EDUCATIONAL MATTERS.

The Board of Education and Our Public Schools.

At yesterday's meeting of the board of education the building committee reported disbursements since the last statement as follows: Repairs, $3,188.50; balances on hand at last statement, $890; appropriated by the board, $2,000; balance overpaid by the committee, $238.50.

RESOLUTIONS IN RESPECT.

Whereas, in the opinion of divine providence the sickness of the Hon. W. McNair, so prolonged, yet so bravely endured, has come at last to a fatal termination; therefore Resolved, That the members of the board of education of this city tender their sympathy to his stricken family, and express our conviction that by his example in the multifarious duties of life, by his industry and ability which characterized him in his profession; by his clean and complete discharge of the various official trusts to which he was called; and by the generous and intelligent service which he rendered to the cause of popular education as a member of this board, his death has greatly diminished the positive forces of good in our community, and the loss occasioned by it will be sorely felt throughout the state.

Resolved, That the foregoing resolution be spread on the records of this board and a copy of the same be transmitted by the secretary to the widow of the deceased.

Several meetings ago the question of the advisability of building a workshop in which the frames and much of the work for school buildings could be made as well as miscellaneous repairs, was brought up and the subject was discussed by the commission. Nelson, who enthusiastically favors the scheme. It was reported that a site could be secured near the Winthrop school for a rental of $35 a month and another, somewhat removed, for $250 a year. It was also stated that a site could be secured on Eighth street for $250 a year. It is a one-fourth-acre lot. Mr. Nelson urged the scheme on the ground of economy.

Supt. Tonsley thought that in case the industrial school project obtains a good site, a shop should be established in connection therewith, and Mr. Nelson favored utilizing the site of the bell tower at the Washington school.

Mr. Austin explained that the city had relinquished its claim on the bell tower. Supt. Tonsley explained that the city do you remember in old economic days that it was proposed to fit up a superintendent's office in the tower? It was ridiculous.

IN BOYS' CLOTHES.

A Dissatisfied Girl Wanted to Better Her Condition.

Yesterday Detective Gleason stepped into a saloon on Washington avenue north, and a moment later a man and a woman appeared to be a young girl who had been in the bar. When asked what they would have by the bartender, the youth said: "Give me a little whisky." The voice attracted the detective's attention. It was a musical treble. Looking around he scanned the faces of the men who were at once convinced that something was wrong. Going to the door he met Officer Kennedy, to whom he imparted his suspicion, and ordered the possessor of the silvery voice to be taken to the First precinct station for investigation. Arriving there the detective made the excuse that the youth was charged with larceny, and said he should be obliged to search him for stolen money. He had no sooner begun his investigation than the prisoner frankly confessed that she was no boy at all, but a woman.

Being locked up, a GLOBE reporter visited her, and she freely told her story. Her name is Mrs. Elizabeth Slaughter, and her husband is now doing one and a half years for robbing an old man in Waverly, near last March. Her father is a farmer, named John Anderson, who lives near Smith Lake. She said: "I am now 18 years old. I had always lived on a farm, when I was married a little over a year ago. When my husband was arrested, I came to Minneapolis and secured employment in a family named Blake, on the East side, earning $2.50 a week. Finally I went home again, but returned a few weeks ago and got employed in a family named Farham, at Shingle creek. The work was hard and the pay small. I had to work from 5 o'clock in the morning until 10 at night. It was too hard for me and I gave it up. I sought other employment, but I found it difficult to do. I saw advertisements in papers of 'map agents wanted,' and it struck me that if I were only a boy I could sell maps. I thought of it all night and finally resolved to undertake a little thinking for a moment. I was doing a committing an offense. I went to a second-hand store on North Washington avenue and spent my last money in purchasing this suit of clothes. I told the man what I intended to do, and he thought it a clever scheme. When I had got my hair cut I put on the clothes, and the owner of the second-hand store insisted that I must take a drink of whisky and drink with him. I told him I did not drink, but he prevailed upon me saying that if I was to be a boy I must do as boys do. I went with him and took about a teaspoonful of whisky and was at once arrested. I didn't mean to do that. What do you think they will do with me? Mrs. Slaughter is quite large, and will weigh probably over 150 pounds, has light complexion, and does not appear to be one who would do anything of a wrong. She will probably be arraigned to-day.

A SMALLER OUTPUT.

But Still the Mills Discount Last Year's Record.

