Three Bold Burglars. Special to the Globe.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 26.—Particulars have just been received of the robbery of Father Kemker, at Riverside, Iowa county. Father Kemker is the newly-installed pastor of the Catholic church. He had just returned to his parish and was alone in his house. He was awakened by a noise in the building, and getting out of bed, seized a pistol and opened the door leading to the kitchen. It swung open, and he saw three men pushing him from the side, while a third was in the act of climbing over the transom. He pulled the trigger of his pistol, but it missed fire. Before he could recover it his hand was struck by a club in the grasp of the fellow in the transom and two pistols were stuck under his face. He was clutched by the throat, hurled down on the floor and held by two men, while the third, with a big knife, enforced his demand for valuables.

DES KEYS WERE SECURED and $300 belonging to the parish taken. The robbers demanded more money and his watch. Father Kemker is an active, strong man, and struggled with great force until one of the villains struck him a heavy blow on the head, partly stunning him. He was then thrown on the bed and held by a sheet, one holding him down while the other two ransacked his clothes, getting about $125 in gold and a fine gold watch and chain and his personal property from the best pockets. Having secured this they fled. The bell rope was found cut, so that it took Father Kemker some time to give the alarm. The entire village was soon aroused, but the robbers had made their escape. Father Kemker's injuries, received in the conflict, are severe, but not dangerous. He had sufficiently recovered to come to town Monday afternoon in the hope of finding some clue to the man and to receive medical treatment.

The Liquor Band to Hold. Special to the Globe.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 26.—Saturday last two temperance women swore out search warrants against the saloons, and the officers proceeded to capture all the intoxicants in sight and to store the same in the cellar under the Masonic building. Sunday night some persons broke into the cellar, stole the liquor, and was in the act of loading it into a freight car when the night watch surprised them and chased them away. The whisky was recaptured and put in the city jail, but Monday the city authorities ordered it out of there, when it was taken out in the country to the home of another prohibitionist and secretly stored away in his smoke house. On Tuesday night the smoke house was assailed and the spirits were again spirited away to one known whither. The officers are greatly chagrined, and the saloonkeepers are in great glee, while the neutral element look on and smile.

ANOTHER UNION OF IOWA DEMOCRATS AND GREENBACKERS TO OCCUR. Special to the Globe.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The Democrats and Greenbackers of Iowa will probably fuse this fall. The Democratic state committee met at Des Moines one day last week. A delegation of the leading Greenbackers also put in an appearance, but did not make their presence known to the public. The Democrats are confident that they will in the course of a week or two issue a formal call for the convention to be held at the same time and place as the meeting of the Democrats. This means nothing less than fusion. The Democrats seem to think they can carry this state this fall, but the average Iowa Democrat is very hopeful and by no means a successful prophet. The Democrats believe they will be able to carry the fourth and ninth congressional districts at the coming election. Mr. Allen, Republican, however, defeated Mr. Weller at the LAST CONGRESSIONAL ELECTION, receiving a majority of 250. Seneca Earle will probably be maintained by the Democracy and stands a good chance of election. The Ninth district is at present represented by Mr. Lyman, Republican, whose majority over Judge Pusey, the fusion candidate, was 562. The Democrats are inclined to nominate Keatley of Council Bluffs. Mr. Hall, who represents the First district, was elected by a majority of seventy-three. He will probably be re-nominated, but his election is problematical. Mr. Hall has made friends in Washington who would be glad to see him returned to the fifth congress. He has not given any indications as to his intentions respecting a nomination, but it is understood he can have a second opportunity to make the fight if he desires it. Gen. Warren was elected by a majority of seventy-four votes. This margin is not light, but the Republicans are very hopeful of carrying the district. Weaver, however, is one of the best campaigners in the county, although inclined to be over sanguine. The contest in the sixth district will, therefore, be rather promising.

SOUTHERN MINNESOTA POLITICS. The Bee Beginning to Buzz in Rysland Honests.

To the Editor of the Globe: ALBERT LEA, Minn., May 26.—It may not be necessary to state, as long as it is a matter of record, that this is a banner county in Southern Minnesota. The Republican candidates for office, at one time Mr. Armstrong acted as state treasurer and to-day Kittelson is filling the place and at the same time, K. M. Gibbs of this county is working like a beaver for the nomination for governor, and John A. Lovely for congress, and there are at least a dozen more who want something and can't get it. Three years ago the Scandinavian element in this county voted almost solid the straight Republican ticket, but are rapidly becoming rapidly latter day saints, and now propose to vote the Democratic ticket, and this is what evidently the old Republican rulers begin to realize that it is time to wake up and do something, as they cannot have the same money as the same time. That Billy Windom would accept the nomination for governor is well known here, while the fact that Senator Johnson would have failed to carry is not denied. Now in this great Republican cyclone that will strike the state this fall some of these fellows will be blown so far out of this district that they will never be heard of again.

