How Western Congressmen Live and What it Costs Them--Homes of Rich Senators.

Correspondence of the Globe.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The society people left here, and they are very few, are amusing themselves with short trips down the Potomac, short silent rides through the country surrounding Washington, a discussion of the watering place gossip which reaches them through the medium of the daily and society papers, and preparations for the coming social season. About all that is being done in this line is in regard to the homes of the people of prominence. Every few days you will see some statesman come to town, a part of his business on the trip being to secure quarters for the coming winter. The hotels feel their business prospect already brightening. A very large proportion of the members of the house board during the terms of their stay. On the contrary, a large proportion of the senators keep house. The reason for this is apparent; the term of the senator is for six years, that of the representative but two years. Look over the list of the members of the lower house of congress and you will find that almost half of them board at hotels. The congressional directory, which gives the residence of all senators and representatives shows, nearly 150 members of the house as located at hotels, while of the senate but sixteen live at hotels, most of them having private residences of their own. So your average hotelkeeper smiles upon your average congressman when he comes to Washington at this season of the year. For the average congressman when he asks for board at a hotel is expected to give up about all of his salary during the time he is located there. For such accommodations as a member of congress with a wife, and, perhaps,

A MARRIAGEABLE DAUGHTER,

or two or three children must have at a hotel there must be paid from $200 to $400 a month. If his wife has society ambitions she must have a parlor connected with her rooms, and must have a large parlor on her reception days. And all these things cost in Washington, especially if it is suspected that the member or senator has a pretty long purse. Of course it is almost impossible, too, to get accommodations of a satisfactory nature at private houses, and the result is that people who want to live in good style or entertain are forced to keep house or live at hotels. So it happens that most of the senators, who are assured of six years here when once elected, find it cheaper and more satisfactory to keep house, while on the other hand the members, who are never sure of anything above two years, find the hotels their only refuge. Members from the extreme West especially affect hotels. Take them as a lot, especially those affecting great wealth, and you will find them almost invariably at hotels. Bowen of Colorado, Fair of Nevada, Cullom of Illinois, Jones of Nevada, Manderson of Nebraska, Adams of Illinois, Buckoer of Missouri, Cannon of Illinois, Cassidy of Nevada, Culberson of Texas, Dunham of Illinois, Rankin of Wisconsin, Reagan of Texas, Tuily of California, Turner of Kentucky, Valentine of Nebraska, and many others who could be mentioned, representing the West, live at hotels. Among the senators some have very handsome homes. Senator Edmunds is having a new and handsome residence built for him in a fashionable quarter. Senator Sherman has a handsome place on K street. Senator Cockrell had last season on Nineteenth street for his large family. Senator Jackson has a pretty home on Vermont avenue, in the most desirable location. Don Cameron, as everybody knows, had until recently one of the finest residences in the city. Senator Logan will have, when he gets his new house, a very fine hole. Senator Palmer has just built a very costly residence on K street, in the ultra-fashionable section. Senator Sawyer has a fine place on I street. Van Wyck has a fine house of his own.