The Northwestern Miller in the four review will say: "Not unexpectedly, the work of the mills last week was lighter than for several preceding weeks. This was occasioned by loss of time by different mills. The flour output for the six days was 188,109 barrels—averaging 31,351 daily—against 177,800 barrels the preceding week, and 150,000 for the corresponding time in 1884. On Saturday one 1,300-barrel mill was shut down on account of bad markets, and the proprietors of the rest are not prepared to say that they will be operated longer than another week. Two mills, with an aggregate capacity of 2,300 barrels, will undoubtedly be closed down Saturday, and probably others. While it was tacitly understood that the output would be advanced, in case freights advanced, it comes pretty hard for them to actually carry out this intention, and it will be done only by a portion. Mill owners seemingly have been in a quandary for several days as to what they should do with their mills, and many of them have been controlled by circumstances, and present indications are that most of them will be forced to stop their mills. Some have orders which will carry them through the week, but after that all is uncertainty. The output this week will probably be somewhat reduced, but not to a great extent. The flour market is dull and lower.

The following were the receipts and shipments from Minneapolis for the weeks ending on the dates given: RECEIPTS. Oct. 27, Oct. 28, Oct. 29. Wheat, bu., 1,722,000, 1,006,640, 1,354,080. Flour, bbls., 1,180, 475, 824. Millstuffs, tons., 72, 59, 43.

FROM THE BAY STATE.

The Massachusetts People Perfect an Organization.

The sons and daughters of Massachusetts who met a week ago and effected preliminary arrangements for forming a permanent organization held another meeting in Curtis hall last evening. There were upward of two hundred people present and the fair sex constituted a large per cent. The society was organized by the following officers and the adoption of a set of by-laws and the members whose names were attached to the roster are among Minneapolis' leading and most influential citizens: President—John E. Haskell. First Vice President—W. S. Bradstreet. Secretary—C. W. Tiffany. Treasurer—E. B. Foster. Executive Committee—A. T. Morse, George W. Marchant, George H. Johnson, H. C. Hill, Col. James Fairman.

After signing the constitution the association was called to order and a number of laudatory speeches of a reminiscent nature were delivered.

An Open Meeting of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners held a largely-attended open meeting at Winthrop hall last evening, at which H. C. Christianson presided. R. H. Shadrick spoke at some length upon the organization of producers as a means of securing justice, and summarized the principal objects to be accomplished by the industry and ability of labor in the interest of the unemployed and for the better protection of the employers; to secure equality under the law in society; to check the tendency toward plutocracy; to promote just and equal legislation; to secure a larger share of the creations of labor to the toiler.

Dr. Emery, who followed, confined his remarks to a discussion of the qualifications of workmen to receive the benefits they are seeking. He urged that all should make an earnest effort to perfect themselves in their crafts and to educate their minds.

Dr. Ames, who was present, responded to an enthusiastic call and made a brief address, in which he said it was the duty of the working classes to put themselves upon the defensive against the power of the few who are strong in the majority, and that if they allow a minority to make laws which oppress them it is their own fault. The producers should first find out what they can do to insist upon getting it. In order to act intelligently they should study the political questions at their meetings, read and study the problems of the day. As for organization—he believed in it. The capitalists, the manufacturers and the politicians have their organizations, and realize full well that they are organized. Why should not the workmen of the nation who support the non-producers come together in a united effort to secure a recognition of their rights?

THE APPEAL CASES.

The First Decided in Favor of the Plaintiff—The Damage Suits.

One of the twenty appeal cases, in which property owners are seeking to set aside awards of damages in the condemnation proceedings instituted by the Northern Pacific Railway, was decided yesterday in the district court. The case was that of John Olmsted, who appeared from an award of $100. The jury, after viewing the property and hearing the evidence, brought in a verdict for $350. The appeals of Charles Witt and Walter Murch are now on trial.

THE DAMAGE SUITS.

The case of Sophronia La France, who sought to recover $5,000 damages for injuries received by a fall, occasioned by a defective stairway on Third avenue, north-east, was argued and given to the jury yesterday morning. The jury awarded the plaintiff $400 damages. The damage suit of Erick Barbo, who seeks to recover $2,000 for the loss of a leg, was argued yesterday by the jury in the same hall. The case was argued by the plaintiff's attorney, who failed to agree up to 6 o'clock, and was instructed by Judge Koon to return a sealed verdict.

