

The IRISH STANDARD

"When my country takes her place among the nations of the earth, then, and not till then, let my epitaph be written."—ROBERT EMMET.

"My body to Ireland, my heart to Rome and my soul to God."—DANIEL O'CONNELL.

VOLUME III.

MINNEAPOLIS AND ST. PAUL, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1886.

NUMBER 5.

An Irish-American journal, devoted in particular to Irishmen and Irish-Americans of the Great Northwest.

Contains from week to week everything of interest transpiring in Ireland, bearing upon the Home Rule cause.

An Eight-page, 48-column journal, comparing in size and style to the leading Irish-American Weekly publications of the East.

The IRISH STANDARD is a Catholic paper and pays strict attention to its selections of choice reading matter for the home and fireside.

THE IRISH STANDARD has the advantage over other Irish-American publications of always being able to give a full resume of the general news of our own and adjoining states and territories.

THE IRISH STANDARD is the official organ of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Minnesota. The growth of this and Catholic societies in general kept well before the people.

News from Ireland by counties, made a specialty each week. To keep pace with the times shall always be the aim and object of THE IRISH STANDARD.

During the past twelve months THE IRISH STANDARD has succeeded beyond the most sanguine expectations of its most ardent and faithful friends. Wherever it has become known to our people there it has found a firm foothold. To give a bright, clean and newsy paper, has been the aim of its publishers from the beginning, to be fair and just in our dealings with men and measures, to treat all with common courtesy, and to publish an Irish-American journal, not in the interests of any particular section, but for the people of the entire Northwest, has been made an established principle and will be strictly adhered to in the future. To publish a paper pure in tone, to help in the advancement and improvement of our race in every way, shall be the motto of THE IRISH STANDARD.

The columns of THE STANDARD will contain a correct market report each week.

THE IRISH STANDARD will not burden its readers with politics, but when the proper time arrives, will ever be found strictly adherent to the doctrines taught by Jefferson and Jackson—unquestionably Democratic.

All moneys to be paid strictly in advance. Orders for THE IRISH STANDARD will receive prompt and immediate attention.

THE STANDARD is published in the Union Block, 42 Third Street S., Minneapolis, Minn.

Local agents wanted in every town in the Northwest.

EDWARD O'BRIEN, Editor and Proprietor.

"ARE THESE PANTALOONS?"

"Or are they what?" ejaculated Col. Gilhooly, when he arose, and, as he put on a pair of pants his tailor made for him, he swore they did not fit. He threw the garment on his couch disgusted. SATTTLER BROS., at 61 East Third street, could have sold Gilhooly pants or a Full Suit and fitted him to a T. It is very aggravating to pay a high price for a suit and not have it fit. The aggravation is intensified when you learn that SATTTLER BROS. could have sold you as fine goods ready made and fitted you perfectly, at a lower price.