A VERY PRETTY HOME

The tricycle fever still rages among the people who lay claim to social prominence here. Washington is the paradise of the wheel, whether bicycle or tricycle, and the latter is daily becoming more popular. The Washington Tricycle club now has a large membership, and among them some people of a good deal of prominence. It has its headquarters at Fenton hall and a membership of about forty. The club makes regular runs twice a week, and the hall is open in the afternoon for the exclusive use of ladies. The officers of the club are: Gen. W. H. Brown, president; H. H. Doubleday, vice president; Mr. Andrew Johnson, secretary and treasurer; Mr. W. C. Seribner, captain; Mr. S. J. Hazelton, lieutenant. The club has been organized since July, 1884. Some of its members are: Mrs. W. H. Browne, Mrs. Frances Doubleday, Mrs. L. H. Schneider, Mrs. A. B. Frye, Mrs. S. W. Willard, Mrs. W. C. Seribner, Miss Paggie Elderston, Miss Maude Watson, Miss Ethel Dinsmore, Capt. M. T. Anderson, Mr. A. A. Adee, Rev. L. H. Schneider, Rev. L. H. York, Dr. E. S. Jones, Dr. James V. Calver, Dr. H. M. Bennett, Maj. H. M. Pollard, Mr. G. W. Watson and Mr. A. F. Dinsmore. A number of ladies who have relatives in the Capital Bicycle club have learned to in order to accompany them in their runs. A number of well-known physicians use the tricycle in making professional calls, using it as a relay for the horses. Some of them are Tabor Johnson, John Walter, B. B. Adams, Robert Reyburn, Sr., C. F. Goodell, H. M. Cutts and Dr. Davis. Other independent riders are Mr. and Mrs. Dennison and Profs. Fay and Chickering of Kendell Green. Mr. Will R. Pitman, winner of the tricycle prize in the races of the Boston club, rides a "Columbia." Mr. G. R. Alden, the husband of "Pansy," rides a tricycle over the uncertain roads at Chautauqua during the season. Mrs. Joshua Reynolds of Stockport, N. Y., traveled an average of forty-five miles a day in three days over the ordinary country roads on this vehicle. The first tricycle owned by a woman in the district was that used by Mrs. B. A. Lockwood, purchased in 1881. For some years tricycling as an exercise for women made very little progress here, but now the tide has turned and wheelmen, running through the quiet streets at twilight, meet ladies upon tricycles in groups and in pairs, accompanied by gentlemen at every turn. A lady, whose name has been prominently used in connection with her proficiency on the tricycle, says she has been incalculably benefited by the exercise, and she believes her life has been extended ten years by its benefits. The matter of dress for lady tricyclists is of little importance, in that no special costume is necessary. Each rider will soon adopt a dress for her own comfort and individual convenience. English women and those of Germany wear a costume something like that worn for horseback riding. They substitute knickerbockers for multitudinous skirts, wearing of cloth or flannel suiting, which forms the dress proper. This is not the Lady Haliburton skirt by any means, but, save in length, the same dress worn in our schools for horseback riding in New York and Boston. It preserves all the appearance and graceful outline of ordinary dress. The lady tricycle riders of Boston, while they have organized no clubs, have adopted some rules as to costumes, which must be of some neutral tint or shade, with hat, gloves and dress of the same. The jacket and sleeves are tight fitting, and the skirt is the ordinary walking dress length, made six inches longer behind, because sitting in the saddle will gather up the back breadth and make the skirt appear even all around. The front and back breadths should be plainly and scantily gathered to the belt, but the sides should be plaited into box plaits, which open at the foot like a fan. With a skirt made like this not any more of the foot is shown in tricycling than in walking. Full skirts should be restricted by wearing thick, close-fitting underclothes, and the jockey hat is considered the most becoming to the tricycle lady riders.

A social event of some interest this week was the marriage of Mr. J. C. Stoddard assistant disbursing officer of the interior department, to Miss Lucy Wilson, daughter of a well-known and honored citizen of Washington. The marriage, which was a quiet one, occurred at the home of the bride's father on Wednesday in the presence of a few friends of the families.

THIS YEAR'S ACREAGE.

Comparative Tables Showing the Acreage of the Crops.

Increase Over Last Year in Nearly Every Class--Last Year's Yield.

Commissioner of Statistics Nordin has completed his comparative tables of the wheat, corn, oats, barley and flax seed crops for 1884 and the acreage for 1885. The acreage for wheat shows a slight increase over last year, being 3,181,671 against 3,109,874 acres, a gain of 71,797 acres. The acreage devoted to oats is 5,364 greater than last year; corn, 89,943; barley, 9,355; flaxseed, 12,733, the latter being nearly 100 per cent. increase. The increased acreage is confined to no one section of the state, but there have been small additions in most counties, though a few have fallen off. Following are the figures by counties:

Mistaken Luxuries.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Mr. John Fairman, who with his family recently came to Chicago from Elmira, N. Y., died yesterday at his residence in Woodlawn Park, from the effect of eating toadstools, which were supposed to be mushrooms. Mrs. Fairman, who also ate of the toad stools, is seriously ill, but will probably recover. Mr. Fairman's father was at one time the proprietor of the Elmira Gazette. It is learned that some seven or eight persons living in Hyde Park are ill in a dangerous condition from the same cause, and it is likely that half of them will die.

