A New Outlet Which Will Give St. Louis Better Connection With the East.

The Project in the Grand Trunk's Interest, Which Means to Enter St. Louis in 1887.

Big Debts Incurred by the Allegheny Valley Railroad Company --Steerage Rates

Baltimore & Ohio Engineers Consulting With the Officials -- The Erie Statement.

ST. Louis, Mo., Dec. 28 .- One of the most important projects of the year, in so far as St. Louis is concerned, is a project which is now being perfected for giving a new outlet to New England points, with plant in full operation by New York Levis as the context of distribution .... The Scandinavian Benevolent St. Louis as the center of distribution. What work has been done in the matter has only recently attracted especial attention, and even then the true inwardness of the cheme was not suspected by railroad men. Reference has heretofore been made to the St. Louis, Danville & Northeastern in connection with an enterprise under the direction and control of H. W. Beckwith, being a line from near Sidell, Ill., to an intersection with the Illinois Central at Tuscola or Arcola, in the same state. For a time it was generally believed that the two projects were under the same management and being kept separate, and, when completed, consolidated into one system. But it is now known that they are wholly distinct and separate enterprises, conducted by different interests. The first is a reorganization of the old Michigan, Indiana & St. Louis, covering the territory Sturgis, Mich., to Danville, Ill., while the latter is substantially an extension of the Grape Creek division of another corpora-tion from the vicipity of Sidell, either by way of the old graded road-bed of the de funct Danville, Tuscola & Western, or southwest via the four county corners of Vermillion, Edgar, Champaign and Douglas, and of Comarga to a point on the Illinois Central at either Tuscola or Arcola. The project is being perfected in the interest of the Grand Trunk, which is feeling its way cautiously in the direction of St Louis, and within sixty days, it is claimed, will demonstrate that it means business and will have a line into St. Louis by the latter part of 1887. The proposed route is almost an air line, and is projected to run from Battle Creek, Mich., diagonally across the corner of the state of Indiana, and striking Danville, Sullivan, Pana and Tuscola, Ill., giving direct connection with St. Louis.

The government rather played off on Messrs. J. M. Tuohy and F. D. Harrison, of Pembina, recently. The latter, wanting to make vacancies in the custom house at St. Vincent for friends, preferred charges for alleged irregular conduct against N. E. Nelson and F. C. Myrick. A departure was made from the usual custom, and copies of the charges, with names of accusers, were furnished the accused, and an investigation ordered at St. Vincent. This was a stunner for the young men who made the charges. The accused were on hand defiant and ready to refute all accusations, but the accuser

A young man who came to Dakota a few years ago, as he crossed the line, declared that he came for the sole purpose of becom-ing "a great statesman who would rise to the front rank of political life." He has worked steadily and untiringly to that end, and now has the proud satisfaction of being addressed as "Hon." He is a member of the Huronfi at legislature. His example is an encouraging one to young men who are ambitious. from Kansas, not Dakota, that the man elected to the legislature wrote East to his friends that mighty small men could get office there.

The Clark papers differ as to the propriety of the discipline administered to the expunsed city marshal, C. J. Berdan, in taking him from the hands of the officers at midnight and administering tar and feathers on account of alleged attempts to debauch young girls. One defends it and another pronounces it a gross ourrage. Most of the citizens are reticient over the unlawful action of the mob, but are free to say they are glad the community is rid of the fellow. Gov. Pennington, in his Yankton telegram, has in mind former legislatures when he takes this view of the pliancy of members of the coming legislature: "One North Dakota mem-ber will go into the Bismarck legislature with a bill of forty-two pages to regulate railroads and eievators. This kind of a spasm seizes some of the Dakota law-makers every two years, and the roads have to make a liberal distribution of passes to stay the cyclone of reform."

The members elected to the Bismarck legis lature from the First district lately had a caucus at Canton to investigate the affairs of Vermillion university, which was found all right and prosperous, and to decide what ap-propriations to work for in the legislature. The notable feature of the gathering was that e ich of the members claimed to have paid railroad fare there. They were new law makers, however, and have not been to Bis marck.

The Milbank Index says it is proposed in the South to get up a test case to submit to the supreme court over the action of the constitutional convention in repealing the restraining clause in the constitution. As there is no more legal status to this concern than to any political convention, it is not seen how the court can get a judicial eye upon it.

