

Daily Globe.

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

TERMS.

BY MAIL OR CARRIER. Daily, per month $5. Daily and Sunday, per calendar month $7. Sunday, one year $60.00.

Address all letters and telegrams to THE GLOBE, ST. PAUL, MINN.

ST. PAUL, TUESDAY, DEC. 29, 1885.

THE WASHINGTON OFFICE OF THE GLOBE IS AT THE NORTHWEST CORNER OF PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE AND FOURTH STREET.

THE CHICAGO OFFICE OF THE GLOBE IS AT NO. 111 WEST WASHINGTON STREET.

THE NEW YORK OFFICE OF THE GLOBE IS AT NO. 25 WEST AVENUE SOUTH.

THE ST. LOUIS OFFICE OF THE GLOBE IS AT 215 1/2 SOUTH MAIN STREET.

The Globe is on sale at the National Hotel, Washington, and at Geo. S. Wharton's, No. 3 Cambridge street, New York.

The Daily and Sunday Globe is for sale at Rayner's old book and news store, 236 Third avenue south, Minneapolis.

DAILY WEATHER BULLETIN.

OFFICE OF CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER, WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 23, 10 p. m.—Observations taken at the same moment of time at all stations:

Table with columns: Stations, Wind, W'th'r, Clouds. Includes Duluth, St. Paul, Huron, Moorhead, etc.

THE HOSE REPORT.

Barometer, 29.39; thermometer, 35; relative humidity, 65. Light rain or local snows, variable winds, nearly stationary temperature.

INDICATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29, 1 a. m.—For the upper lake region, slight rain or local snows, variable winds, nearly stationary temperature.

AMUSEMENT DIRECTORY.

ST. PAUL. GRAND OPERA HOUSE, Wabasha St.—8 p. m., "Silver King."

OLYMPIC THEATER, Seventh St. near Jackson—"Mysteries of a Palace Car."

SACKETT & WIGGINS' DIME MUSEUM, 94 and 96 Seventh St.—Museum and Stage Performance.

FOURTH STREET FAMILY MUSEUM, Exposition Block near Wabasha—Museum and Stage Performance.

MINNEAPOLIS. GRAND OPERA HOUSE, Nicollet and Sixth—8 p. m., Carleton Opera Company.

SACKETT & WIGGINS' DIME MUSEUM, 214 and 216 Hennepin Av.—Museum and Stage Performance.

THEATRE COMIQUE, 219, 221 and 223 First Av. South—John Ransome in "Across the Atlantic."

THE DAILY GLOBE.

First Page—Political, Foreign, Cupid's Queer Capers and Sporting News.

Second Page—St. Paul News.

Third Page—Minneapolis and Stillwater News.

Fourth Page—Editorial, Crimes and Casualties and General Telegraph.

Fifth Page—Northwestern and Dakota News.

Sixth Page—Financial and Commercial.

Seventh Page—Want Advertisements.

Eighth Page—The Lawn Tennis Ball and Railroad News.

THE PRICES.

The only feature of the stock market yesterday was the strength developed in Lake Shore in the early dealings.

THE NEWS.

Er-Gov. Ramsey talks reservedly on Mormon matters.

An ex-coviet at Stillwater threatens Warden Heed's life.

The Irish National league have postponed their convention.

A French riding master eloped with a fair New York maid.

St. Paul fire commissioners awarded contracts for new hose.

Veterans of the Second Minnesota held a reunion in St. Paul.

An aged Maryland bridegroom went crazy during the honeymoon.

Jack Burke knocked Mike Cleary out in three rounds in Chicago.

The Delta Lawn Tennis club's ball at the Ryan was brilliant affair.

Most of the committee chairmen have been selected by Speaker Carlisle.

Texan partisans of a defeated mayor are organizing a raid into Mexico.

Charles Martin of Monte Christo fame has left the city for the city's good.

The proposed British protective tariff threatens American interests.

William Mavis was run over by an engine near Hinkley and badly injured.

Vandals mutilated valuable oil paintings in St. Elizabeth's church, Chicago.

The First National bank of Lake City has closed on account of a run on it.

St. Paul and Minneapolis capitalists have purchased the Duluth street railway.

An Alabama negro was burned at the stake for a fire insurance assault upon a woman.

Box-makers in Chicago are on a strike against the use of nailing machines.

A government steamer will be sent to search for the missing whaler Amethyst.

Warner Miller is receiving decided opposition in the New York senatorial contest.

Commissioner Sparks claims to have the unqualified indorsement of the president.

Alleghenia coal miners refuse to leave the settlement of their troubles to arbitration.

The contract for the Cascade tunnel is absorbing the interest of railroad capitalists.

A St. Paul printer named Milton Lescher was knocked down on the street with a slungshot.

The St. Paul chamber of commerce is investigating the question of who owns the levee.

J. C. Intzelman, a Newton, Ill., contractor, fled from town, leaving thousands of dollars of debt.

Mary Dowd, a Cleveland grass widow, was removed from man.

removed from man. As of old people are still compelled to earn their bread in the sweat of the face.

Thomas Campbell of Scotland died from the result of injuries inflicted by C. H. Singer in a saloon row.

The Illinois court disrupted the right of way of the Chicago, Burlington & Northern at East Dubuque.

Numerous Chicago oligarch-makers were de-luded into a trip to the Pacific coast under false promises of work.

Two youthful Chicago lovers skipped to St. Louis with $500 belonging to the lady's father, and had a big time.

The story that a number of detectives were sent to the White house to protect the president is pronounced a canard.

Fourteen hundred poor children were given a Christmas dinner by a Washington club, composed of the elite of that city.

Minneapolis exposition managers have asked the city to furnish grounds for the new buildings which are to cost $250,000.

DAKOTA'S ADMISSION.

Mr. HUGH CAMPBELL is a little sensitive about his Louisiana record and doesn't hesitate to let Senator Vest that he ought to spare his feelings in this regard.

Mr. CAMPBELL ought to remember that the presidential fraud of 1876 is one of the episodes of American history that will never be forgotten and that the perpetrators of it will never be forgiven.

Theft of the ballot is an unpardonable sin in republican governments. It is a crime for which there can be no atonement.

Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.

It will be observed that in his letter to Senator Vest that Mr. CAMPBELL shrewdly attempts to parry the charge of revolutionary action by citing the decision of Judge TANEY and the action had by half a dozen other states preliminary to their admission into the Union.

The principles quoted by Mr. CAMPBELL and the precedents referred to are all correct enough in themselves, but we fail to see what application they have to the claim of the Huron state government.

It is a crime for which there can be no atonement. Like the primal mark of disgrace which rested on the brow of the first murderer it stamps itself upon the perpetrator of the crime to point him out as the object of all men's contumely and invests all his political actions with suspicion.