Old men love the past, young men love the future, but if you want to tickle a girl's fancy give her a present.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE CITY'S INTERESTS.

How They Are Carefully Watched and Vigilantly Guarded By the Chamber of Commerce.

Sketch of the History of the Body From Its Birth More Than Thirty Years Ago.

Some of the Notable Ends It Has Accomplished for the Good of the City.

The moving of the St. Paul chamber of commerce from the old rooms on the corner of Third and Robert streets to the magnificent new building diagonally opposite the Hotel Ryan makes timely a short review of the history and object of this institution which has so signally aided the progress of St. Paul. It is a matter of universal comment to the rest of the world how coherent St. Paul business is, how closely it hangs together. It is recognized that the business prosperity and commercial supremacy of the city are secured and strengthened by vigilance—that in the prosperity of any one branch of business the weal of all is concerned, consequently the business of St. Paul is conducted on the family principle, the members sympathizing in each other's, pain and welfare, and by united effort striving for each other's well being. The organizations through which these ends are effected are two: The chamber of commerce and the Jobbers' union. Of these the former is by far the more comprehensive in its purposes and ends, and is the body in which have been originated a great many of the great enterprises which have placed the city on the commanding eminence it now occupies among the cities of the country.

THE FIRST MOVE

towards an organization which seventeen years afterwards resulted in what is now known as the St. Paul chamber of commerce was made Nov. 28, 1854, and the next morning, Nov. 29, the following notice was published, calling a meeting to be held to organize a board of trade:

We, the undersigned merchants of St. Paul, seeing the necessity of making some organization by which to relieve ourselves, as well as the mechanic, the farmer and laboring man from the monetary and other difficulties under which we now labor, have concluded to hold a meeting for that object on Wednesday evening next, at 7 o'clock, at Mazourka hall.

Henry E. Bizel, R. Gallaway, D. Day. B. Presley, B. Weide, William Spencer, C. Wooldridge, L. C. Dunn, Jeremiah Smith, L. B. Wait & Co., Chamblin & Morgan, D. Michaud, Winne & Cooley, Cathcart & Co., N. E. Tyson, Marshall & Co., W. S. Combs, Bond & Kellogg, Markley & Kern, L. & C. H. Mix, J. L. Farwell & Co., Culver & Farrington, Culver & Fonseca, Edward Heenan, J. H. Byers, C. E. Mayo & Co., Louis Krieger, F. E. Collins, Stees & Hunt, G. G. Griswold, Wood & Morse, E. Howitz & Co., McClouds & Walker, Abram Elfelt, J. Fullerton, Ritchie & Co., Marshall & Co., A. F. Spoffard, P. T. Bradley, Lewis Hyneman, Charles D. Elfelt, J. Frost.

Thus, over thirty years ago, was the firs step taken to form an organization which has now taken the name of the St. Paul chamber of commerce. Of those fifty-one men who signed this call most are dead, and others have moved away, leaving but seven or eight now in the city, where they took such an important step more than a quarter of a century ago. This initiatory step was, in due time, followed by the completion of the organization, W. R. Marshall being chosen president and S. W. Walker secretary. At that time, and long before, the people of the territory had been and were then suffering grievously by reason of having no mail service. One of the first matters taken up by the new board was that of endeavoring to secure mail service. The board prepared and forwarded to Hon. James Campbell, postmaster general, a memorial, in which it was set forth that Minnesota was isolated, sparsely settled, and that the people here had no telegraphic communication with the states, and were wholly dependent on the mails for intelligence, and "that the commercial, political and social wants of our territory demand, in strict justice from the government, at least a tri-weekly mail." The memorial further stated "that the proprietors on the stage line between this city and Dubuque are performing with their four-horse post-coaches a regular triweekly service, sometimes oftener than triweekly, and could therefore perform the additional mail service at a less proportional rate than the weekly. We therefore earnestly pray you to order and arrange for a tri-weekly mail."