COURT BRIEFS.

Camp & Walker yesterday commenced an action against Chester W. Emery to recover $257, due for lumber used in the construction of a two-story dwelling house erected by the Cavalry Baptist church, and ask that the amount may be adjudged a lien upon the premises. The suit of Beck & Backus vs. Jacob Deuter is also on the calendar. Arriving coming to a trial, the plaintiffs being allowed to retain the property sought to be recovered. Alexander Wedin yesterday made an assignment to Blumankranz for the benefit of creditors. The assets do not exceed $500. Articles of incorporation of the Woman's Industrial exchange were yesterday filed with the register of deeds, the general purport of which has already appeared in the GLOBE.

PARTIAL PAYMENTS.

A Case Which Touches Upon the Validity of "Iron Clad" Leases.

kept a boarding house at 430 First avenue north, and secured goods, consisting of carpets and furniture, from the defendant's furnishing establishment to the value of over $600. She paid something down and agreed to pay the balance in monthly installments. She signed a contract, amounting to a lease, which read that upon failure on her part to meet the monthly payments the property would revert to its owner. She failed to pay the balance, and one day when she was absent from the city the defendant entered her house and proceeded to take back the goods. She accordingly brought action to recover the value of the goods, which were placed at $671. Judge Johnson ruled both sides and finally dismissed the action without prejudice to either party. He said that evidently the property did not belong to the plaintiff, as she had only paid $157 down for the goods, but he thought she had an interest to that amount, which he did not claim the entire value. The dismissal does not effect the title of either party, and an action will probably be brought to recover the amount which has been paid on the goods.

A LAWYER'S FUSS.

An Attorney Charges a Legal Firm With Unprofessional Conduct.

In the district court J. H. Long yesterday commenced an action against the firm of Keith, Thompson & Webster, attorneys, and Chalmers & McLeelan, claiming that the several judgments for certain employees against the firm, which were entered and subsequently made an assignment in September, 1883, to C. H. Chadburne. He filed notice of an attorney's lien upon each of the judgments and alleges that Keith, Thompson & Webster, who were paid money employed to collect the judgments after failing to induce him to release his lien, conspired with C. H. Chadburne, the assignee, and succeeded in getting the full amount of the judgments paid to them, thus ignoring the plaintiff's lien. Mr. Long therefore brings action to recover $610, the amount of his lien for services.

One of Legg's Diamonds Recovered.

The robbery of Henry Legg's jewelry store, in which diamonds to the value of $10,000 were stolen, has been traced to the streets of the county, and to date no clue has been obtained. However, Mr. Legg, who has just returned from a visit to St. Louis, fortunately discovered one of the diamonds in a pawnshop in that city. It was worth $140, and was not considered in the first estimate of diamonds stolen. In fact it was not missed for several days after the theft.

Examinations Waived.

In the municipal court yesterday J. C. Ring and Robert Sadle were arraigned upon the charge of bastardy. As against Ring, Cylia J. Goldie appeared as complaining witness. She stated that she had given birth to a child July 4 last, and that the defendant was the father. He waived an examination, and in default of bonds in the sum of $100 was committed to await the action of the grand jury. Carrie Peterson appeared against the other, and the same disposition was made.

MINNEAPOLIS GLOBULES.

Peter Widner paid a fine yesterday of $5 for reckless driving.

The formal transfer of the St. James hotel to J. S. Anderson and B. F. Ames took place yesterday.

It has been nearly a month since the poles were erected on Lake street for electric lights. Where are the wires?

The monthly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held last evening, with an interesting musical and literary entertainment.

The funeral of the late John Best took place from the church of the Immaculate Conception at 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

Lemmie Morgan of Minneapolis and Halon Davidson of St. Paul will skate a two-mile championship race at Washington rink to-night.

Mrs. Willis Baker assisted by her daughter gave a reception yesterday afternoon at her residence, 1000 Birch street. About two hundred ladies attended.

The firm of K. E. & C. has completed the sale of its real estate, including the building at 87 and 87-25, and Grove & Rowe and the other side at $9.50 and $6.75.

The Trades and Labor assembly committee having in charge the annual ball and reception held a meeting last evening, at which the net receipts were reported to exceed $100.

John F. Fraubach and Miss Kittie Regan were united in marriage yesterday morning at the church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. Father James McGolrick. They will reside at 315 Grand street south.