The appearances now are that the mission-aries of the Huron alleged state will go through the South beating their tom-toms with about as much permanent effect as would a band of the Salvation army. that elapses between the issuance of the re-ceivers' receipt and the issuance of the patent. It has generally been held that the land was not taxable in such cases. The Republican is pleased with the ap-pointment of Gov. Church, as it believes he will be a leader in promoting unity and state-hood. It warmly approves the Springer bill and says of it: "The bill seems complete and to look after the interests of the people in every particular.' The ladies of the W. C. T. #### ADDITIONAL ST. PAUL NEWS. "ERMINIE" SCENERY.

A Peep Behind the Curtain -- The Way the Scenery is Worked--Lovely Display of Scenic Art.

"Erminie" is a growing opera. It not only catches the popular fancy, but it holds it. The largely increased audience at the Grand last night was a demonstration of this. Whether it is simply because the opera grows on one or whether the performance was better rendered, the piece seemed to move with more smoothness than on the preceding night. It is seldom that a more critical audience is seen at the opera house than the one last night, and the numerous expressions of approval can fain be construed into a verdict in favor of the merit of "Erminie" as an artistic production.

An especially attractive feature of the opera is the splendid stage setting. It is the same scenery that is used in the New York Casino, which in its decorations is a marvel of scenic art. The scenery was painted by Henry E-Hoyt, the Casino stage artist, and every bit of it used in the production of the opera here belongs to the company, and requires a sixty-foot car to haul it The pink ball-room scene of the second act is constructed with a thoroughly artistic sense of the fitness of things. When the curtain rises on the second act the great ball room is seen with its twisted pillars of alabaster in translucent rose pink shades, supporting the roof; the walls shading in the same tints, and the softness of coloring and light give an illusive effect that fairly takes the breath from the spectator. To one standing the spectator. To one standing immediately fronting the stage in the aisle near the foyer the ball room has the appearance of being at least 300 feet deep. The large candlebras in front, with their jetted lights, having the appearance of real wax candles, bring the foreground into prominent view, while the smaller candlebras to the rearward with the gauze hung in front of them give the most perfect perspective that has ever been seen in stage scenery. Ordinarily a close inspection of stage scen ery destroys the pleasant illusion gained by a view of it from the auditorium. But it is not so with the pink ball room scene in 'Erminie." When viewed closely it is still the same grand success of scenic art. The figuring is brought out with exquisite skill in tracing and the tinting is of the same delicate cast that is seen from the auditorium. Just as a painting, without regard to its stage uses, it is a real work of art. Although the scenery of the first west to the cascades when they double on and third acts do not produce upon an autheir tracks, returning to Morris and prostalled of Mount Moriah Lodge No. 35. A. F. and A. M., last night are as follows: W. M., Jacob Thompson; S. W., Charles Knocke; J. W., Henry Fieseler: treasurer, George Barware are marvels of artistic beauty and are as route covers nearly a hundred and seventythoroughly meritorious as the famous pink ball room scene. To the unitiated it is a surprise how such elahorate stage scenery can be set and removed in so short a space of time. And yet it is scarcely less surprising when one is introduced behind the scenes and sees what a quantity of stuff has to be handled. It requires the most thor-ough system and discipline in the stage management to do it. Mr. Mallin, the stage manager of the Erminie company, is a master of his vocation. His eye is never off the stage and scenery. He gives his commands in a quiet subdued tone, yet he speaks with a firmness that admits of no insubordination. His instructions are given with a clearness that leaves no room for misunderstanding. His subordinates seem to have caught the spirit of the boss and everything moves with an expedition and noiselessness that is astonishing. Scarcely has the curtain dropped at the close of the beautiful vocal gavotte, which makes the finale of the second act, than the great pink ball-room has disappeared as if by magic. A "supe" with a half dozen of the alabaster pillars on his back is striding toward the fartherest corner; another one lugging the whole side of a wall is going in another direction, while two or three are piling the roof up in sections against the wall. As the ball-room goes down, another set of carpenters are rearing the corridor with its magnificent stairway in its place; and before the young men, who have gone out to hear what the dickey birds are saying, have had time to return the curtain is up and the play is on again. There is a good deal of enjoyment in the front of the stage during an opera performance, but there is a deal of hard work behind the scenes all the same. DRAMATIC NOTES. Miss Leslie, who gives such a cute interpretation of Jaryotte, has been an invalid for two weeks and was unable to play during the Minneapolis engagement. But when she heard Monday that the Snow Shoe club was to honor the performance with an attendance, there was not power enough in the whole medical faculty to keep her in bed. She got right up and went to the opera and sang her part, notwithstanding the protestations of the management and the whole company. She was rewarded for her pluck by being greatly improved by the exertion, in addition to getting unstinted applause from the audi-

ous. His appearance in a toboggan suit last night was a cute little trick that caught well. All that was needed to complete the humor of the suggestion was a blanket and four stout snow shoers to give him a toss.

