MORRISON'S DEFEAT. Mr. Morrison has suffered another defeat. The failure to get his tariff bill into the committee of the whole yesterday was more of a personal repulse to Mr. Morrison than it was a defeat of tariff reform. The the opinion that the doctor is to be crudeness of his bill laid it open to serious disciplined, for he says that, while priests objection, and some of the members can are allowed to have their own political probably explain their votes against it when | ideas, just like other people, it is not allowed they could not have done so if they had a priest to endeavor to influence his people voted against a more carefully prepared measure. It was not expected that any sort of a tariff reduction bill could pass this congress, so that there will be no disappointment to the public in the result of yesterday's vote. It will be different, however, with the next congress. That body will friendship with Cardinal SIMEONI, the be expected to pass a fair and reasonable tariff reduction bill, or, in default of its doing so, the people will take the tariff in hand with an earnestness that will leave no uncertainty as to the tariff complexion of the CONGRESSIONAL FUNERALS. Southern member looking to the abolishment of the indecent extravagance and ostentation which now attends funerals of congressmen is timely. The abuse is one which has grown to such proportions that it is doubtful whether it can be cured in any way short of the entire abolition of formal attendance on the part of a congressional committee at the funerals of colleagues. It is very fitting that a committee should show the respect due a deceased friend by accompanying the funeral cortege, but when an occasion which should at least call for the most decorous behavior is made the excuse for the wildest kind of hilarity, then the custom should be compelled to fall into disuse as speedily as possible. The entire country is scandalized upon the occasion of every congressional funeral. The indignant comments of the press seem to have availed nothing in checking the abuse. The junketing trips are just as eagerly entered upon as ever. Then there remains but one way of removing all cause for scandal. The hill should be passed which does away with such trips at public expense, and future committees should be purely honorary, or, at most, be allowed simply the usual mileage granted a congressman in traveling to and from the

WHY SHOULDS'T SHE DANCE? A good deal of discussion is going on just now regarding the rumored intention of the president's wife to have dancing parties in the White House during the present winter, and, curiously enough, she has in some quarters been severely criticised for her alleged intention. It is difficult to see upon what grounds the sharp-tongued critics base their disapproval. Certainly the president's official residence would lose nothing by the presence within it at stated intervals of the flower of the country's youth and beauty. engaging in the stately minuet or even in the more vigorous movement of the rythmic waltz. Certainly there would be no loss of dignity in the president's countenancing such a proceeding, and he would not have to look long in the records of the earlier presidents to find a precedent for his action. Mrs. CLEVELAND. too, is young and supposedly possessed of the abundant spirits and the love of gayety which rightfully and properly belong to one of her years. The etiquette of her position forbids her acceptance of invitations to dancing parties, so why should she be excluded from the enjoyment of them in what is for the time being her own house. The country has taken a great fancy to the president's youthful wife, who once claimed St. Paul as her residence, and if she has set her heart upon enlivening the tedious routine of official receptions with cozy little cotillions, it would have the president understand that the withholding of his permission is something of which it cannot approve.

A WOMAN'S EXCHANGE. At this season, when the dainty articles of silk, satin or lace, the more useful, if homelier, confections of wool and linen, the deftly painted works of art and the cunningly wrought embroideries, all products of feminine skill, are especially in demand, it is to be regretted that St. Paul does not possess a woman's exchange where such articles might be procured with a certain knowledge of their genuineness and a consciousness that in their purchase some person deserving aid is being assisted. There are many women, deft of hand, skilled with the brush or needle, who would be glad enough could they turn their talent to practical use and in the sale of the products of their skill eke out incomes pinchingly small without any publicity. This is the worthy object which exchanges of this kind have accomplished in other cities. The articles offered for sale are sent to the exchange, a price put upon them, and then, after being sold just as are the goods displayed in any other store, the proceeds are usual shattered resolutions.

returned to the workers, less the commission, which goes towards the running expenses of the exchange. No more efficient and praiseworthy means of affording self-help to women has ever been devised, and its successful trial in other cities argues that it would be appreciated here in St. Paul. The good that might be done is unquestioned, and the experiment would at least do no harm. When another holiday season comes around, with the usual demand for such articles as the gentle sex northwesterly winds, becoming variable and is skilled in fashioning, it should see a Woman's Exchange in successful operation.

DR. McGLYNN'S CASE.