The funeral of J. M. Dunham takes place this morning at the Centenary M. E. church, under the auspices of the Good Templars, at 9 o'clock this evening. The remains will be interred in Brooklyn cemetery.

The ladies of the Mount Calvary Church mission will give an oyster supper in Avery's hall in the Eighth ward this evening, and they expect the hungry among their gentlemen friends to call and partake of the edibles at a fair consideration of the "kiddo."

The engagement of the "Mikado" company for the coming Saturday evening, the business of both matinee and evening performance was good. To-night the "Willow Cope," with C. W. Coudock as Luke Fielding, will be the attraction.

Prof. Russell P. Joy gave the second of his organ recitals last evening at the Gethsemane church, assisted by several volunteers. The program consisted of solos from Bach, Batiste, Merkel and Learens, and the arrangements for the organ from the compositions of Carter, Beethoven and Mendelssohn. The next recital will occur on Nov. 24.

R. E. Bader of the Lakeview house at Lake Calhoun, who was found guilty by a jury of selling liquor without a license a week ago, came before Judge Mahoney for his sentence yesterday. The court imposed a fine of $75, which was promptly paid. "This is your third offense, Mr. Bader," remarked the honor, severely, "if you continue in violating the law I shall be obliged to send you to the county jail."

MINNEAPOLIS PERSONALS.

THE OHARITY BALL.

A Gorgeous and Glittering Outpouring of Wealth and Fashion.

An Event of a Magnitude Not Outranked in the Season's Gayety.

The device of calling society and fashion to the aid of the worthy destitute is not a Minneapolis invention, but is none the less a commendable one. The thorn of social dissipation blossoms into a rose when sweet charity waters it, and even a minister, a recluse or a cynic may plunge into the vortex at $5 per plunge, the proceeds to go to the Home for Homeless Children and Destitute Aged Women. For this object was the reception at the West hotel last night—a successful affair as was ever graded by Minneapolis beauty and manhood. Having erected a home in keeping with the object, the lady directors stood in need of the necessary money to properly conduct it, and alighted upon the scheme of a charity ball, at which the city's fashion might contribute to the worthy institution. Col. John T. West came to the rescue, and with characteristic generosity devoted, not only his palatial hotel, but his army of servants and a supper for 2,000 guests. This left the way clear and the ladies announced the ball. Last night witnessed its successful consummation, and the result, while perhaps not wholly in line with the expectations in point of numbers and consequent receipts, was a glittering social success. About six hundred of the city's most estimable people graced the occasion with their presence, and being about half of the number of purchasers of tickets, the arrivals were generally early, and by 8:30 o'clock carriage after carriage rolled up to the Fifth street entrance, deposited its occupants and gave way to the seemingly endless procession of beholders who conducted to the worthy institution. Col. John T. West came to the rescue, and with characteristic generosity devoted, not only his palatial hotel, but his army of servants and a supper for 2,000 guests. THE RECEPTION began at the same hour in the main parlor, which had been handsomely dressed with flowers. Over the central chimney piece was a huge floral arch, bearing the words "Charity" in garlands on a bed of white carnations. Cut flowers ornamented the windows and tables, and the corner chimney piece was a great bank of the floral beauties. From the directorate a reception committee of seven had been appointed, of whom six ladies were the most prominent. R. B. Langdon headed the list, the other ladies being Mesdames M. P. Hawkins, C. F. Hatch, J. Thompson, Jr., A. W. Hastings and G. W. Collum. The guests presented themselves to the ladies, who stood in a crescent, and after paying their respects, passed on to linger about the parlors and corridors or join the dancers. At 10 o'clock the last guest had arrived and the scene was one of bewildering beauty. The music of the orchestra, the rustle of dresses, the jewels flashing, and white arms and bosoms gleaming, all contributed to that matchless scene which conveyed to stranger guests in the hotel an eloquent idea of the person of the Oharity Ball.

WHO WERE THERE? It would be a matter of supererogation to once again, so soon after the Nicollet club party, give that long list of names. It was a general society event in Minneapolis and "everybody was there." Take a list of the eligible society people who it would contain the names of few who were not present. Of strangers there were not many, though quite a number of St. Paul people, several from the fort, and as many more from Stillwater were present. The occasion was a social and a party, and the presence of the season's debutantes, and also several brides who were given their first introduction in Minneapolis society. It was a fine gathering in every respect, where professional and mercantile men, clergymen, doctors, the young married lady and the dowager, mamma, and the mischievous daughters, met and enjoyed themselves.

