STILLWATER NEWS.

The Council Considers the Subject of New Railroads.

The Price of Blackberries—Other Local Intelligence.

The Council.

The common council met last night and granted a license to White & Healey, Surveyor Shepard had been deputed to run lines and see if there were any more feasible routes for railroads entering Stillwater than the ones now in use.

His profiles showed that any first-class road, such as the St. Paul, Marie & Atlantic, proposing to build from Minneapolis or St. Paul would enter without running heavy traffic through lower Stillwater, and further that Stillwater is accessible to any road to enter or pass through. He also showed how the roads now entering, could save expense and grading. The report was accepted. Ald. John N. Nelson of the Third ward resigned on account of business. The resignation was accepted and an election of his successor ordered Aug. 25.

The election will be held by John Kregar, John Smith and John Goodrich; the clerks, Frank Berry and Charles Kilgore. After an executive session the council adjourned until Thursday evening.

About fifteen couples were present, all of whom were very well pleased with the party. They leave to-morrow for Minneapolis to make their future home; hence the party by some of their many warm friends.

One of the highest-priced and hardest things to find for the table is blackberries. They are exceedingly scarce and high, selling for 25 cents per box, or 15 cents per crate wholesale. As yet no Minnesota berries have appeared. Usually they come much earlier than this, but this year there will be few if any. The crop is said to be an entire failure.

A new time card has gone into effect on the St. Paul & Duluth road. Trains leaving at 10:05 and 11:50 and 1:30 (the latter Sunday only), now leave at 10:10 a. m. and 11:45 a. m. and 5:25 p. m. Trains heretofore arriving at 11:20 a. m. and 5:05 and 8:10 p. m. now arrive at 11:30 a. m. and 5:20 and 8:15 p. m.

Chicago's New Opera House.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—A new theater of the artist order was thrown open to the amusement public to-night, in the completion of the Chicago opera house. The attraction was "Hamlet," with Thomas W. Keene in the leading role, supported by his own company. The new theater is a long, narrow building, and the audience was so thoroughly representative of the culture and fashion of the city. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 2,350, and the general effect of its decorations and furniture is very pleasing. The latter is rich and substantial, and several novelties in the way of decoration have excited some comment. One of these is a long relief over the proscenium arch, 45 feet long, containing several figures 9 feet high, the pieces representing "Apollo and the Muse," another novel feature is the dome in the center formed of hollow hemispheres of stained glass, through which 200 incandescent electric lamps shone. The walls of the building being entirely of masonry and iron, with an interior frame work of iron, iron-lath and partition walls wholly of tile and cement, and the heating apparatus being outside of the theater proper, the house is considered practically fire-proof. The lessee of the theater is John W. Norton, the St. Louis theatrical manager; the local manager and director is David Herderson, a well-known newspaper man of this city.