Unusual public interest has been excited in respect to the case of Rev. Dr. Mc-GLYNN, who has been summoned to Rome to answer as to his part in the recent HENRY GEORGE political movement. The two features of the case which most excite public interest are the possibilities of having an explicit and official declaration from the Roman Catholic church as to how far a priest is privileged to take part in politics, and what is the disposition of the head of the church toward the existing land and labor agitations. In a recent interview of Any Other Newspaper Printed with the New York World's London correspondent Cardinal Manning is quoted as saying that because Father McGLYNN has been summoned to Rome the summons is not to be interpreted as meaning a condemnation of his cause. He affirms that the Catholic church, having always been th faithful friend of the laboring people, can not be opposed to the labor movement unless it falls into socialism. In his reading of Mr. GEORGE's books he has found nothing unsound or deserving censure. According to his construction of Mr. GEORGE's views the latter is in accord with the doctrine taught by the Catholic church, which recognizes the principle that property is founded on the law of Nature and that it is sanctioned by revelation: but as the cardinal understands it, Mr. GEORGE's contention is law of property. Cardinal GIBBONS, of Baltimore, declined to say anything respecting Mr. GEORGE or his principles, but denies most emphatically that the prosecution of Dr. McGLYNN is owing to influence brought to bear by wealthy men of New call of Dr. McGLYNN to Rome does not mean his suspension, or that he has been, or is to be, censured. He says that the pope only wants to know all about the new agrarian school and sends for Father Mc-GLYNN as a man who thoroughly understands the subject. He says the pope is

> and thinks that Dr. McGLYNN will return without a word having been said against him at Rome. Bishop RYAN, of the Western New York diocese, who is a personal friend of Dr. McGLYNN, expresses on other than questions affecting their spiritual welfare, and that "Archbishop CORRIGAN's letter was written undoubtedly because of what he regarded as unpriestly conduct on the part of the doctor." "If we, as citizens, time now as any time. "If we, as citizens, can do nothing," said he, "let us go to our aldermen and the city attorney and make them do it," "The only way to get the railroads to bridge the crossings is through the courts," replied Mr. Lathrop. The general sentiment of the meeting seemed to be that too much time had aiready lost, and the way to induce the railway companies to do anything was to hold big indignation meetings and show that the people of North Minneapolis were in earnest. Ald. Mills said that the whole trouble lay in the fact that when the railroads came the people were so anxious to get them that an almost exclusive franchise was granted. On motion it was decided at the next meeting to appoint an advisory committee of seven. C. F. Baxter, E. S. Gaylord and G. W. Much Ado About Nothing. The published reports concerning Officer Caldwell's action in arresting Cris Hokel, a court house watchman, Thursday, it appears, have done him considerable ice. He called at the GLOBE office last evening, accompanied by a well-known business man who was an eve-witness to the affair, and gave the following statement for publication:

I was coming up Eighth avenue south and found two men quarreling in front of the court house, one of whom was Cris Hokel, the watchman. After telling them to keep quiet I went to pull my box at the corner. was gone Hokel went over to a saloon across the street and came out yelling and singing. I asked him to shut up. He answered: "I don't have to." When I said 'You must do it or I shall call the patrol wagon, he dared me The officer's statement was fully corroborated by the business man who was present, who states in addition that Hokel was both insulting and unreasonable.

The Associated Charities.

The board or directors of the Associated Charities met vesterday. The old officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: J. T. Wyman, president; Anthony Kelley, treasurer, and George D. Coney Island of the West

Is situated in the center of Clear Water lake, Carver county, Minn., thirty miles west of the cities of St. Paul and Minneapoiis. The Pacific division of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad skarts the southern shore of the lake, and the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba passes along the north shore. The thriving village of Waconia is on the south shore of the lake, directly opposite the island. The island comprises thirty-two acros, and is sixty feet above the level of the water and covered with beautiful shade rnl ornamental trees and shrubbery. It is laid out into lots. with a beautiful park of five acres in the center, streets and path graded with gravel. center, streets and path graded with gravel. One hundred lots were platted and of these sixty have been sold with building restrictions, so that the coming season will find this beautiful spot dotted with fine summer residences. There are two fine large new hotels, with all modern conveniences: a large dancing pavilion, ice houses and pagodas for orchestras, seats and tables in the picnic grounds. There is a large dock, 18x65 feet, extending into the lake, and a complete fleet Leonard; address. Mr. Ebell; recitation, extending into the lake, and a complete fleet of row and sail boats, besides which there is a ferry tout for teams and a steamer on the lake. This is as fine a summer resort as any in the state, and will be sold to some enterprising persons as a whole or in parts. We will sell the island, with all improvements, less the sixty lots already sold, or we will sell the hotels and lots separate. We will be pleased to take any one to the lake and show then the property, and a trip there will convince any one that this is a bonanza for some en-terprising men.