THE COSTUMES were, it was said, even more magnificent than on the occasion of the Nicollet club party, though that was scarcely possible. It was remarked, however, that more ladies were in dress, and the appearance of greater splendor. It is sufficient to say that the toilets were exceedingly rich and handsome, and that they borrowed beauty from rather than added it to their fair features.

THE BALL-ROOM was the grand dining-hall as usual, where the Danz orchestra held sway. The following gentlemen were the floor managers: Messrs. C. McCreeve, W. E. Burwell, C. S. Landron, H. C. Frustrale, W. G. Northrup, C. M. Carpenter, L. D. Hallowell, and S. C. Tooker. Dancing began promptly at 9 o'clock and continued until 11 this morning, the program containing twenty dances.

An important feature not to be overlooked was the supper, which was spread in the ladies' parlors at 10 o'clock. The chef of the West certainly exerted himself and the table pieces and excellent menu carried with them their own commendation. Supper was served at 11 o'clock and at its conclusion the elderly contingent met their admirers in a merry dance, and to enjoy themselves for at least an hour longer. It was nearly 2 o'clock before the hotel was wrapped in its customary nightly repose.

His Honor and Bijah. "Is your name John Sherman?" softly inquired the court. "Yes, sir." "Any relation to the John who is waving the bloody shirt in Ohio?" "No, sir." "It's just as well. John—permit me to be thus familiar—you are not handsome." "No, sir." "You haven't any store-clothes." "Yes, sir." "You are out of money and winter coming on." "Exactly." "And to cap the haystack, you got drunk and had a fight." "Yes, sir." "Now, then, what shall I do with you? Bijah, hand him a glass and let him see himself."

The prisoner took the glass and made a lewdly survey of himself. When he finally handed it back he said: "I wouldn't have believed my beauty had faded so. You may take it three months." "Then, that's the sentence, John, and as a reward for your good sense you may have front seat in the Black Maria as you ride up." Detroit Free Press.

Suit Against Mr. Beecher. HALFBOUR, Conn., Oct. 28.—Rev. Mr. Beecher has been sued by a lecture committee for breach of contract. Some time ago he was announced to speak at Suffield. The hall was crowded, but the lecturer did not appear. The committee had expended the money taken for tickets was refunded. Subsequently Mr. Beecher wrote an apologetic letter, saying in view of the disappointment occasioned he would come to Suffield and deliver a free course of lectures. Another committee was arranged and tickets were sold, and the audience gathered as before, but Mr. Beecher did not fulfill his engagement. The second failure is the cause of the suit.

THE OHARITY BALL.

A Gorgeous and Glittering Outpouring of Wealth and Fashion.

An Event of a Magnitude Not Outranked in the Season's Gayety.

The device of calling society and fashion to the aid of the worthy destitute is not a Minneapolis invention, but is none the less a commendable one. The thorn of social dissipation blossoms into a rose when sweet charity waters it, and even a minister, a recluse or a cynic may plunge into the vortex at $5 per plunge, the proceeds to go to the Home for Homeless Children and Destitute Aged Women. For this object was the reception at the West hotel last night—a successful affair as was ever graded by Minneapolis beauty and manhood. Having erected a home in keeping with the object, the lady directors stood in need of the necessary money to properly conduct it, and alighted upon the scheme of a charity ball, at which the city's fashion might contribute to the worthy institution. Col. John T. West came to the rescue, and with characteristic generosity devoted, not only his palatial hotel, but his army of servants and a supper for 2,000 guests. This left the way clear and the ladies announced the ball. Last night witnessed its successful consummation, and the result, while perhaps not wholly in line with the expectations in point of numbers and consequent receipts, was a glittering social success. About six hundred of the city's most estimable people graced the occasion with their presence, and being about half of the number of purchasers of tickets, the arrivals were generally early, and by 8:30 o'clock carriage after carriage rolled up to the Fifth street entrance, deposited its occupants and gave way to the seemingly endless procession of beholders who conducted to the worthy institution.

THE RECEPTION began at the same hour in the main parlor, which had been handsomely dressed with flowers. Over the central chimney piece was a huge floral arch, bearing the words "Charity" in garlands on a bed of white carnations. Cut flowers ornamented the windows and tables, and the corner chimney piece was a great bank of the floral beauties. From the directorate a reception committee of seven had