WITH Gibbs in Southern Minnesota, Gilman in the northern part of the state, McGill in the middle, and Strait, Windom, Scheffer and a half-dozen more candidates for governor, it certainly is strange if the Democratic party cannot put up and nominate a man of principle and honor, who can easily be elected if the proper man is brought out. While the Democrats are more numerous down here than ever before, I must state that we do not desire the name of Ignatius Donnelly mentioned for the United States senate next winter, as we prefer a good Democrat, or C. K. Davis, to any man that has been mentioned so far. The citizens here generally believe that Donnelly was in St. Paul recently trying to ingratiate himself into the good graces of the party who are representing the Farmers' alliance. After having been a Democrat and Republican and Independent at the same time, he is now the tame "carnival" friend, and expects to get in the legislature and into the United States senate. The fact that he has been mentioned in the city of St. Paul, and that he is not a Democrat and the Democrats will not support him. Nominus.

Insists on Eleven Hours. Special to the Globe.

EAU CLAIRE, May 26.—Two hundred Knights of Labor of the Fifth ward assembly prepared a petition asking the Valley Lumber company, the only company in the city, to run their saw mill eleven hours, to run ten hours instead. The petition was presented to President Carson of the company by Ald. Compo. Mr. Carson said the company could manage its own business and pay the wages. He called the mill employes together and addressed them, saying no man who struck would be hired again. The company would insist on running eleven hours, and if necessary, would import hands. There was no demonstration on the part of the employes after the speech. Many fear a strike, but it will not be general. This is the second demand for an eleven hour day. The previous one it will probably be a failure. Half the mills in the valley are running ten hours already.

The accident was occasioned by the carelessness of the engineer of the Great Northern, who was in the rear of the locomotive to signal in case of danger. Luckily no one was injured. The damage to the car amounted to about $3,000.

Greig made some practical tests of butter, weighing and sealing it. In the afternoon an open discussion followed on a variety of farm questions. There has been a great awakening among the farmers caused by this meeting, and they will become annual features in Ortonville hereafter.

EAU CLAIRE, May 26.—The second closing of Good Templars in a session, with Union lodge of this city, the meeting closed this evening. At the first session, held yesterday morning, the committee on credentials reported sixty-one delegates present from twenty-one lodges. An increase of membership in this district of 400 since the lodge meeting at Chatfield Falls was noted. The delegates and the members of the lodge held a public meeting at Music hall, at which there was a large attendance and which was addressed by Judge Hart and Rev. W. A. McKillop of this city. To-day's sessions were spent in routine business. The closing ceremonies are being held at the hall of Union lodge to-night. Officers will not be elected until the meeting in August. A council committee is preparing to place sixteen public drinking fountains, two in each ward, and a spray fountain in each of the three parks. The cornerstone of the new First Congregational church will be laid to-morrow with appropriate ceremonies. Mrs. Jane Hayes was thrown from her carriage and had two ribs and her breast bone broken. She was placed in the American hospital. The girl from Winona who was invited to act as "queen of the carnival," was left behind when the parade was started. The total failure of the enterprise. The other young women who were invited to take part in the carnival were sent to friends in Chicago, her ticket being bought by subscription among the young women of Eau Claire house, at which both the young woman had been given refuge after being turned out of her home by her mother. Men left all bills unpaid and left for parts unknown. Styles in Stockings. Special to the Globe.

Solid colors are found among the most elegant hosiery. They are always ladylike and some of the lace stripes are extremely effective. Navy blue, brown, from the darkest seal shades to ecrus, chamois and cream color and gray in all shades find favor. Bronze will be very much worn with white dresses, low shoes and tan-colored gaiters. Fine hose in pure silk and lisle thread are plain and elegant. There are fancy styles among the lisle thread goods, but the best grade of silk hose come almost entirely in solid colors and to match all shades in fine dress goods. There are Richelieu ribs with half-inch stripes separated by a single thread, and others with alternate stripes of contrasting colors. Nice goods in this style are in black and white, black and cardinal, black and orange and other toned combinations. Red is combined with almost every color. The quality and finish of black hosiery improve every season, and every effort has been made to produce an absolutely fast black, but without avail. There are brands that are very commendable, and probably as near fast color as any black is likely to be; still they will rub off a little. The best black in the market are the pure silk goods that are rich and lustrous and extremely elegant. Spin silk hosiery is improved each season, is soft and easy for the feet and more durable than all silks. There are pretty printed hose made by the same process of printing as foulards and satines. They are represented in black and white, and a few colors are seen in this style.

A Lenten Sacrifice. From the Rambler.

