles, and the Battleford rifles. It is thought that from thirty to sixty of the enemy were killed. The column returned to Battleford Saturday night. Following is the revised list of the killed:

ARTHUR BOBBS, private, Battleford rifles.

JOHN ROGERS, private, Governor's Foot guard, shot in the head.

PRIVATE OSKOD, Infantry School corps.

BUGLER FALKS, Northwest mounted police.

CORPORAL LAURIE, Northwest mounted police.

CORPORAL R. B. SLEIGHT, Northwest mounted police.

PRIVATE TRICK BURKE, Northwest mounted police.

TEAMSTER WINDER of Regina.

THOSE WOUNDED WERE:

BUGLER ALBERT, Battleford rifles, shot in the neck.

LIEUTENANT PELLITIERE, B battery, shot in the thigh.

SERGEANT GAFFNEY, B battery, shot in the arm.

CORPORAL MORTON, B battery, shot in the arm.

PRIVATE REYNOLDS, B battery, shot in the arm.

SERGEANT WINTERS, Governor General's footguard, shot in the face.

PRIVATE MAJOR SPAHELE, Governor General's footguard, shot in the arm.

SERGEANT COOPER, Northwest mounted police, shot in the shoulder.

PRIVATE LOYD, Northwest mounted police, shot in the shoulder.

PRIVATE VARY, Northwest mounted police, shot in the thigh.

PRIVATE GEORGE WATTS, Northwest mounted police, shot in the thigh.

Private Osogod's body was not found, but he is likely dead. The wounded were brought here and all are doing well.

Excitement in the Commons.

OTTAWA, May 6.—There was intense excitement in the house last night when the intelligence of Col. Otter's battle with the Indians was made known. The debate on the franchise bill was in progress, but owing to the excitement the speaker was found impossible to proceed with business and Sir Hector Langevin moved an adjournment, which was carried.

They Both Agree.

LONDON, May 6.—The progress of negotiations between Earl Granville and M. De Staal tends to a simple declaration by Russia that she is ready to submit to arbitration the falling of concord in the interruption of the convention of March 17.

Lord Churchill, addressing a Conservative meeting to-night, protested against the commission on frontier delimitation removal to London to be dealt with by imbeciles of foreign offices. "Russia," he said, "had always objected to the presence of Gen. Sir Peter Lumsden, and now the government had gratified Russia by recalling Gen. Lumsden. It was time for us to rise to an endeavor to bring about a change in advisers of the crown by refusing supplies.

The Times this morning complains of the reticence and ambiguity of the statements of the government in regard to the Afghan question. It severely criticizes the action of the government in recalling Sir Peter Lumsden, as the frontier question will be settled by his inability to agree with Russia as concerned. The Standard in an editorial says the recall of Sir Peter Lumsden completes the picture of English humility.

VERY UNEASY.

The recall of Sir Peter Lumsden has created a general feeling of uneasiness, and it is expected to have an adverse influence upon the patriotism of the natives of India, who will consider it a further concession to Russia. The Standard says: "We must count it a piece of good luck if the whole commission is not recalled.