Miss Mary Stuart who plays the Princess in "Erminic," is a sister of Stuart Robson, the famous comedian. She illustrates the histrionic ability of her family in her humor-

Mr. Haskell, the handsome young manager of the Minneapolis Tribune, occupied a box with a party of friends at the Grand during the "Erminie" performance last evening. Mr. Doboll, who plays Ravennes with such exquisite humor, is a blood relative of some of the most prominent families in this city.

There will be a matinee performance of "Erminie" this afternoon, commencing at 2 clock. The amp will be interested in the commencing at 2 clock.

prize for perfect recitations. The following were in the roll of honor for good attendance: Helen Ross, Ralph Eastman, Ernest Murnis, Clara Ross, Beatrice Murnis, Cora Llewellyn, Madge Sterett, Elsie Ludwig, Harry Fargo. The large Christmas tree at the head of the hall was soon shorn of its presents, every child receiving two or three three presents. There were also many presents for the older ones present, Judge Baker and several other prominent gentle-men being called to the front several times. After the distribution of presents the children enjoyed themselves in plays for some time, when they left and gave over the hall to the older ones, who enjoyed the remaining part of the evening in an informal hop. The Sunday school has an average attendance of fifty, and is under the superintendence of Mr. Southall.

THE METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL Monday night was spent in a very pleas-ant manner by the Methodist Sunday school children at the residence of Mrs. Douglass, the occasion being a Christmas tree and an entertainment. There were about forty of the children present, the most of them taking part in the programme which consisted of singing and recitations. At the conclusion of this part Santa Claus was introduced, bringing gifts for all. There was about an equal number of the older ones present enjoying a very pleasant evening.

The St. George Snow Shoe club will hold forth at Woodruff's to-night. The Columbias are expected to-morrow evening.

TWO WEEKS ON SNOW SHOES. Lieut. Schwatka Will Lead a Winter Excursion Through the Yellowstone Park.

Lieut. Fred Schwatka, famous as an explorer, was at the Northern Pacific general offices yesterday making preparations for heading a snow shoeing party on a trip through the Yellowstone Park. The party will consist of Lieut. Schwatka, mander; F. Jay Haynes, of Fargo, official photographer of the Northern Pacific road: J. G. Ross, vice president of the Northwestern Snow Shoe club, Montreal, Canada; Henry Bosse, an artist employed in the United States engineer's office, Rock Island, Ill.; J. W. Brockell, of Rock Island, Ill., and an old-time Rocky mountain hunter and snow shoer, and H. C. Wadsworth, president of the Buffalo, N. Y., Snow Shoe club. These men all claim to be experi-enced snow shoers. This excursion is gotten up by the Northern Pacific road and will be the first ever made through gotten · up the park in the winter. Mr. Haynes will take with him one of the finest photographing machines that can be purchased, photographs of all prominent points along the line of the run will be taken, which will give beautiful views and winter scenes in the park that have never been phe or painted. The party leaves to morrow afternoon and will arrive at Mammoth Hot Springs, from which point they start Saturday. Jan. 2. It is expected that the trip will occupy two weeks, and the journe will be made on snow shoes and Norwegian skis. The line of the run will be away from the old trail. It will extend east from Mammoth Springs to Yoncey's and Tower Falls on the Yellowstone river; from this they will go south and over Mt. Washburn, the highest mountain in the park, whose peak is perpetually covered with snow. Its height above the level of the sea 10,340 feet. From the mountain they will proceed to the grand canon and south to Yellowstone lake, then west across the continental divide to upper geyser basin, from which point they go north to Hell's half acre and lower geyser basin, thence to Morris. From Morris the party will go west to the cascades when they double on five miles. This is quite an important trip as it is the only one ever made over that country in the winter and many new points will be visited, which will be ren-dered much more interesting since they will be winter scenes. The Northern Pacific people have been contemplating this trip for several months and General Passenger Agent Fee has been in correspondence with Lieut. Schwatka regarding the matter for a long time. The snow shoers will return in time to enjoy the ice carnival here.
