OLD TIME GALLANTRY. GALLANTRY OF THE PRESENT DAY THE DIFFERENCE Between the standards of gallantry is very plainly marked. In one case the gallant ignores his fine clothes in his endeavor to secure a coveted flower for his charming companion, while in the other case the man monopolizes the best half of the umbrella, leaving the lady poorly protected. There is all the difference in the world between the fine tailor-made Clothing sold at THE BOSTON and that sold by other dealers. There is a certain fit and style about clothing bought here that makes it equal to any "made to order" at a tailor's. And when we sell this superior clothing for less money than inferior goods are sold for elsewhere, is it any wonder we are always busy?