Dakota Officers Made Happy. Special to the Globe.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The senate has confirmed Marshal Marratta, Judge Church and District Attorney Gregory of Dakota. These are all the Dakota nominations remaining in the hands of the senate judiciary committee. They have hung fire for several months on formal charges preferred with the committee in March. The question was whether his predecessor, Gen. Allen, had been purposely removed or not. It was shown that some of his methods of administration had been open to criticism, and the committee decided to recommend Marratta's confirmation. No charges were filed against Marratta himself. In Judge Church's case it was charged he had failed to hold court in Grand county, and twice to journey a term of court in Kingsbury county in order to go back to New York and get his family. Senator Edmunds invited Judge Church to see him and explain matters. He was satisfied the charges were frivolous, and a favorable report was at once made. In Carland's case equally absurd statements were made. It was shown that he had presented farmers who went on school sections and took off stone, while a wealthy trespasser like Col. Steele he had not molested at all. Chairman Boynton, who has for months had charge of the senate in these cases, is highly gratified at the result.

There will be a contest between the oleomargarine bill and the legislative bill for the reservation to-morrow, but chances are excellent to get up the Sioux reservation bill on Saturday.

TERRITORIAL TIDBITS. News Notes of Interest to People of Dakota.

It is understood that the Presbyterian general assembly now at Minneapolis, is to make an excursion to North Dakota June 1, spending the night at Fargo, and returning to Minneapolis on the morning of the 2nd. The excursion is being organized by the Presbyterian church in Fargo on Sunday a committee was appointed to provide for the excursion, and it is expected to be handsomely entertained and given a good view of the biggest fields of the finest wheat on the continent. Figures have been compiled from the auditor's reports showing that rates of fire insurance in Dakota are not higher than the losses warred. It is shown that $1,000 was paid the various companies in premiums in 1885, while the losses were but $301.00, leaving a surplus of 74 per cent, for expenses and profit. On the usual estimates for expenses this is said to leave a profit of 24 per cent, and show that Dakota is something of a bonanza for the insurance companies. The increase of insurance is enormous, but the business is not so profitable. The local companies so numerous springing up adapt themselves more readily to the requirements of the situation, and are getting a larger share of the business. NAPOLEON'S PUTATIVE SON. A San Francisco Watchmaker Who Looked Like the Emperor.

From the New London (Conn.) Day. A son of Napoleon born in St. Helena Island and buried in Lone Mountain cemetery," is the heading of an article published in the San Francisco World that will cause many a New Londoner to open his eyes and wonder in these columns some weeks ago. The article credits Napoleon Bonaparte with being the father of the late John Gordon, the watchmaker, who formerly resided here, and a notice of whose death at San Francisco appeared in these columns some weeks since. The resemblance Mr. Gordon bore to his putative father, the emperor, was often the subject of comment, but regarded only as a coincidence. The story, however, is best told by the World as follows: "The marion of Napoleon's prison—perhaps would be more correct to speak of her as the housekeeper—appointed by the British government to attend to the comforts of the exiled monarch, was a comely woman in early middle life, and doubtless she, in common with the rest of his attendants, could never quite forget that she was a prisoner. The emperor, who was certainly a man of noble mind, and of a high moral principle, stamped an image of himself on the nearest approach to a 'fair play' in the world. The result was the birth of a boy, who, albeit with the bar sinister of the Bonapartes on his escutcheon, could yet, it is believed, claim more kindred, as he certainly bore a closer resemblance to feature and color to the race, than Napoleon III. ever could.

After the death of the exiled emperor, the housekeeper left St. Helena and went to London, taking her boy with her. There she married a watchmaker of the name of Gordon, who adopted the boy and bestowed on him his own name. By and by the boy grew up to manhood, and learned his adopted father's trade, and in the course of years wandered to New London, Conn., where he soon established himself in a large and thriving business as a watchmaker and jeweler. He became a man of influence in that part of the country, mixing much in politics. He even took quite a prominent part in journalism, especially during the war which preceded the selection of League Island as the site of a navy yard. New London was the rival of that point for the possession of the yard, and a long and animated discussion on the relative claims of the two cities was carried on between Gordon and Gideon Welles, then secretary of the navy. The literary contributions of the former to this controversy, though unsuccessful, were highly prized and earned for him the respect and gratitude of the people of New London. He is chiefly credited to the Norwich Bulletin and the New London Star, most of his articles on the navy yard question appearing in the latter paper.

"Soon afterwards he came to this city, having been probably with the California fever, then epidemic in the East. He entered into business with Mr. Tucker on the corner of Geary and Kearny streets, and was engaged with him for about sixteen years. Afterwards he was for a time with Mr. Durkin and later set up in a small way for himself at 321 Kearny street, where he remained until he died. He was a man of very considerable business ability, but somewhat reserved and only sociable with a select circle of friends.

"Gordon's face and figure bore a remarkably striking resemblance to those of his imperial father, and strangers who knew nothing of the romantic story of his birth frequently noticed it. He was very reticent on the subject himself, but when melted by the social cup, he would open his mind very freely, and was by no means unwilling to admit his relationship to the 'Corsican Conqueror.' At such moments he, apparently unconsciously, assumed the very attitude and expression of the picture of his ancestor alluded to above. "Born at St. Helena, he lies buried in Lone Mountain—a proof that, notwithstanding philosophic aphorisms to the contrary, there is often a good deal more than a span between the grade and the grave."
